

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT LOS ANGELES

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2008 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

LATIN PLAYS

FOR STUDENT PERFORMANCES AND READING

BY

JOHN J. SCHLICHER

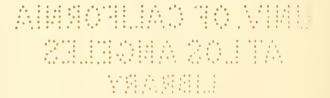

GINN AND COMPANY

BOSTON · NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON ATLANTA · DALLAS · COLUMBUS · SAN FRANCISCO

COPYRIGHT, 1916, BY JOHN J. SCHLICHER ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

116.3

GINN AND COMPANY · PROPRIETORS · BOSTON · U.S.A.

PREFACE

The plays in this volume have been written chiefly for performances by students and for rapid oral reading by high-school pupils and others in the early stages of Latin study. Translation and previous preparation are of course not excluded, and for this use of the book a vocabulary and brief notes have been added. The object of the plays is to supply the need, which everyone who teaches high-school classes has felt, of easy and varied conversational Latin which shall be fairly substantial and have some connection with the regular reading of the pupils, and shall at the same time be interesting to them as boys and girls.

The necessity for more actual handling of the language than is possible in the authors commonly read in schools is too apparent to require comment. Pupils usually know grammar enough to read, and they frequently have a good vocabulary. What they lack is an experience with the language which will carry them along with enough speed to make it seem a real means of expression; the Latin of the required authors is much too complex and too far removed from the ordinary train of their thinking and speaking to serve this purpose. The slowness of their early reading in Latin deprives them of several advantages which the study of the modern languages offers in large measure. It breaks the continuity of thought from sentence to sentence and even from clause to clause, and compels the pupils to begin their task over and over again, with little benefit from what they have read before. With only a small section of the text in their minds, they are of necessity driven back to the dictionary and the grammar at every step, and they fail to get that sense of continuity and momentum which is the life of linguistic expression.

[iii]

uplicate Exchange

The plays are intended, therefore, to be supplementary to the regular reading of the classroom and, incidentally, to create a more lively interest in the authors themselves and in Roman life. Two of the seven are closely connected with Cæsar, two with Cicero, one with Virgil, and one with Ovid. The vocabulary used in the plays consists of about fifteen hundred words, of which nearly fourteen hundred are found in those portions of Cæsar, Cicero, and Virgil which are usually read. Of the rest, about seventy are so closely connected with these words as to give no additional trouble, and only about fifty are entirely new. These are chiefly the names of various articles and persons occurring in the plays, exclamations, forms of greeting, and the like. The plays are arranged in the order in which they will naturally appeal to the pupil as he proceeds in his course, and they are, to a certain degree, progressive in difficulty. But they are all sufficiently simple to be read without much trouble in the second year, or even at the end of the first. They may incidentally be made to serve as a sort of prospectus of the whole high-school course at a time when many pupils are easily discouraged and inclined to give up the study prematurely as uninteresting.

When a performance is undertaken, the degree of accuracy which is to be observed in dress, furniture, etc. will depend on time and circumstances and on the inclination of the participants. Information about these matters may be readily obtained from such books as Johnston's "Private Life of the Romans," Gulick's "Life of the Ancient Greeks," and "Harper's Dictionary of Classical Literature and Antiquities" (see especially the articles on vestis, domus, and exercitus, with the cross references to other articles which they contain; also the articles on cena, mola, and fons). Help for the dress of soldiers may also be found in any good illustrated edition of Cæsar. Much valuable information of a practical kind with reference to the various preparations for a performance may be obtained from an article by Professor D. D. Hains, entitled "The Presentation of Classical Plays," in the Classical Journal for May, 1914.

When the plays are not performed, but read, an interesting and profitable exercise may be arranged by assigning the parts to the various pupils and having them read these in Latin from the book. Such a reading may be preceded by a certain amount of preparation, so that the meaning will be perfectly clear and the text can be read with appreciation and expression. Those who are thinking of a performance will wish to go through several, if not all, of the plays in this way, before deciding on the one they will present.

The stage directions which have been inserted will often help the pupil to appreciate the situation and to read or speak the lines with more interest and vigor. They are intended to be suggestive rather than obligatory, and may be modified for an actual performance to suit the individual performers, the occasion, and the construction of the stage.

PREFACE

To the lists of characters preceding the plays are added, in each instance, the numbers of the scenes in which the characters appear. It will thus be found easy to combine two or more of the shorter parts, and to have them read or spoken by the same pupil if necessary.

The little songs which occur in several of the plays have been set to simple tunes, which are grouped together immediately after the text of the last play.

J. J. S.

CONTENTS

																	PAGE
I.	S	AC	CU	JS	M	AL.	O.	RUI	M								I
II.	Т	ΊR	ON.	IE:	s.												27
III.	E	XI	Τţ	JS	Н	EL	VI	ETI	ЮR	UI	1			٠			55
IV.	С	IC	ER	О.	CA	ĺΝ	DI	$\mathbf{D}A$	TU	IS							77
v.	С	ON	IJÜ	R	ΑT	Ю											99
VI.	D	ΙD	0														125
VII.	Α	ΝI	OR	OM	ΙE	DΑ											149
SON	GS																173
NOT	ES	3															177
VOC.	AΒ	UI	AF	RY													185

(The Sack of Apples)

Personae

PUERĪ I, II, and III, three Roman boys, brothers and cousins (Scenes I, II, III, IV)

PUELLAE I, II, III, and IV, four Roman girls, their sisters (Scenes I, II, III, IV)

TRĀNIŌ, an old man living outside of the city (Scenes II, IV)

ANICULA, an old woman, his wife (Scene II)

MATER, mother and aunt of the boys and girls (Scenes III, IV)

PATER, father and uncle of the same (Scenes III, IV)

SCAPHA, an old woman, servant in the family (Scene III)

Apparitor, an attendant at court (Scenes III, IV)

AGRICOLA, a farmer, neighbor of Tranio (Scenes III, IV)

IŪDEX, a judge (Scene IV)

VENDITOR MĀLŌRUM, an apple-vender (Scene IV)

SILENT CHARACTERS, men and women, spectators at the trial (Scene IV)

PLACE: Rome

TIME: The first and second days of vacation

SCENE I

The court of a Roman house. Three Boys, brothers and cousins, in vacation time.

Dīs agō grātiās quod iam in lūdum īre non oportet. Tandem facere possumus quidquid volumus.

PUER II

Ita. Neque sub magistrō sedēre et discere necesse est per tōtum diem. Certō sciō illum vehementer dolēre quod nobis pēnsa dare non possit.

Dic quid agāmus. Id magis cūrō quam quid magister putet dē lūdō.

PUER I

Cūr non venātum eāmus? Avunculus mihi dīxit ubi lepores invenire possemus.

PUER II

Quasi tū leporem capere possīs. Celerius īre non potes quam testūdō.

PUER I

Fac periculum. Adfirmō tibi mē celerius leporem sequi quam tū piscem capere posse.

Piscātum eāmus. Magnōs piscēs capiāmus. Ego duās līneās habeō novās.

T I rabber her Ego vēnārī mālim. Arcum habeo optimum et sagittās, quibus facile lepores et aquilas interficiam.

PUER II

Aquilās? Mihi vidēris magnam rem factūrus esse, sī vicini gallinam interficiās.

PUER I

Tū autem nē lapidem quidem conicere potes in agrum. Dolēs quod arcum non habes.

PUER II

Vel vēnāminī vel piscāte. Sī quid capiētis, quod sciō nihil futūrum esse, ego libenter tōtam praedam portābō domum. Non timeo ne onus mihi sit grave.

PUER III

Omnia sunt parāta. Ego līneās meās adferam, tū [Pointing to Puer I] arcum tuum et sagittās. Amīcus noster [Pointing with his thumb at Puer II] praedam reportābit. Iam eāmus.

As they are about to go, four Girls, their sisters, come on the stage

PUELLA I

Heus, pueri, quid agitis? Cavēte nē magister vos videat. Sine dubiō vos aliquid facere constituistis quod facere non debetis.

PUER II

Hem, quid vos vultis? Puellas non vocavimus.

SCENE I

PUELLA II

Vērum est. Hoc scīmus. Nōs nōn vocāvistis. Tamen hīc sumus. Praeterea în animō est quaerere quid vōs agātis.

PUELLA III

Nōlīte tam ferōcēs esse. Nōs quoque aliquid facere possumus, sī volumus. [The boys laugh.

PUER III

Aliquid facere! [The boys laugh.] Ūnam rem võs bene facere potestis — domī manēre. Id võbīs est optimum.

PUELLA IV

[Turning up her nose] Putātis sine dubiō vōs esse hominēs sapientissimōs. [The boys laugh.

PUER I

[Turning to go and beckoning] Venîte, pueri. Tempus non est morandi et loquendi cum puellis. Eāmus.

PUER III

W/ 11 25

[As the boys wave their hands to the girls] Valēte, puellulae! Este semper bonae puellulae! [The boys go.

PUELLA IV

[Indignantly] Putant vērō sē esse magnōs virōs et facere posse quod velint.

PUELLA I

Nöbīs autem domī manendum est. Nönne hoc est dūrum? Puerīs licet piscātum īre et vēnātum. Puellae nihil facere possunt.

PUELLA II

Quid sī nos quoque aliquid agāmus?

[5]

CETERAE

[Excitedly] Id faciāmus. Id faciāmus.

PUELLA HI

Quid autem? Dicere facilius est quam facere. Praetereā, nonne scitis mātrem nos domi manēre iussisse?

PUELLA II

Māter abest, neque intrā quattuor hōrās redibit. Ante id tempus nōs quoque redibimus.

PUELLA III

Quō tandem eāmus? Dic nōbīs, quid in animō habeās.

PUELLA II

Ego non dico quo aut quid. Sed aliquid facere cupio. Si semper domi manendum est, paene nihil interest utrum intra lūdum sīmus an extra lūdum.

PUELLA I

Quid sī puerōs sequāmur et videāmus quid factūrī sint?

CETERAE

[Clapping their hands] Probē! Optimē!

PUELLA IV

[Hugging Puella I] Tē amō. Tū es multō sapientior quam puerī.

Quōmodo eāmus? Nam hīs vestīmentīs per urbem et in agrōs īre non audēmus.

PUELLA I

Māter multa vestīmenta habet. Eis nōs cēlāre possumus, ut nēmō nōs cognōscat.

SCENE I

PUELLA III

Quid autem mater dicet? Nonne irata erit?

PUELLA II

Māter longum iter facit. Quattuor hōrās aberit. Ante reditum eius vestīmenta erunt in locō suō.

PUELLA IV

Hīc habeō vestīmentum. [Picking up a shawl from a chair and muffling herself in it, speaks in a changed voice] Quis iam mē cognōscet? Ego sum fēmina quīnquāgintā annōrum.

[Walks about with a stoop like an old woman. The others laugh and clap their hands.

PUELLA H

Agite, properāte, quaerāmus vestīmenta.

[Runs out and returns almost at once with an armful of clothes in which they muffle themselves.

PUELLA I

[While Puella II is gone, in great glee] Iam puerīs ostendēmus quid puellae facere possint. Nonne mīrābuntur nos mulierēs?

[Meanwhile the girls have disguised themselves, and go out excitedly, Puella IV still acting the old woman in an exaggerated manner.

SCENE II

The highway outside of town. The entrance to a small hut is at one side of the stage. The Boys come in from the other side, two of them with fishing poles and the other, Puer 1, with a bow and arrows. Puer III carries a small fish dangling from a string.

PUER I

[Wearily] Ego sum dēfessus. Utinam domī essēmus. Sum valdē dēfessus.

PUER II

Ego autem aliquid esse cupio. Fame iam confectus sum.

PUER 1

Id nos quoque cupimus.

PUER III

Piscem habēmus. [Holding up the fish] Hunc fortasse ēsse possīmus.

PUER I

Non est satis. Ego elephantum devorarem, si ele-phantum habērem.

PUER I.

Cūr non ūteris arcū tuo?

PUER 1

Non eris tam facetus, si scies quid tibi sit ūtile.

PUER III

Ecce casam. [Pointing to the hut] Ibi fortasse est cibus. Adeāmus et videāmus.

PUER I

Hīc putō hominem habitāre. Sī cibum nōn dat, ipsum dēvorābimus.

SCENE II

PUER II

[To Puer I] Tū adī et pultā iānuam.

PUER III

Ego pultābō. Ego non timeō, etiam sī canem habet ingentem. [Goes to the door and knocks. As no one opens, he knocks again, louder] Heus, nēmōn hīc habitat?

TRANIO

[Coming out] Quis hic pultat? Visne iānuam frangere? Putāsne mē aurēs non habēre?

PUER III

Id non dubito. Pultāvī modo ita ut audīre possēs.

TRANIO

Quid vultis?

PUER III

Habēsne cibum? Nam dēfessī sumus et fame confectī.

TRANIO

Habeō cibum, sī võs pecūniam habētis.

PUER III

[Reaching in his pocket] Hic habeō sestertium, quem tibi dabō.

TRANIO

Sestertium unum? Non satis est.

[The others fumble in their clothes and finally hand him each a piece of money. The old man turns over the coins, bites them, and examines them carefully.

PUER I

Nē timuerīs. Bonum argentum est. Quid autem tū nōbīs datūrus es?

TRANIO

Manēte. Aliquid quaeram.

[Goes back into the hut. The boys lean their poles against it.

PUER II

Spērō eum celeriter reditūrum esse. Numquam in tōtā vītā meā tantā fame cruciātus sum.

TRANIO

[Returning with a sack of apples, which has a name on it] Haec accipite — māla cum saccō. Sunt bona.

PUER I

Sīve bona, sīve mala, sī māla sunt, ea bona putāmus. [Looks into the sack. Each boy takes an apple.] Grātiās agimus, pater. Valē.

TRANIO

Et vos valète. [The boys start away with their poles, etc., one carrying the sack on his shoulder, and each of them eating an apple. Tranio stands in the door for a while and looks after them. Then he counts his money over again. Finally, in a pleased tone, he speaks to himself] Quattuor sestertios pro ūno sacco, pro quo ne quadrantem quidem dedī. Hoc dicere volo, [Confidentially to the audience] invēnī saccum in horto vīcīnī meī [Pointing with his thumb]. Non est male gestum. [Walks into the house.

The four Girls come along following the boys. They are dressed in the Mother's clothes, as at the end of Scene I

PUELLA I

Timeō nē errāverīmus. Scītisne quō itinere redīre possīmus?

SCENE II

PUELLA II

Redīre? Ego non redibo. Pueros sequi volo ut videam quid agant.

PUELLA I

Tamen, sī eādem viā non eāmus ---

PUELLA II

Sī dē viā sollicita es, ad hanc casam adeāmus et quaerāmus. [Goes to the door of the hut and knocks. An Old Woman comes out.] Dīc, māter, vīdistīne trēs puerōs hāc viā euntēs?

ANICULA

Trēs pueros non vidi. Quid vultis?

PUELLA III

Istī puerī domō fūgērunt, neque usquam reperīrī possunt. Eōs quaerimus.

ANICULA

Quaerite igitur. Ego nihil sciō.

PUELLA III

Tamen rë vërā eös quaerimus. Fortasse vir tuus de illīs dīcere potest.

ANICULA

Fortasse. Eum vocābō. [Goes into the house calling] Trāniō! Trāniō!

TRANIO

[Appearing in a few seconds] Quid vultis?

PUELLA III

Trēs puerōs quaerimus, qui effūgērunt. Sī hāc viā iērunt, petimus ut nōs certiōrēs faciās.

TRANIO

Quid mihi dabitis, sī vōbīs vērē dīcam dē puerīs?

PUELLA I

Accipe sestertium.

[Giving him a coin.

TRANIO

[After examining the coin] Grātiās agō. Es bona puella.

PUELLA III

Quid dīcis dē puerīs? Id scīre cupimus.

TRANIO

Paulō ante trēs puerōs vidi hic praetereuntēs.

PUELLA I

Num quid portāvērunt?

TRANIO

Habēbant līneās et arcum et ūnum piscem et saccum plēnum mālōrum.

PUELLA IV

Saccum plēnum mālōrum? Mīror ubi saccum istum invēnerint.

TRANIO

Id reperire potestis, si eos consecutae eritis priusquam omnia mala comederint. Valete. [Goes back into the house.

PUELLA IV

Hoc mihi mīrum vidētur — saccum plēnum mālōrum.

PUELLA 11

Non tam miror de malis quam unum ex eis habere cupio.

SCENE III

PUELLA I

Eāmus celeriter. Nisi id faciēmus, nē ūnum quidem mālum erit reliquum.

PUELLA III

Ita. Eāmus. Eāmus. [They go quickly, following the boys.

SCENE III

The court of a house, as in Scene I. There is no one on the stage at first.

MATER

[Behind the scenes] Scapha! Scapha! [Entering] Ubi ancilla iam sit nescio. Neque pueros neque puellas video, quamquam severis verbis imperavi ut puellae in domo manerent. Tres gradus vix feci extra ianuam, iam omnes abierunt. Scapha!

SCAPHA

[Enters excitedly] Adsum, domina mea.

MATER

Iam diū adesse dēbēbās. Bis tē vocāre coācta sum.

SCAPHA

Veniam petō, domina. Eram sollicita propter puellās.

MATER

Sicut ego sum. Ubi sunt filiae meae?

SCAPHA

Cum paulo ante rediissent, per scālās ēscendērunt in tēctum, ubi iam sedent.

MATER

Sedent in tēctō aedium? Puellae in tēctō sedent? Scapha, es īnsānā mente, nescīs quid dīcās.

SCAPHA

Utinam quod dicō falsum esset. Si mihi nōn crēdis, tuīs oculis vidēre licet.

[The women walk to the side of the stage and look upward where Scapha points.

MATER

[Horrified] Puellae! Quis hoc umquam crēdidisset? Puellae! Statim dēscendite! Statim! [After looking up a while longer as if watching their descent] Iam cum in lūdum non eunt, docēmur quanta beneficia magistro dēbeāmus.

SCAPHA

Vērum est, domina. Tamen sunt parvae. Ignoscendum est, sī non tam sapientēs sunt quam adultī hominēs.

MATER

[As the Girls straggle in, each eating an apple, and one of them with the sack, now nearly empty] Nonne vobis imperāvi ut bonae essētis dum redirem? Quid habētis in isto sacco?

PUELLA II

Sunt māla, māter mea, māla bona.

MATER

Māla? Unde māla accēpistis?

PUELLA II

Nē īrāta sīs, māter. Paulisper tantum āfuimus. Vidēre volēbāmus quid puerī agerent.

MATER

Id non quaesīvī. Scīre volo quis vobis istum saccum dederit. [Pointing at the sack.

SCENE III

PUELLA III

Eum invēnimus in viā.

MATER

In viā? Posthāc in viam non exibitis. Id providēbo. Iam hīc considite circum mēnsam et reliqua māla ad cēnam parāte. [Shaking her finger at them] Nēve ūnum mālum gustāverītis.

[They lay aside the apples they are eating and begin paring the rest in crestfallen silence. The Mother sits down to sew. Nothing is said for a while. Scapha goes out.

PATER

[Enters and stops in surprise when he sees the girls all at work. He speaks to himself, much pleased and rubbing his hands] Haec est disciplina maiōrum. Hoc laudō. [To his wife] Miror tamen cūr omnēs tam dīligenter labōrent. Nōn ita eās cognōvī ante hunc diem. Quid puellās nostrās tam subitō mūtāvit?

MATER

Est supplicium pro earum delicto.

PATER

Hem, id suspicātus sum. Bene est, sī modo aliquid agant quod sit ūtile. [Meantime a tramping and thumping is heard outside. The Father turns toward the noise] Quid illud est?

The three Boys enter, two of them supporting the third, Puer II, between them. He limps badly. The Father speaks.

Quid videō? Mīlitēs sine dubiō ex proeliō redeuntēs. Dīcite, quis Gallus aut Germānus hunc Rōmānum vulnerāvit?

PUER I

Non vulnerātus est. Cecidit.

[They have deposited Puer II on a bench, where the mother makes him comfortable with a cushion. While the following lines are spoken, she continues her sewing. The girls look on wistfully, but continue their work.

PATER

Num hostis eum fugāvit, ut satis celeriter currere non posset? Erat fortis hostis, sine dubio. Cūr eum vos non in fugam dedistis? Hostes fugandī sunt, non fugiendī.

PUER III

Agricola quīdam in nos saevum canem mīsit, quī mordēre parātus erat, nisi fūgissēmus. Ita piscem nostrum āmīsimus.

PATER

Piscem? Quantus erat piscis ille?

PUER III

[His hands about three feet apart] Erat tam longus. Magnus piscis erat.

PATER

Male factum! Tōtam praedam relīquistis in manibus hostium.

PUER III

Ita. Neque piscem sõlum. Magnum saccum quoque āmīsimus, mālōrum plēnum.

[The girls exchange significant looks, and whisper and nod to each other.

SCENE III

PATER

Id erat stultum. Nam canis, ut mihi vidētur, māla nōluit. Pisce sōlō sine dubiō contentus fuisset. Saccum mālōrum plēnum melius erat domum portāre.

[The girls try to keep from laughing out loud.

MATER

[Picking up the sack from the table] Estne hic saccus quem āmīsistis?

PUER I

Nesciō. Est nostrō saccō similis.

APPARITOR

[Outside a loud knocking is heard and a voice calling] Aperite iānuam. Magistrātus iubet aperire iānuam.

PATER

[Going to the door, opens it. They all look on in astonishment; several of the girls leave the table to see what is going on. When the door is opened, an Apparitor comes in, followed by a Farmer in a sheepskin cloak. The Father addresses them gravely] Haec est mea domus. Sī quid sceleris hīc occultātum putātis, licet quaerere.

APPARITOR

Eōs quaerimus qui saccum cum mālīs ab hōc homine abstulērunt.

AGRICOLA

Saccum quem mihi ex hortō abstulērunt, meō nōmine īnscrīptum. Erant bona māla, erat novus saccus.

PATER

[Taking the sack from the table] Eratne huic sacco similis?

AGRICOLA

[Surprised] Hic ipse est meus saccus. Ut vidētis, meō nōmine înscriptus est. [Pointing at the name on the sack] Meus saccus est. Qui eum habuit, fūr est, pūniendus est.

[The girls look frightened. The Farmer keeps the sack and holds it tightly under his arm.

PATER

Nihil hārum rērum intellegō. Tuus est fortasse saccus, sed certō sciō nēminem ex hīs eum tibi iniūstē abstulisse.

PUER III

Est saccus quem nos ab homine aliquo emimus. Erat plenus malorum. Quattuor sestertios ei dedimus pro sacco.

APPARITOR

[Sarcastically] Hanc fābulam non facile est crēdere. Non est vērī simile pueros saccum mālorum plēnum ēmisse pecūniā.

AGRICOLA

Ego sciō hunc saccum cum mālīs ex hortō meō ablātum esse.

APPARITOR

[Assuming authority] Fürem quaerimus. Võs habēbātis saccum. Apud iūdicem patefaciendum est quōmodo eō saccō potītī sītis. Quārē in iūdicium īre necesse est. Quis ex yōbīs saccum habuit? Eum enim accūsāmus.

PUER I

Nos saccum ēmimus.

PUELLA I

Nos autem saccum invēnimus.

SCENE IV

MATER

Ego saccum in manibus habuī.

PATER

Saccus est in meā domō. Quem nostrum accūsātis?

APPARITOR

[Scratching his head, slowly and thoughtfully] Võs saccum ēmistis [Pointing to the boys, and screwing up his face in thought]. Võs saccum invēnistis [Pointing to the girls]. Tū saccum in manibus habuistī [Pointing to the Mother]. Tū autem saccum in domō habuistī [Pointing to the Father. After scratching his head again, he gets a bright idea] Tandem! Audīte! Omnēs vōs in iūdicium vocō, crās ad hōram tertiam. Cūrāte ut adsītis.

[Turns and walks off stiffly and pompously, followed by the Farmer, who looks back just before he reaches the end of the stage, and shakes his staff at the boys.

SCENE IV

A spot in the Forum. At one end of the stage a Judge sits in a chair, which is on a platform a little higher than the floor. Near him at the back of the stage is the Apparitor, stiffly facing the audience. Several people are hanging about, among them Tranio. The Farmer stands before the Judge with the empty sack under his arm.

IUDEX

[Speaking to the Farmer] Dicis tibi ex hortō saccum plēnum mālōrum ablātum esse.

AGRICOLA

Ita dicō. Erant bona māla, est novus saccus. [Showing the sack] Māla nōn minus quinque sestertiis aestimanda sunt.

HUDEX

Potest esse ut dīcis. Tamen sī eum non reperiēmus quī saccum abstulit, nescio quomodo quinque sestertios tuos reciperare possis.

AGRICOLA

Sciō quis saccum meum habuerit. Invēnī fūrēs. Petō ut eōs addūcī jubeās.

IUDEX

Accūsāsne illos homines fūrtī?

AGRICOLA

Eōs vērō accūsō. Saccum in eōrum domō, in eōrum manibus vidī. Praetereā appāritor ipse [Pointing to the Attendant] eōs vidit.

IUDEX

[To the Apparitor] Appāritor, quid respondēs ad haec?

APPARITOR

Est vērum quod agricola dīxit.

HUDEX

Eōs accēdere iubeō.

[The Apparitor walks out pompously. A Street Vender comes in with a little tray before him, suspended from his shoulders, on which are apples.

VENDITOR MALORUM

[Calling in a high, long-drawn, singsong voice] Māla bona! Māla magna! Decem māla emite sestertiō!

> [As he passes along, one or two of the bystanders take up an apple, look at it, smell it, and lay it down again. He keeps on shouting as he slowly passes from one to another.

SCENE IV

Enter APPARITOR, as he left, followed by the Father, the Mother, the four Girls, and the three Boys, who line up before the Judge.

APPARITOR

Hominēs quōs iussistī addūcō.

[Then he resumes his original position.

HUDEX

Accūsātī estis ab hōc homine [Pointing to the Farmer], quod saccum plēnum mālōrum eī ex hortō abstulerītis. Sī quid dīcere vultis, licet.

PATER

Est falsum. Saccum non abstulimus. Māla non abstulimus, neque ego neque quisquam ex hīs.

Pointing to his family.

IUDEX

Agricola, cuius rei hos homines accūsas?

AGRICOLA

Dīcō eōs meum saccum et mea māla in domō suā habuisse, in saccō nōmen meum, Gaī Furnī, īnscrīptum esse [Showing the sack]. Hīs dē causīs eōs fūrtī accūsō.

HUDEX

Habēbātisne saccum in domō vestrā, istō nōmine īnscrīptum?

PATER

Habēbāmus.

IUDEX

Habētisne māla quae in saccō erant?

PATER

Habuimus māla, iam non habēmus. Nam omnia comēdimus.

IUDEX

[To the Father] Quam multa māla ēdistī?

PATER

Duo.

HUDEX

[To the Mother] Quam multa tū?

MATER

Unum sölum.

IUDEX

[To the girls] Ouam multa vos?

PUELLA I

Quaeque nostrum tria māla habuit.

1UDEX

[To the boys] Et vos, quam multa quisque ex vobis comedit?

PUER 1

Oblītus sum. Fortasse decem comēdī, fortasse vīgintī. Sciō mē nōn plūra ēdisse quam hī.

[Pointing to the other boys.

IUDEX

[To the girls] Quid aliud fēcistis?

PUELLA I

Saccum invēnimus in viā.

IUDEX

[To the boys] Et vos, quid fecistis?

PUER I

Saccum ēmimus ab homine quōdam, cui quattuor sestertiōs dedimus.

SCENE IV

HUDEX

Ubi habitat iste homō?

PUER I

Non longe ab urbe.

IUDEX

Cūr extrā urbem iistis?

PUER I

Piscātum ībāmus et vēnātum.

IUDEX

Satis est. Manēte paulisper, dum lēgēs īnspiciam.

[They retire toward the other side of the stage while the Judge opens a big book which has been lying by his side, and looks about in it as if having difficulty in finding what he wants. Meantime the Apple-vender begins crying his wares again, offering them to the Farmer, who still stands near the Judge's chair.

AGRICOLA

[Taking up an apple, in surprise] Haec sunt ex meō hortō. Sunt mea māla. Tūne ea ex hortō abstulistī?

[He takes the Vender by the arm and holds him fast.

VENDITOR MALORUM

Ea non abstuli, sed ēmī ab homine quī ea per viam non longē ab hoc loco vēndēbat.

> [The Farmer continues to hold him fast, while the apples roll on the ground, where they are picked up by the happy bystanders.

HUDEX

[Having finished his inspection, in a loud voice] Silentium! Iubeō silentium! [They are silent, but the Farmer keeps his hold on the Vender.] In lēgibus inveniō nōn satis esse causae cūr hī hominēs [Pointing to the family] condemnandī sint. Tamen suspectī sunt. Quārē līberārī nōn possunt, priusquam alia indicia adlāta sint. Agricola, quid aliud dīcis?

AGRICOLA

Dīcō hunc hominem mea māla vēndere.

[The crowd presses closer, among them Tranio.

VENDITOR MALORUM

[Violently to the Farmer] Manūs abstinē! Mē līberā! Māla tua ex hortō nōn abstulī. [Turning he sees Tranio, and points at him] Ab illō homine haec māla ēmī. Illī quattuor sestertiōs dedī.

IUDEX

[Has been looking on, and now gives a signal to the Apparitor, who pushes through the crowd and arrests Tranio, and brings him before the Judge. The Farmer sees this, but still holds the Vender fast. The crowd falls back in such a way that the family stand in view of the audience. The Judge speaks to Tranio, who is held by the Apparitor to the end of the scene.] Dic mihi nomen tuum.

TRANIO

Ego sum Trāniō.

IUDEX

Ubi habitās?

TRANIO

Extrā urbem.

IUDEX

Unde māla accēpistī quae huic hominī [Pointing to the Vender] vēndidistī?

TRANIO

Ea invēnī.

[24]

SCENE IV

IUDEX

Ubi?

TRANIO.

In hortō vicini mei.

IUDEX

[To the Farmer] Agricola, cognovistine hunc?

AGRICOLA

Eum vērō cognōvī. Est vīcīnus meus, Trāniō.

IUDEX

Vidistine eum umquam in hortō tuō?

AGRICOLA

Saepe iam.

IUDEX

Deditne tibi pecūniam prō mālīs?

AGRICOLA

Nihil umquam, quod sciam.

IUDEX

Satis est. Audīte iūdicium. [All listen.] Hunc hominem, Trāniōnem, iūdicō esse fūrem. Eum condemnō fūrtī. Prō quōque saccō quem in hortō huius agricolae invēnit, huic agricolae quattuor sestertiōs dēbet. Praetereā sex mēnsēs in hortō huius agricolae labōret sine mercēde. Vōs autem [Turning to the family], et pater et māter et puerī et puellae, omnēs estōte liberī.

[The Apparitor drags off Tranio, while the Farmer still holds the Vender, who pulls him off the stage. The boys and girls rush toward the Judge, who smiles as they come.

SACCUS MALORUM

PUERI ET PUELLAE

Grātiās maximās agimus. Es bonus homō.

PUER I

[Shouting] Quis est bonus homō?

OMNES

[As loud as they can] Iūdex!

(The Recruits)

Personae

LŪCIA,
TERTULLA
two sisters (Scenes I, II, III, IV, V)

MĀTER, their mother (Scenes I, II, III, IV)

PATER, their father (Scenes I, II, III, IV)

MĀRCUS, their brother (Scenes I, II, III, IV)

QUĪNTUS, son of a friend of the family (Scenes I, II, III, IV, V)

MULIERĒS I and II, two old women selling cakes (Scene II)

SERVUS, an old servant of the family (Scenes III)

APPĀRITOR, an attendant upon Caesar (Scenes IV, V)

CAESAR, governor of Gaul (Scene V)

SILENT CHARACTERS, two men and two boys (Scene II)

Place: A town in Cisalpine Gaul.

TIME: From early spring to late fall, 58 B.C.

SCENE I

The atrium of a Roman house in a town of northern Italy, not far from the Alps. At the rear of the stage, against the wall, is a small shrine of the household gods. It is the day of the Liberalia, 58 B.C., and the two daughters of the household are engaged in decorating the shrine with garlands.

LUCIA

Brevī tempore omnia erunt parāta. Ubi putās hanc corōnam pulcherrimē pendēre?

[Holding a small wreath at several places to try its effect.

TERTULLA

Ibi non placet. Hic puto.

[Pointing.

LUCIA

Sī hīc pendēbit, alia illīc [Pointing] pōnenda erit. Neque aliam habēmus.

TERTULLA

Est tam parva [Taking the garland], pulchra tamen. Pulchrior erit in capite quam in sacellō. [Putting it on her head] Nōnne ita placet?

LUC1A

Maximē. Sī tibi hodiē corōna gerenda esset, nūllō aliō locō tam pulchra vidērētur quam in capite tuō. Hic autem nōn est noster diēs.

TERTULLA

[Taking the garland from her head] Est frātris diēs fēstus, hoc sciō. [Suddenly getting an idea] Quid sī in frātris capite corōnam pōnāmus? [Delighted] Nōnne id sit pulcherrimum, pulcherrimum?

LUC1A

Timeō ut hoc frātrī tantum placeat quantum tibi placet. Cognōvistī puerōs, quam ferōcēs sint. Gladiōs et hastās et aliās rēs tālēs habēre mālint. Dē corōnīs dubitō.

MATER

[Coming in with a white toga over her arm, which she lays carefully on the table] Suntne omnia parāta? Iam tempus est. Nam pater et frāter mox aderunt.

TERTULLA

Nonne tibi haec placent [Pointing to the decorations]? Nonne sunt pulcherrima?

MATER

Sunt valdē pulchra, valdē. Frātrī quoque putō haec grāta fore. Quid autem fiet eā corōnā quam in manū tenēs?

TERTULLA

Id nesciō. Locus idōneus est neque in sacellō neque in pariete. Igitur in frātris capite eam pōnere mālīmus. Quid tū arbitrāris?

MATER

Hōc frāter certē gaudēbit, praesertim sī fiet ā vōbīs. Nōn tamen corōnātus īre potest per viās. Quārē suādeō ut eum ōrnētis simul atque ātrium intrāverit; deinde ut corōnam auferātis cum togā virīlī indūtus sit.

SCENE I

TERTULLA

Faciēmus quod suādēs. Ambō nōs eum corōnābimus. [Steps are heard.] Audīte. Iam adpropinquant.

[The girls go on tiptoe to the entrance and stand on each side of it. Then when their Father and Brother come in, they step up behind the latter and place the garland on his head. He feels the garland with his hand, then smiles at his sisters, who look at him in admiration. Then they follow their father to the shrine. Here the latter pours an offering of meal and wine on the altar, and then turns to his son, who stands by modestly. The boy has on the toga praetexta, and has a bulla about his neck.

PATER

Iam, mī fīlī, adolēvistī. Pueritia trānsācta est. Virī mūnera accipienda sunt. Ante hōs deōs, quī mē et maiōrēs nostrōs adulēscentēs vīdērunt puerīlia dēpōnentēs et sūmentēs virīlia, tibi togam praetextam iam adimō [Takes off the boy's toga and hangs it by the side of the shrine]. Haec bulla quoque, quae comes pueritiae tuae adhūc fuit, iam Laribus cōnsecrētur [Takes off the bulla and lays it on the altar]. Vir es iam, puer esse dēsinis. Cum hāc togā tibi iūra et officia virōrum sūmenda sunt. [Putting on him the toga virilis, which his wife hands to him] Vir fortis esse dēbet. Vir patriam suam amat et dēfendit. Ut dignus sīs maiōribus tuīs, cupiō et spērō.

[Shakes his son's hand warmly, as do also the Mother and sisters. Tertulla takes off the garland and puts it on her own head. While they are engaged in this, Quintus comes in, already dressed in the man's toga.

PATER

Salvē, Quīnte. Ut videō, tū quoque hodiē vir factus es. [Shaking him by the hand] Gaudeō patriam tam multōs et fortēs adulēscentēs habēre quī eam dēfendant. Nōnne nōbīscum ībis ad templum?

QUINTUS

Sī vōbīs placet, libenter ībō. Meō patrī enim longiōre viā ad templum eundum erat, ut mēcum īre nōn posset.

PATER

Pater tuus est cīvis optimus, quī non sua tantum, sed aliorum onera sustinet. Cūrā ut eī sīs similis.

[Meantime the others have shaken hands with Quintus.

TERTULLA

Ut mihi vidētur, non rēctē indūtus eris togā virīlī, nisi coronā eris indūtus. [Puts the garland on his head.

QUINTUS

[Bowing to her] Grātiās agō quod mihi id dedistī quod deerat.

TERTULLA

Nē errēs, diū corōnam nōn habēbis. Nam quod puerō est idōneum, virō nōn est.

[Takes the garland from his head and puts it on her own.

MATER

Cavē tū nē ipsa puer fīās. Ista lūdibria virginem nōn decent.

[Tertulla takes off the garland and appears ashamed of what she has done. Quintus walks toward her, and as she looks up, holds out his hand. She gives him the garland with a smile, and he hides it under his toga.

SCENE II

PATER

Iam prope tempus est ut proficiscāmur.

MATER

Nos breviore via ibimus atque vos ad aras exspectabimus. Valete.

> [She and the girls go out. Quintus kisses his hand to Tertulla, who turns to look at him as she goes out.

SCENE II

A street near the temple. At the back of the stage, some distance apart, are seated two old Women, each with a stand before her, on which is a small altar and some thin cakes for sale.

MULIER I

Diū iam exspectāmus, neque quisquam hāc viā accessit.

Timeō nē lība nostra hodiē nōn emantur. Multīs Līberālibus iam eōdem locō sēdī: numquam necesse fuit tam diū exspectāre dum emptor venīret.

MULIER II

Neque melior fortūna est mea. Aliā viā eunt hodiē, sine dubiō. Nōn esset mīrandum, sī nēmō venīret. Nam, ut dīcitur, fit cōnscrīptiō mīlitum per tōtam prōvinciam nostram. Bellī temporibus, sī fīliōs habērem, ego quoque eōs puerōs quam virōs esse māllem. Puerī saltem ab hostibus nōn interficiuntur.

MULIER I

[Nodding significantly] Nos de hac re dicere possumus. Tuus vir in Āfricā, meus in bello Cimbrico interfectus est. Illa erant tempora miserrima et periculosa.

MULIER II

Nūllum est tempus quod non sit miserum. Etiam si pāx est in nostrā terrā, in aliā tamen semper pugnātur. Iam Caesar, quī hanc provinciam obtinet, trāns Alpēs bellum parat.

MULIER I

Itaque omnibus qui hodiē togam virīlem sūment, sine dubiō cum eō trāns Alpēs eundum erit. [Sadly] Minima pars eōrum redībit.

Enter the Mother with Lucia and Tertulla. They take up a position between the two women

MATER

Hōc locō cōnsistāmus. Hāc viā ībunt omnēs ex nostrā vicīniā. Hīc eōs optimē vidēre possumus.

LUCIA

[After they have waited a little while] Mīror nēminem praeterīre. In proximā viā multōs vidimus qui ad templum ībant.

TERTULLA

[Looking down the street] Iam veniunt. Vidēte.

Two Boys with their Fathers come along the street, the Boys stopping to buy cakes of the women, which they carry away with them in their hands. Each woman puts a small offering on her altar whenever she sells a cake. The two men bow to the Mother as they pass.

LUCIA

Spērō nostrōs mox ventūrōs esse. Hōs ignōtōs vidēre nōlō.

SCENE II

MATER

Non sunt ignotī. Habitābant in nostrā viā cum vos parvae essētis.

LUCIA

Nēminem ex eīs umquam vīdisse videor. Vōs, quī multōs annōs nātī estis, tōtam urbem cognōvistis.

TERTULLA

Sciō eōs iam nōn longē abesse. Nam nōbīscum paene eōdem tempore profectī sunt. Em, [Pointing down the street] iam adpropinquant. Iam eōs videō.

LUCIA

[Looking] Patrem videō et Mārcum. Ubi autem est Ouīntus?

TERTULLA

Malōs oculōs habēs, ut mihi vidētur. Nonne vidēs Quintum post patrem euntem?

LUCIA

Iam videō. Tam parvus est ut post virum adultum nōn videātur.

TERTULLA

Ego eum vidi ab initio, etsi post patrem erat. Quare dico tuos oculos non esse bonos.

MATER

Tacēte, puellae. Quid dīcet pater, si võs audiet clāmantēs in mediā viā? Iam attendite.

The Father and the Boys come in, and wave their hands to the Mother and Sisters, who do likewise; Quintus waves his hand repeatedly to Tertulla, who in turn looks at him and smiles.

After they have bought their cakes, they pass on, Quintus being last. When he passes Tertulla, he slips the garland out from under his toga and hands it to her. She hides it quickly, to keep the rest from seeing it. Quintus turns, just as he passes off the stage, and the two wave their hands and smile as before.

LUC1A

[Noticing this] Non mīrum est tē Quīntum tam bene vidēre posse. Nam ille tē solam videt.

TERTULLA

Ego patrem et frätrem tam bene vidi quam tē videō.

LUCIA

[To her Mother] Quam diū exspectandum est, dum revertantur?

MATER

Paulisper tantum. Ecce, ei quōs anteā vidimus iam redeunt.

The Fathers and Sons who went by first come back, and pass across the stage, the two Sons marching proudly in front.

LUCIA

[After a little while, during which they look in the direction from which these came] Defessa sum manendo.

MATER

Sī manēre non vultis, eīs obviam eāmus. Deinde per forum domum redīre poterimus. Ibi plūrēs erunt hominēs.

PUELLAE

Eāmus. Eāmus.

The Mother and daughters go toward the temple.

SCENE III

MULIER 1

Ibi erunt plūrēs hominēs sine dubiō. Melius esset nōs quoque sedēre in forō. Hīc enim nihil prōficimus.

[Rises and begins gathering up her cakes as the curtain falls.

SCENE III

The atrium of a Roman house, as in Scene I. The Mother is seated near one end of the stage, sewing. TERTULLA and QUINTUS, who is now dressed as a soldier, are standing together some distance away. The girl has a flower in her hair and is looking at him in admiration. The time is several weeks after the preceding scenes.

TERTULLA

Iam mihi tōtus mīles esse vidēris. Dīc quid hodiē in forō ēgerītis.

QUINTUS

Quid ēgerīmus? Iūrāvimus in verba imperātōris, quī nōs monet ut iter facere parātī sīmus.

TERTULLA

Licetne scīre quid iūrāverītis? Multōs hostēs vōs interfectūrōs esse, ut suspicor.

QUINTUS

Pollicitī sumus nōs imperātōris imperiō audientēs fore, patriam nōs et rem pūblicam dēfēnsūrōs, semper memorēs fore virtūtis maiōrum quā Rōma per multōs annōs dēfēnsa atque cōnfīrmāta sit.

TERTULLA

Aderatne ipse Caesar?

[37]

448678

QUINTUS

Aderat ac breviter nos adlocūtus est.

TERTULLA

Cōnsidās, quaesō, et nārrēs quid vōbīs dīxerit. [Sitting down] Nōn dubitō quin magnopere vōs laudāverit.

OUINTUS

Nōlī putāre mīlitēs omnēs diēs et hōrās laudārī. Nōn laudāmur nisi quid ēgimus quod laude dignum sit. Multō saepius monēmur ut fortēs sīmus et memorēs cuius urbis sīmus cīvēs.

TERTULLA

Ut tū dīcis, Caesar mihi sevērus esse vidētur, cum clēmentem eum semper et benevolentem putāverim.

QUINTUS

Et clēmēns et benevolēns est in locō. Clēmentiā sōlā proelia facere et hostēs vincere nōn potest.

TERTULLA

Dixitne quo tempore vos proficisci oporteret? Id maxime curo.

QUINTUS

Dīxit mīlitem semper parātum esse dēbēre, ut omnibus hōrīs pugnāre posset prō patriā.

TERTULLA

Num vöbīs hodiē aut crās proficiscendum est?

QUINTUS

Non puto nos diu moraturos esse. Nam Helvētiis dixit esse in animo iter facere per provinciam, quod prohibendum

SCENE III

est. Quārē exercitum sine morā eum trāns Alpēs ductūrum esse arbitror.

TERTULLA

Eheu, spērō id nōn fore, praesertim hōc annī tempore, cum avēs cantent in arboribus et prāta omnia sint flōribus complēta. Cūr bellum nōn differātur in hiemem? Quantō gaudiō fruāmur, sī tū et Mārcus manēre possītis.

QUINTUS

Oblīvīsceris nōs esse mīlitēs, quī nōn id faciunt quod volunt, sed id quod imperātur. Flōrēs erunt pulchrī, etiam sī nōs erimus trāns Alpēs, [Looking at her hair] et pulcherrimōs omnium tū semper invenīre poteris.

TERTULLA

[Taking the flower from her hair, smelling it, and stroking its petals] Nonne est suavis, suavissimus?

[Turns to see that her mother is not looking, then quickly presses it to her lips and fastens it to the young man's coat.

QUINTUS

Grātiās maximās agō prō dōnō tam pulchrō. Hunc flōrem dīligenter servābō. [Smelling it.

TERTULLA

[Pouting] Flörem servābis et puellae oblīvīscēris, nisi fallor.

QUINTUS

Hōc modō vērius dīcitur: Etiam sī flōrem nōn servābō, tamen puellae nōn oblīvīscar.

TERTIII.I.A

[Shaking her finger at him] Cavē quid dīcās. Verba tua memoriā tenēbō, etiam sī alia oblīvīscar omnia.

Enter Marcus, also dressed as a soldier. He is waving a letter in his hand, and is followed by Lucia Māter, soror, Quinte, omnēs audīte. Epistulam accēpī quam avunculus mihi scrīpsit ab exercitū.

MARCUS

[They get up eagerly and come to him, reaching for the

MATER

Epistulam ā frātre meō? Quid agit? Estne bonā valētūdine?

MARCUS

Nihil dīcit dē valētūdine. Dē bellō dīcit, dē Gallīs et Helvētiīs.

MATER

Sī dē bellō scrīpsit, est sine dubiō salvus. Sī aeger esset aut sī vulnerātus, id scrīpsisset. Lege epistulam clārā vōce, ut omnēs audiāmus quid in eā sit.

MARCUS

[Assuming a pose and clearing his throat] "C. Semprōnius Mārcō suō salūtem. Sī mēcum fuissēs, cognōvissēs quam magnīs itineribus Caesar contenderet. Per Cisalpīnam Galliam, per Alpēs, per Allobrogēs, nē ūnum quidem diem intermīsimus. Dūrissimum iter erat per Alpēs, ubi nōn sōlum urbēs nūllās nec oppida invēnimus, sed paene nihil erat quod ederēmus aut biberēmus. Quōmodo incolae in illīs saxīs vīvere possint nesciō. Potius in silvā apud bēstiās habitāre mālim. Sī numquam aliō tempore, tum certē dīs grātiās ēgimus, cum, montibus tandem superātīs, campōs sub pedibus vīdimus. Hīc iam vēr est; in Alpibus autem nihil nisi hiems. Satis tamen est labōrandum. Timet Caesar nē Helvētiī trāns Rhodanum et per provinciam nostram iter faciant. Itaque diēs noctēsque ab omnibus cōpiīs rīpa flūminis mūnītur. Ipse in Ītaliam profectus est, ut novās legiōnēs cōnscrīberet. Spērō cum illīs vōs quoque ad exercitum ventūrōs esse. Sī glōriam cupiētis, hīc impetrābitur. Valē." [Waving the letter in the air] Ō fortūnam maximam, quod ad exercitum ībimus! Ibi rēs aguntur. Ibi glōriam quaerēmus.

Labōrem, ut mihi vidētur. Nōlī putāre tōtōs diēs mīlitum glōriā complētōs esse.

Quid tū scīs dē bellō et glōriā?

LUCIA

Id sciō quod dīcit avunculus in epistulā. Satis labōris dīcit sē habēre, glōriam autem spērāre.

MARCUS

Abī, tū es puella, tū es imperīta hārum rērum.

LUCIA

Et imperita libenter manēbō. Sīve crēdis, sīve nōn crēdis quod dīxī, reperiēs nōn omnia esse glōriōsa.

The Father comes in, followed by a Bearded Slave who carries two soldier's cloaks, which he lays on the table, and two large bundles, which he puts on the floor. Then he goes out.

PATER

Iam parātī sumus. Haec sunt saga quae vōbīs ēmī. Videāmus num satis magna sint.

[The boys put on the cloaks, while the women walk around them, smoothing down the cloaks and feeling of the cloth, and looking them over critically.

MATER

Mihi quidem pulchra et pretiōsa non videntur. Ubi haec ēmistī?

PATER

In forō. Iam confecta erant.

MATER

Id quod putāvi.

PATER

Opus erat celeritate. Caesar enim, ut dicitur, hac nocte proficisci statuit.

MATER

Hāc nocte? Utinam paucōs diēs morārētur. Vix puerōs nostrōs mīlitēs fierī vīdimus, cum eōs iam āmittimus.

MARCUS

[Cheerfully] Nöli timēre, māter. Nöndum āmissī sumus. Spērō mē saepe domum reditūrum esse antequam āmittar.

MATER

Nē oblīvīscāris parentum et sorōrum. Nōs tuī certē nōn oblīvīscēmur. Omnibus diēbus dē tē cōgitābimus. Saepe etiam scrībite epistulās, ut sciāmus quid agātis.

TERTULLA

[To Quintus] Et tū mihi scrībēs epistulās multās et longās.

QUINTUS

Plūrimās scrībam et longissimās. Omnia tibi nārrābō.

LUCIA

Bene sciō quid in istīs epistulīs futūrum sit. Nihil de bellō, nihil de Gallīs, ūnum verbum aut duo dē parentibus et sorore, tota reliqua epistula erit de floribus et de avibus quae cantant in arboribus. [Wags her head as she says this.

SCENE III

TERTULLA

Nisi tacēs, cūrābō ut nē ūnum quidem verbum dē tē scrībātur.

MATER

[Stepping between them] Dēsinite iūrgāre, et võs gerite ut adultās virginēs decet. Nõnne scītis frātrem vestrum abitūrum esse, quem per duōs annōs fortasse nōn vidēbitis? [A trumpet blast is heard] Cūr tubā canitur?

PATER

Signum est ut mīlitēs sē parent ad profectionem. [The trumpet is heard again.] Iam dīcendum est, "Valē." [He shakes hands with his son and then with Quintus] Este fortēs iuvenēs. Memorēs este reī pūblicae.

MATER

[Shaking her son's hand and holding it fast] Cūrā ut bonus sīs puer nēve patris et mātris oblīvīscāris.

[While she shakes hands with Quintus, Lucia shakes hands with her brother and then with Quintus, without saying anything. When Tertulla, who is last, grasps Quintus' hand, she bends her head to smell the flower on his coat.

TERTULLA

[Still holding Quintus' hand, as the rest are starting to go out] Nē oblīvīscāris flōris nostrī.

[When the rest are gone, she drops his hand, reluctantly, and goes back to sit down with averted face. The slave returns with hat, cloak, and staff, and begins taking up the bundles.

TERTULLA

[Looking up, comes to him quickly and touches his arm with her hand] Manē paulisper. Est quod tibi dicere velim. [He puts down the bundles.] Tūne cum puerīs ībis?

SERVUS

Ita. Atque cum eis manēre mē iussit dominus.

TERTULLA

[Taking his hand] Eōs tuēre, quaesō, non frātrem sōlum, sed Quīntum — maximē.

SERVUS

[Shaking her hand] Faciam quod potero.

TERTULLA

Eōs adiuvā. Sī quid accidat, fac nōs certiōrēs.

SERVUS

Fortem et fidēlem mē reperiēs.

TERTULLA

[Pulling out a purse and handing it to him] Hoc accipe. Est tuum.

SERVUS

[Taking it, gratefully] Grātiās maximās agō, domina. [Picking up the bundles, turns back before going out] Valē, domina.

[Tertulla stands still for a few seconds, then stretches out her arms toward the door, and the curtain falls.

SCENE IV

SCENE IV

The same atrium as in the last scene, about six months later. There is no one on the stage at first. Then QUINTUS enters, disguised as the slave, with a false beard and a staff, and dressed in the slave's cloak and hat.

QUINTUS

[Coming in cautiously, he looks all about him and in every part of the room, and occasionally listens; then he takes off his hat and beard, and lays them on the table with his staff] Iam is sum rūrsus qui sum. Id multo facilius est quam agere servum. Interim angor cogitans quomodo servus iste militem tironem agat. Timeō nē tōtam rem cognōverint. Sī id accidit, tum āctum est. Ouinte, dē capite tuō. Exsilium est minima poena quae exspectārī possit. Sed cūr mē hīs rēbus sollicitārī patiar? Maximam rem omnium, ut spērāvī, adsecūtus sum. Sum in ipsā domō puellae meae, quam sī vidēbō, sī eius dulcem vōcem audīre licēbit, etiam sī statim redire necesse sit, contentus erō. Nam in eius oculis tōtam vītam positam esse sentiō. Dum illa mē amet, omnia perīcula, omnēs laborēs libenter suscipiam. Neque exsilium verear, neque mortem, nisi quod ibi puellam meam videre non possim. [After a pause] Magnopere miror ubi sit. [Turning his head] Tōta domus ab hominibus vacua esse vidētur. Manendum est tamen. Aliud agere non possum. Sits down at the table to wait, and after a little while absentmindedly picks up a small picture which lies there. Turning it over, he sees it is Tertulla. Kissing the picture, he holds it before him with both hands] Iam imaginem tuam habeo, vita mea, etiam sī non tē ipsam. Tam pulchra es, tam dulcis, etiam in hāc chartā, ut sine tē vīvere nūllō modō possim.

[Kisses the picture again, and puts it in his bosom. Then, listening, gets up quickly, puts on his hat and beard, and hides behind a curtain, just as the Mother and Lucia enter. During the following dialogue he peeps out now and then, but is not seen by the women. The staff remains on the table.

MATER

Mīra rēs mihi nārrāta est ā vīcīnā, sē servum nostrum vīdisse, quem cum Mārcō ad exercitūm mīsimus. Nisi optimā fidē esset illa mulier, putārem eius mentem subitō factam esse īnsānam.

LUCIA

Ubi eum vīdit?

MATER

In forō.

LUCIA

Sī est in oppidō, mīror eum domum nōn vēnisse. Omnēs nōs eum vidēre velīmus ut quaerāmus dē puerīs.

MATER

[Seeing the staff] Quis baculum suum in mēnsā relīquit? Baculīs hic non est locus idoneus.

LUCIA

[Looking at the staff and taking it up, she holds it out excitedly toward her mother] Cognovistine hoc? Ita mē dī ament, est servī nostrī baculum.

MATER

[Looking at it indifferently] Vix crēdō. Cūr id putās?

LUCIA

Quod hīc in lignō [Pointing] prīma littera nōminis eius incīsa est. Sciō, sciō eius hoc esse baculum. Sciō igitur eum hīc fuisse, neque longē ab hōc locō abesse.

[Running out with the staff.

SCENE IV

MATER

Quid illam puellam iam agitet nesciō. Vix verbum dē baculō locūta est, cum iam aufūgit. Dē servō tamen mīror, sī rē vērā sit in oppidō. Aliquis sine dubiō vīsus est ā vīcīnā, etiam sī nōn est servus noster. [Going out.

QUINTUS comes out cautiously from behind the curtain, but as steps are heard approaching, he conceals himself again. Enter the two Sisters with the staff.

LUCIA

Māter mihi non crēdidit, cum dicerem hoc esse servi nostrī baculum. Iam velim eī tū hoc persuādeās.

TERTULLA

Nesciō cuius baculum in manū teneās. Potest esse servī, potest nōn esse. Sī servum ipsum vidērem, tum certō dīcere possem.

LUCIA

[Indignantly] Numquam putāvī omnēs vos tam stultos esse. Dīco hoc esse baculum servī nostrī.

[Puts it under her arm, and as she does so Quintus reaches out and pulls it away. Lucia screams and turns around. He steps out and pulls off his hat and wig, and laughs.

TERTULLA

Hem, Quintus est!

LUCIA

Quid tū hīc agis? [Tertulla and Quintus rush together and grasp each other's hands, while Lucia runs out to give the alarm] Māter! māter! pater!

QUINTUS

Tandem tē habeō. Ō gaudium!

TERTULLA

Paene mē terruistī. Ō Quīnte, gaudeō tē vēnisse. Nēmō cognōvit tē domī esse. Licetne tibi iam domī manēre nōbīscum?

QUINTUS

Vereor në redeundum sit. Hoc më facit miserum. Dum licet igitur, dicāmus dē aliīs rēbus. Ut vidēs, non oblītus sum floris nostrī.

TERTULLA

Neque ego. Tōtōs diēs dē tē sōlō cōgitābam.

Lucia returns with her Father and Mother, and Quintus and Tertulla drop each other's hands.

PATER

Salvē, Quinte, tē certē non exspectāvimus.

[Shaking his hands, as also does the Mother.

MATER

Salvē. Quid agit Mārcus noster? Estne bonā valētūdine et bonō animō? Cūr ille tēcum nōn rediit?

QUINTUS

Mārcus est vērus mīles. Dīcit sē in castrīs manēre velle cum avunculō.

MATER

Quam diū tū nōbīscum manēbis?

OUINTUS

Non diū. Nemo in exercitu scit me castra reliquisse. Quare celerrime redeundum est.

SCENE IV

PATER

Nēmō in exercitū scit tē castra relīquisse? Quōmodo id fierī potest? Vīsne dīcere tē iniussū imperātōris exercitum relīquisse? [Shaking his finger earnestly] Cavē, Quīnte, nē tibi malum accidat. Celeriter enim reperient tē abesse.

QUINTUS

Id non credo. Nam servum nostrum meis vestimentis indutum in loco meo reliqui.

PATER

Hoc mihi non placet. Mīles imperātorī pārēre dēbet.

QUINTUS

Pārēbam imperātōrī dum pugnābāmus et castra mūniēbāmus. Iam autem exercitus conlocātus est in hībernīs. Caesar ipse in hanc prōvinciam ad conventūs agendōs rediit. Hieme nihil faciendum est quod nōn servus tam bene facere possit quam ego.

PATER

[Shaking his head] Tamen mihi non placet militem iniussum relinquere exercitum.

LUCIA

Dic quomodo ex castris effugeris.

QUINTUS

Factus sum servus. Vidē.

[Putting on the hat and beard and imitating the slave's walk with the staff. The girls laugh and clap their hands. A knock is heard, and when the Father goes to open the door an Apparitor walks in.

APPARITOR

[Looking about, he walks straight up to Quintus and pulls the beard from his face] Caesaris iussū mēcum ībis.

[Quintus follows him out, looking sadly at Tertulla as he passes her. The family watch them go in amazed silence. Tertulla covers her face with her hands and weeps.

SCENE V

A room in a public building of the same town, where Caesar has been holding sessions of court. Caesar is seated. The Apparitor stands near by, with his back to the wall.

CAESAR

Trānsācta sunt omnia. Turba discessit. [To the Apparitor] Iam adulēscentem addūc, tīrōnem illum, quī iniussū meō exercitum relīquit. [The Apparitor goes out.] Stultum puerum, quī putāret per vestīmenta servīlia sē effugere posse. Mīror quā dē causā id fēcerit.

The Apparitor returns, followed by Quintus, whose hands are bound. CAESAR addresses Quintus.

Ut mihi nūntiātum est, effūgistī ē castrīs. Cūr illud fēcistī?

QUINTUS

Domum īre cupiēbam.

CAESAR

Nonne amīcus tuus, Mārcus nomine, nisi fallor, in castrīs mānsit? Ille domum vidēre non cupiēbat.

QUINTUS

Mānsit quod eī nōn eadem causa fuit redeundī. Avunculus eius est in exercitū.

SCENE V

CAESAR

Tū autem, ut suspicor, avunculum habēs in citeriōre prōvinciā. Dīc mihi quid sit eius nōmen.

QUINTUS

[Looking on the ground] Avunculum non habeo.

CAESAR

Avum fortasse, aut sorōrem et frātrem parvulum, quōs vehementer vidēre cupiēbās?

OUINTUS

Avus est mortuus. Neque frātrem neque sorōrem habeō.

CAESAR

Tamen necesse est mē scīre cuius causā domum redierīs. Aemulōs meōs cognōscere studeō.

QUINTUS

Dīcere non possum. Parātus sum poenās dare quantās ā mē petere tibi placēbit.

CAESAR

Dic mihi tandem cūr exercitum reliqueris. Fuistine dēfessus pugnandō, dēfessus mūniendīs castrīs?

QUINTUS

Omnia haec per aestātem libenter suscēpī. Exercitū in hībernīs conlocātō nihil vidēbātur quod faciendum esset. Itaque domum vēnī eō cōnsiliō ut statim redīrem. Iam rediissem, nisi appāritor mē abdūxisset.

CAESAR

Suādēsne igitur ut hīberna tollantur, ut hieme omnēs mīlitēs domum mittantur?

QUINTUS

Non omnes fortasse, sed eos qui iūstam causam habeant redeundi.

CAESAR

Dē hōc mihi cōgitandum est, quid sit satis causae. Appāritor, abdūc adulēscentem. Crās fortasse causa magis appārēbit. [The Apparitor takes Quintus away.] Iam suspicor [Nodding wisely] quae sit illa causa exercitūs relinquendī. Nōn est avus. Neque frātrem neque sorōrem habet. Cēterum aliī hominēs sunt multī, et virī et fēminae, quī hōc in oppidō habitant. Inter eōs fortasse causa aliqua inveniētur. Vidēbimus. Vidēbimus.

The Apparitor returns.

Extrā iānuam, appāritor, num sunt alii hominēs qui mē consulere velint?

APPARITOR

Nēminem vīdī nisi duās puellās.

CAESAR

Duās puellās? Rogā quid velint. [The Apparitor goes out. Caesar laughs] Tam brevī tempore mē causam illam inventūrum esse vix spērāvī. Mīror tamen sī satis sit mīlitī, quārē exercitus relinquātur.

The Apparitor returns with Lucia and Tertulla, who remain standing shyly near the entrance. Caesar speaks.

Salvēte, puellae. [Kindly] Sī quid est quō vōs iuvāre possim, dīcite līberē. Faciam quod est in meā potestāte. Nōlīte timēre.

LUCIA

Nos sumus sorores, et Quintum petimus, qui in cūstodiam est trāditus, ut līberētur.

SCENE V

CAESAR

Dicisne de isto Quinto qui exercitum suum reliquit in Allobrogibus?

LUCIA

Nihil malī facere voluit. Domum vidēre tantum voluit.

CAESAR

Domum tantum? Estne domus vacua an habet incolās?

LUCIA

Habitāmus in eā quattuor, pater et māter et nōs quās vidēs.

CAESAR

Et vos sine dubio estis Quinti sorores. Tāles sorores ego quoque habere velim, quae tam fortiter frātris causam dicant.

LUCIA

Non est frater noster, sed fratris amīcus. Eius lībertātem petimus.

CAESAR

Frātris amīcus, sorōribus autem, ut suspicor, est inimīcus. Id satis causae mihi nōn vidētur. Sī inimīcus est, nōn intellegō cūr eius lībertātem petātis.

TERTULLA

[Boldly] Libertātem eius petō quod mihi ipsī est amīcus.

CAESAR

Tuā causā igitur exercitum relīquit? Tuā causā in cūstōdiam est trāditus?

TERTULLA

Id nesciō. Sed hoc sciō, mē gaudēre quod exercitum reliquerit.

CAESAR

Mīrum est. Gaudēs eum exercitum relīquisse. Non gaudēs eum in cūstodiam esse trāditum. Tamen utrumque factum est tuā causā. Sī mihi dīcēs quid faciam ut duābus dē causīs gaudeās, libenter id faciam.

TERTULLA

Quod exercitum reliquit, gaudeō. Sī eum cūstōdiā līberābis, iterum et multō magis gaudēbē.

CAESAR

Es puella pulchra et callida, quās duās causās optimās esse exīstimō. [Sternly] Appāritor, adulēscēns līberētur.

TERTULLA

[Joyfully] Ō Caesar optime, tibi grātiās agō, grātiās agō maximās. [Caesar smiles upon her benignly as the curtain falls.

(The Departure of the Helvetians)

Personae

SENEX, an old Helvetian (Scene I)

MULIER I, his daughter (Scenes I, II)

PUELLAE, two little girls, her daughters (Scenes I, II)

Vīcīna, a neighbor woman (Scene I)

VIRGO, a young Helvetian woman (Scene I)

HELVĒTIĪ I, II, and III, three Helvetian men (I in Scenes II, III; II and III in Scene II)

MAGISTRĀTUS, a Helvetian official (Scene II)

MULIERES II, III, and IV, three Helvetian women (Scene II)

MILITES I, II, III, IV, and V, five Roman soldiers (Scenes III, IV)

Labiēnus, Caesar's lieutenant (Scenes III, IV)

Praecō, a herald (Scene IV)

CAESAR, governor of Gaul (Scene IV)

SILENT CHARACTERS, one of the little girls and one of the soldiers mentioned above; Helvetian women carrying bundles (Scene II)

PLACE: Helvetia and the banks of the Rhone

TIME: The spring of 58 B.C.

SCENE I

The inside of a hut in a village of the Helvetians. A woman, Mulier I, is tidying up the room. Her two small daughters are sitting at a table. An Old Man, her father, is sitting at a distance, leaning forward with his hand holding his staff.

SENEX

[Shaking his head] Utinam mors mē abstulisset antequam haec mala in domum meam inciderent. Mūtāta sunt omnia in Helvētiā nostrā. Tempus erat cum hominēs ā prīmīs annīs ad senectūtem in agrīs et oppidīs suīs vīverent, sīcut maiōrēs anteā vīxerant. Sī nōn dīvitēs, tamen beātī erant. Antīquam illam Helvētiam dēsīderō. Novam hanc utinam nē vīdissem.

MULIER I

Prandium est parātum, pater. Iam dūdum tē exspectāmus. Nonne vis ēsse nobiscum?

SENEX

[Shaking his head without looking up] Non volo.

MULIER I

Nōlī tam trīstis esse semper. Peius omnia fierī possent quam sunt. Mementō nōs omnēs adhūc vīvere, etiam sī vīvimus in paupertāte.

PUELLA

[At the table] Quam diū morāberis, māter? Famem tolerāre diūtius non possumus. Dā nobis tandem quod edāmus.

MULIER I

Dēsistite paulisper, ut bonās puellās decet, dum avus ad mēnsam adveniat.

SENEX

Nolite diutius me manere. Non venio.

MULIER I

Est hoc quidem dürissimum. Vir meus et fīliī absunt ut cibum nöbīs parent. In montibus labōrant inter maxima perīcula. Sed gravissimum est iam patrem dēspērāre. Edāmus, cāre pater. Nōnne vidēs ut puellae tē exspectent?

SENEX

Nihil dēsīderō. Edant sōlae, sī volunt.

The woman puts bowls with spoons before the children.

MULIER I

Edātis licet. Ego et avus posteā veniēmus.

[The children begin eating, while the woman begins sweeping the room. In a little while the door opens and a Neighbor Woman comes in excitedly.

VICINA

Audīvistisne nūntium — novissimum? Ēheu, nōs miserōs!

MULIER I

Quem dīcis nūntium? Quid accidit?

[58]

SCENE I

VICINA

Nonne audivisti? Vicinus noster, qui modo rediit ex urbe, dicit constitutum esse ut omnes Helvetii patriam suam relinquerent, neve quid secum portarent praeter frumentum et alias res quae necesse in itinere essent.

MULIER I

[Shaking her head sadly] Est miserrimum. Putāvī Orgetorīge mortuō illud perīculum nōn iam timendum esse. Is erat auctor omnium miseriārum quibus oppressae sumus.

V1CINA

Vērum est. Nihilō minus constituerunt facere quod ille semper volebat, ut relinqueremus domum, agrum, caprās et vaccam nostram, quae per omnēs hos annos lac et caseum praebuerunt. Cum haec propono animo, lacrimas tenere non possum.

[She weeps.

MULIER I

Est dūrum. Sed dūrius mihi vidētur caprās non habēre et sine lacte vīvere, sīcut nobīs vīvendum est. Sī līberī non essent, innocentēs parvulae meae, bene contenta essem omnia relinquere, vītam etiam, sī hoc modo miseriīs līberārī possēmus.

[The children come to her and cling to her dress.

VICINA

[Drying her eyes and sobbing] Tam bonās caprās, tam pulchram vaccam, quae semper sub eōdem tēctō habitābant, paene eiusdem familiae.

A Young Woman enters in cheerful excitement. As she does so, the Old Man, who has sat silent till now, gets up, shaking his head, and goes out slowly, thumping with his staff as he goes.

VIRGO

Nonne vos scitis quae nuntientur? Tandem, tandem facultas dabitur ex hac misera terra proficiscendi.

MULIER I

Γū quidem laeta es, quasi bona fortūna tibi ēvēnerit.

VIRGO

Rēctē dīcis. Bonam fortūnam nactae sumus. Omnibus Helvētiīs quam celerrimē ēmigrandum est. Neque hoc sōlum. Cōnstitūtum est ut omnia ignī crementur, domicilia, stabula, tōta oppida, ut novae sēdēs in novō agrō aliquō quaerantur.

VICINA

Tū es iuvenis. Tū nescīs quid sit patriam relinquere, ubi multōs annōs vītam ēgerīs.

VIRGO

Nec sciō nec cūrō. Hoc tantum sciō, bonam fortūnam nōbīs datam esse, ut hanc dūram, parvam, miseram terram relinquāmus.

The Old Man comes back and stands in silence at one side.

MULIER

Sī hoc vērum est, diūtius non cūro. Eant rēs ut itūrae sunt. Sīve vīvēmus, ut fame pereāmus, sīve statim moriēmur, minimē rēfert. [Wildly] Ferte ignem. Domum incendite. Posthāc cum bēstiīs in silvā habitābimus.

SCENE II

PUELLA

[The children have been looking on in wonder] Ubi autem mēnsās et lectulōs pōnēmus, sī in silvā erimus? Imber omnia madefaciet.

MULIER I

[Hugging and kissing them. The young woman turns away in disgust] Nölite timēre, cārī līberī, dī fortasse nōs adiuvābunt. Adhūc nōbīs cibum dedēre et vestīmenta. In futūrum quoque, sī eōs colēmus, nōs respicient.

SENEX

[Suddenly, raising his hands, in a shrill voice] Hic est finis Helvētiae!

SCENE II

The camp of the Helvetians on the Rhone. A tent at the back of the stage with a bench beside it. Two Helvetians are sitting on it, one busy with the buckle on a belt, the other with the string of a bow. Another with an enormous mustache is walking back and forth, stopping occasionally, with his hands in his pockets. He speaks first.

HELVETIUS I

Dēfessus sum morandō, manendō, nihil agendō. Sī modo signum darētur prōgrediendī. Quōmodo novās sēdēs occupātūrī sīmus dum nihil agimus, ego quidem nōn intellegō. Sī ducēs nostrī minimam partem eius virtūtis habērent quam Rōmānī habent, iam per prōvinciam eōrum iter fēcissēmus, iam sēdēs nostrās in potestāte habērēmus.

HELVETIUS II

[In a mocking tone] Tē hercule ducem esse oportuit. Tū autem nē cum mīlitibus quidem fuistī eō diē quō impetum fēcimus in vāllum Rōmānum. Nōn est tam facile iter facere per prōvinciam quam dīcere dē itinere.

HELVETIUS III

Idem ego sentiō. Meis oculis vidī mūrum quem exstrūxerant. Prīmum erat flūmen trānseundum, deinde cōnscendendus mūrus, dēnique oppugnanda castella atque cum Rōmānīs ipsīs pugnandum. [To Helvetius 1] Sī tū id facere vīs, mora nōn est per mē quidem. Aggredere!

HELVETIUS I

Omnēs vos, ut mihi vidētur, terrore tanto permotī estis, ut fugiātis, sī modo Romānus trāns flūmen spectat. [In disgust] Pudet mē tālium cīvium. Servī Romānī estis, non Helvētiī.

HELVETIUS 11

[Getting up angrily] Iam satis est. [Shaking his fist at Helvetius I] Id cavē iterum dīcās. Sī tibi non placet manēre apud Helvētios, haec [Pointing] est via ad castra Romāna. Īre licet per nos quidem.

HELVETIUS 1

Nōlī tam ferōx esse. Tū nōn sōlus es Helvētius. Dīcō vōs nihil tam bene posse quam fugere. [Sarcastically] Estis bonī mīlitēs!

HELVETIUS 111

Nisi tacēbis, reperiēs nos multo melius posse fugāre quam fugere. [Shaking his finger at Helvetius 1.

HELVETIUS I

[Defiantly] Dicō quod dīxī. Estis servī Rōmānōrum. Pugnāre neque vultis, neque potestis.

SCENE II

HELVETIUS II

Istud diūtius non feremus. Aut abībis tuā sponte, aut nos tē abīre cogēmus.

HELVETIUS 1

Facite quidquid vultis. Ego manēbō tam diū quam mihi placēbit.

[He sits down on the bench and folds his arms. The others lay down the things they have been working with; each takes him by an arm and they push him off the stage in spite of his struggles. In a few seconds they return without him and take up their work.

HELVETIUS II

Iam, ut putō, habēbimus ōtium. Istum scelestum in vincula conicī oporteat.

HELVETIUS III

Spērō eum numquam reditūrum esse. Satis est labōris et perīculōrum, etiam sī eius modī hominēs nōn adsunt quī nōs impediant.

[A blast of the trumpet is heard in the distance.

HELVETIUS II

Audi! Quid illud portendit?

HELVETIUS III

Ego quidem nesciō.

HELVETIUS II

[Getting up] Venī mēcum. Videāmus.

[They lay down their things on the bench and go out in the direction of the sound. When they are gone, HELVETIUS I comes back stealthily, looking about to see if they are there. Then he puts on the belt and picks up the bow.

HELVETIUS I

Di perdant istös praedōnēs! Reperient non se solos esse fortes. Hae res [Holding up the bow and glancing at the belt] magnō mihi erunt ūsuī. Tamen bonum consilium mihi dedērunt. Faciam quod iussērunt. Ībo in castra Romāna. Tum autem, [Shaking his fist] amīcī meī, sī vobīscum in proelio congrediar, cavēte, cavēte.

[Nodding his head significantly at these words, he sneaks off the stage. In a little while two women, Mulier I of Scene I and another, with the two Little Girls, come in and sit down on the bench to sew. The girls amuse themselves with their playthings, which they set up in the middle of the stage.

MULIER I

[Looking over a garment] Numquam vidī vestīmenta tam celeriter scissa et confecta. Nulla iam est pars quae pannīs non sit obsita.

[Holding up the garment, which is patched and full of holes.

MULLER H

Mea non sunt meliora. [Holding up her garment for inspection] Vidē. Hoc dīcō: vehementer mē paenitet Helvētiam relīquisse.

MULIER I

Quid facerēmus? Virī constituunt ut omnes exeant. Mulieres numquam rogantur quid velint. Pārendum est, sequendum est. Haec est fortūna fēminārum. [Laying aside the garment, calls to one of the girls] Adī iam, fīlia, ut tibi quoque pannum adsuam.

SCENE II

[The girl comes and stands by the woman, who mends at her dress.

MULIER 11

Mīror quod nondum audīvimus dē lēgātione quae missa est ad Dumnorīgem. Nūdius tertius iam abiērunt. Ēheu, quam metuo cogitāns hanc esse spem nostram ultimam. Sī haec dēficiet, nihil est reliquum quod spērēmus.

MULIER I

Noli desperare. Tū es bona aetate. Tua vita adhūc vivenda est. Non sunt omnia tam trīstia quam esse videntur. Vidē mē, provectam paene ad senectūtem. Multa pericula sustinui, multos laborēs exhausī. Tamen adhūc vivo. Bonus deus aliquis mē adhūc cūrat.

MULIER II

Potest esse ut dīcis. Vērum hoc non exspectāvi cum tam cupida essem domo proficisci. Numquam putāvi fore ut tēcto tam diū carērēmus.

A pompous, corpulent Official with a stuff comes strutting in.

Seeing the playthings in the street, he flares up.

MAGISTRATUS

[Pointing at the playthings] Hem, quid hoc est? Nonne vobis ēdixī ut liberī continerentur neve res eorum per viās sternerentur?

MULIER I

Nēminī nocent parvulae, nēminī sunt impedimentō. Cūr eīs nōn licet lūdere? Sunt satis miserae sine ēdictō tuō.

Ve

MAGISTRATUS

[Dictatorially] Dixi quod dixi. Hae res amoveantur. Haec sunt castra. Non estis in lūdo. Puellis non est locus in viā.

MULIER II

[Indignantly] Quasi non simus omnēs Helvētii, non virī solum, sed feminae et liberi!

> [He pays no attention to her and struts on pompously, as he came. The girls have meantime picked up some of their things, which they have in their arms. As they do so, two other Helvetian Women come in.

MULIER 111

[Walking rapidly half way across the stage and shaking her fists after the official Monstrum! Utinam te sub manibus meis haberem! [Grasping in the air with her hands] Non ita të gererës. [Sarcastically] Bonā fortūnā fruimur nōs Helvētii, dum tantās iniūriās patimur. [Patting one of the girls on the head] Nē timeās, puella mea, ponere licet rēs tuās in viā, sī vīs.

Helping them put the playthings on the ground.

MULIER IV

[She has seated herself with the other women] Iam multo diūtius in hoc loco manendum non erit.

MULIER II

Spērō ita fore ut dīcis. Cūr id putās?

MULIER IV

Audīvī lēgātionem rediisse ā Dumnorīge.

SCENE II

MULIER II

Hocine audīvistī? Quid dīcunt? Licēbitne iter facere per Haeduōs?

MULIER IV

Sine dubiō. Dīcitur enim magistrātus imperāvisse ut omnia parārēmus, quō celerius castra movērentur.

MULIER III

[Looking up from the children] Dīcitisne dē proficīscendō? Spērō illud aliquamdiū nōn fore. Mihi placet in hāc regiōne manēre. Hīc est flūmen, illīc [Pointing] sunt montēs. Praetereā nōn est perīculum, meā sententiā. Dum per prōvinciam nōn eāmus, Rōmānī nōs nōn impedient.

MULIER II

Est mīrum quod dīcis. Putāvī omnēs libentius in suīs sēdibus esse quam in itinere, ubi imbrem, frīgus, inopiam patiuntur.

Enter several Women carrying big bundles; they cross stage.

MULIER IV

Illae iam parātae sunt. Proficīscēmur sine dubiō. [Rising to go] Nostrās rēs quoque parārī oportet.

MULIER I

[Also rising] Facile parābuntur quae nōs habēmus. Nam pauca sunt.

MULIER IV

Spērō cum iterum consistāmus, id fore in sedibus nostrīs.

MULIER I

[To the Girls] Venite, puellae.

[They are picking up their things, assisted by Mulier III, when the curtain falls.

SCENE III

The Roman camp on the Rhone. Two Roman Soldiers are sitting on a bench before a tent. A third, MILES III, is lying on the ground asleep; he is ugly, with scars on his face.

MILES I

[Yawning and stretching his arms] Ō dulce ōtium! Hanc vītam laudō.

MILES II

Adicere dēbēbās: post labōrem. Dulce ōtium post gravissimum labōrem.

MILES I

Idem ego sentiō — post labōrem. Erat vērō labor, per diem, per noctem, sine intermissiōne. Nihil audīvimus nisi: "Mātūrāte, mīlitēs, opus est cōnficiendum. Adsunt hostēs." Duodecim annōs iam stīpendia faciō, tanta opera tam brevī tempore cōnfecta numquam vīdī.

LABIENUS, followed by two Soldiers walking abreast, marches across the stage. Miles I and II rise and salute, then sit down again. The sleeping soldier turns on his side so that he faces them, and takes a long breath. As he does so, his garment falls off his neck, exposing several gold chains.

MILES I

[Pointing] Ecce, quid habet amīcus noster pendēns dē collō?

[He goes to him softly, and cautiously unfastens the chains. They examine them.

MILES II

Mīror unde hic praedam suam cēperit. Catēnās aureās! Mēhercule, hac non sunt nātae in castrīs.

SCENE III

MILES I

Sunt pretiōsae. Nec sunt factae ab artifice Rōmānō. Aut Gallicae sunt aut Helvēticae, nisi fallor.

MILES II

Videāmus num catēnās suās dormiēns cognōscat.

[He rattles them at the sleeping man's ear. The latter wakes up, stares about him, then gets up and feels for the chains at his neck.

MILES III

[Not finding the chains] Fürtum! Quis catēnās meās abripuit? [Seeing them in their hands] Quid vōbīs est cum meīs rēbus? Reddite quod non est vestrum.

[Holding out his hand.

MILES I

Quod non est vestrum! Hoc nos decet tibi dicere. Unde has cepisti? Aut ostende ubi praedam tam pretiosam inveneris aut hanc nobiscum partire.

MILES III

Quid vobis venit in mentem? Si placet ioculari, in alio homine vos id facere malim.

MILES I

Hoc autem prius dēmōnstrandum est, ubi eius modī catēnae lateant.

MILES III

Incidī in puellam quandam in proximō oppidō, quae mē amat. Ab eā catēnās accēpī.

MILES II

[Laughing] Vērius est dicere senem aliquem cum uxōre tē necāvisse atque domum eōrum dīripuisse. Puellane tē amet? Nihil est magis rīdiculum. Id numquam crēdēmus.

MILES I

[Putting a chain around his neck, kisses his hand to Miles III] Grātiās agō, puella mea, tum quod mē amās, tum multō magis quod mihi tam pulchram catēnam dedistī.

MILES II

[Doing likewise] Grātiās agimus. Es bona puella. Semper nōs amā. Nōs semper tē amābimus et catēnās tuās.

[Kissing the chain about his neck.

MILES III

Per deōs vōs obtestor, nē lūdibriō mē habeātis. Reddātis quod est meum, ut estis bonī hominēs et fortēs mīlitēs.

MILES I

Non ita, sed eāmus ad lēgātum. Ille iūdex erit et dē catēnīs et dē puellā. [Miles I and Miles II go out.

MILES III

[As he follows them out, pleading] Reddātis, reddātis, semper vobis amīcus ero.

A short time after they are gone, enter Labienus with a soldier, Miles IV. He sits down.

LABIENUS

Ubi est trānsfuga? Addūcātur. [The soldier salutes and goes out. Labienus alone] Est sine dubiō Helvētius aliquis, fame cōnfectus, quī cibum quaerit in castrīs Rōmānīs.

SCENE III

Miles IV, together with another soldier, Miles V, brings in Helvetius I, whose hands are tied before him. He has on the belt of Scene II. Labienus speaks without looking at him.

Ubi hunc cēpistis?

MILES IV

Ad portam decumānam.

LABIENUS

Quid agēbat?

MILES IV

A

Nihil quod nos videremus. Hunc arcum [Showing the bow of Scene II] habēbat, nūllās tamen sagittās. Neque sē dēfendit cum eum comprehenderemus.

LABIENUS

Satis est. [Roughly, glancing at the Helvetian] Barbare, sī quid prō tē vīs dīcere, licet. Mihi vidēris esse Helvētius.

HELVETIUS 1

[In a surly tone] Eram Helvētius, iam non sum. Cum istā turbā latronum diūtius vivere nolo, qui honestum virum inrīdent et impediunt.

LABIENUS

Quō tempore eōrum castra reliquisti?

HELVETIUS I

Eā nocte quā profectionem parāvērunt.

LABIENUS

[Turning to him with new interest] Dicisne eos profectionem paravisse?

HELVETIUS I

Ita dixi.

LABIENUS

Iamne profecti sunt?

HELVETIUS I

Sine dubiō. Nam vehementer proficisci cupiēbant.

[Labienus beckons to Miles IV and speaks to him in a low voice, pointing and gesturing meantime. The soldier nods and goes away rapidly in the direction indicated.

LABIENUS

[To the Helvetian] Quid tibi est in animō facere ad castra Rōmāna?

HELVETIUS I

Parātus sum labōrāre. Faciam quidquid imperābitis.

LABIENUS

Quid putās faciendum esse sī nobīs īnsidiās parāverīs?

HELVETIUS I

Interficite mē, lacerāte, torquēte. Facite quidlibet.

LABIENUS

[To Miles V] Abdūcātur atque līberētur. Observētur tamen. Sī quid faciat, nisi quod ipse dīxit, coniciātur in vincula. [The soldier leads the Helvetian away. Labienus, rising, speaks to himself] Profectionem parant Helvētiī. Haec profectio prohibenda est. [Nodding several times] Caesar nondum rediit. Tamen faciemus quod poterimus solī.

SCENE IV

SCENE IV

The Roman camp on the Rhone, as in Scene III, with two soldiers, MILES I and II. The former is sitting on the ground turning a hand mill. The other is feeding the fire in an improvised stove. On it is a pot, into which he pours things and stirs them with a spoon.

MILES I

[Stops grinding] Iam dēfessus sum. Diēs alter veniet, quō iterum laborēmus.

MILES II

[Looking into the vessel containing the meal] Non satis est. Hoc ego solus comesse possim.

MILES I

Sī non placet quod faciō, tibi ipsī licet facere. Semper quereris.

[Getting up, kicks the mill.

MILES II

Lēniter, sōdēs. Petō nē statim īrāscāris, sī quid dīcō. [Stirring the pot] Semper fuimus amīcī. Quod meum est, tuum est. Nihil est quod sōlus habeam.

MILES I

[In a surly tone] Sī amīcus es, ut amīcum tē agere oportet.

MILES II

Sum vērō amīcus tuus, tū es sodālis meus, tū es familiārissimus omnium. [Slapping him on the back. The other grunts] Iam edāmus.

[He dishes out portions with a spoon into bowls. Then he makes Miles I sit down, gives him a bowl, sits by his side with his arm about him, and begins to eat. Before long Miles I begins to eat also. While they are eating, MILITES IV and V enter with MILES III, bound with chains, between them and pass across the stage. When Miles III sees Milites I and II, he shakes his fist at them, making his chains rattle.

MILES III

Di võs perdant, scelesti, insidiātõrēs, praedōnēs, improbi, qui mē amīcum appellātis et estis inimīcissimi.

[The soldiers pull him along roughly while he is still shaking his fist and talking.

MILES I

Amīcus noster iam catēnās ferreās habet, et maiōrēs quam aureae erant.

MILES II

Iste latrō! Aureās fūrātus est sine dubiō. Tālēs hominēs sunt indignī nōmine Rōmānō.

[The two continue eating, and presently a long blast on the trumpet is heard. They look up and listen. Another blast is heard.

MILES I

Cūr tubā canitur?

MILES II

[Excitedly] Imperator — imperator intrat castra. [He gets up, gesticulating] Caesar rediit. Mēhercule, tam brevī tempore eum non exspectābam.

Enter Praeco, walking rapidly straight ahead; after a step or two he stands still.

PRAECO

[Crying his announcement without turning or looking about] Audite, omnës militës! Audite quod clämatur! Caesar rediit cum legionibus. Iubet omnia parari sine mora ad profectionem.

SCENE IV

[He walks straight on and in a minute or two, while the following takes place, is heard making the same announcement in the distance. The two soldiers begin packing their clothes into bundles, tying together their utensils, rolling up blankets, etc. All this is done rapidly while they talk.

MILES 1

Ille scit imperare! Vix castra intravit, iam omnes se parant ad iter faciendum.

MILES II

Ita. Neque diŭ erit in itinere. Paucīs diēbus Helvētiōs consecuti erimus. Deinde eorum vita erit minimi preti.

MILES I

Tālem imperātōrem sequī placet, cum sciās, sī pugnēmus, nōs victōrēs fore.

MILES II

Bene accidit ut iam cēnāverīmus. Nisi hoc esset, fierī posset ut per tōtam noctem iter facerēmus sine cēnā.

MILES I

Putāsne nos ante noctem profectūros esse?

MILES II

Nesciō. Tamen omnia parārī nōn iussisset, nisi proficīscī constituisset.

MILES I

Quod ad mē attinet, proficīscātur. Parātus sum.

[Lifting his pack to test it.

MILES II

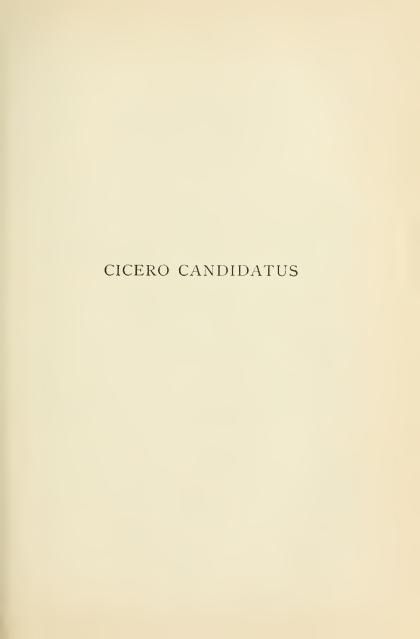

Et ego.

[The curtain is drawn. A trumpet begins to blow in the distance meantime, and continues, drawing nearer. When the curtain rises again, CAESAR and LABIENUS are seen standing on a platform a foot or two high, with soldiers standing all about. The trumpet stops, and Caesar speaks.

CAESAR

Tandem redii, mīlites. Ut mihi nūntiātur, Helvētii manibus nostrīs paene ēlapsī sunt. Per Sequanōs et Haeduōs īre contendunt. Id fierī nōn potest sine perīculō populī Rōmānī. Quārē eōs ab itinere prohibendōs cēnseō. Rediī cum quīnque legiōnibus aliīs. Hārum auxiliō facile erit eōs cōgere imperiō populī Rōmānī obtemperāre. Parātī este. Intrā duās hōrās proficīscēmur.

[The soldiers raise their swords in the air and sheathe them again. Then, as the trumpet sounds, they begin marching off past him, two abreast, at left. They pass around behind the stage, or behind a screen at the back of the stage, and fall in line again at right, thus giving the impression of a very long line. The trumpet is blowing a march, while Caesar stands with Labienus, looking on. The marching is still in progress when the curtain falls.

(When Cicero was Candidate)

Personae

PASTORES I and II, two shepherds (Scenes I, III, IV).

AGRICOLA, a farmer (Scenes I, III, IV).

MESSŌRĒS I, II, and III, three young harvesters (Scenes I, III, IV). SERVAE I and II, two women, servants in Cicero's country home

(Scene II).
HELVIA, Cicero's mother (Scene II).

CICERO, candidate for the consulship (Scenes II, III, IV).

COPA, a woman keeping an inn (Scenes III, IV).

CALVA, a young girl, her servant (Scenes III, IV).

MULIERES I, II, III, three women of Arpinum (Scenes III, IV).

SENEX, an old man (Scenes III, IV).

ADULĒSCENTĒS RŌMĀNĪ I and II, two young men from Rome (Scenes III, IV).

VIRGINES RÖMĀNAE I and II, two young women from Rome (Scenes III, IV).

TURBA, people attending Cicero and in his audience, including the shepherds, the farmer, the harvesters, the innkeeper, her servant, the old man, the young and old women of Arpinum, and, in Scene III, the two young men and two young women from Rome.

VIRGINES ARPĪNĀTĒS I, II, and III, three young women of Arpinum (Scene IV).

MENDĪCA, a beggar woman (Scene IV).

PLACE: Near and at Arpinum.

TIME: 64 B.C.

SCENE I

The country near Arpinum. Two shepherds in sheepskin cloaks, with crooks in their hands.

PASTOR I

[Coming in quickly] Tandem të invënī, sceleste. Tū es ille quem quaesīvī. [Pointing at him] Tū! Audīsne? Tū!

PASTOR II

Ouid mē vīs? Cūr hercule facis tantum tumultum?

PASTOR I

Cūr faciam tumultum? Quasi tū nesciās. Em, hic bonus vir nescit, numquam vīdit, numquam audīvit, quis caprum meum abstulerit. Dī bonī, crēdō tē numquam caprum vīdisse in tōtā vītā tuā. Ō, mihi ignōsce [With a mock bow], tū nōn es pāstor, tū es senātor, es cōnsul, es imperātor, es rēx rēgum.

PASTOR II

Tū autem, nisi fallor, hominem invēnistī quī bonum vīnum vēndit. Moneō ut corpus tuum pōnās sub arbore aliquā et hōram ūnam aut duās dormiās. Tunc fortasse melius dīcere poteris quid velīs.

PASTOR I

[Angrily] Latro, ubi est caper meus?

PASTOR II

Caper tuus? [Laughing] Tū habeās caprum? Tū es mercenārius, es servus dominī tuī. Nihil habēs, neque caprum, neque ovem, neque agnum, neque gallīnam quidem.

PASTOR 1

Sum mercenārius fortasse, sed non sum latro, non sum fūr, non capros aliorum hominum aufero. Cum fēci aliquid, non dīco mē nihil fēcisse, sīcut tū facis. Dominus meus faxo dē hāc rē cognoscat, hoc tibi dīco. Tum vidēbimus utrum tū caprum redditūrus sīs necne.

PASTOR II

Dic domino tuo quidquid tibi in mentem veniet. Ille te bene cognovit neque tibi magis credet quam si tu nihil dixeris. Tamen hoc memento, me quoque habere dominum, qui contra te et tuum et omnes tuos et totam familiam vestram bene scit se defendere.

PASTOR 1

[Disgusted and angry] Cūr tandem non taces? Taedet me istum elamorem audire. [Louder] Caprum volo, non verba tua.

PASTOR II

Est ut dixī. Dum nihil vidēbās, et nihil audiēbās, et nihil faciēbās, nisi vīnum bibēbās, caprōs tuōs male numerāvistī. Sī mē cōnsulēs, dormī, amīce, dormī. Deinde iterum numerā caprōs tuōs. Numerus fortasse est maior quam putābās. Interim valē [Slapping him on the back with his crook], et valcat dominus tuus.

[Knocks the other's crook out of his hand and runs away.

SCENE I

PASTOR 1

[Picking up his crook, puffing and shaking his fist] Redī tū, sī audēs. Addūc dominum, addūc omnem familiam, sī grānum fortitūdinis in corpore habēs. Addūc omnēs, inquam, sī pugnāre volunt. Ego vōs cōnficiam [Waving his crook], ego vōs cōnficiam, ego vōs—

AGRICOLA

[Entering] Eho, quis est ille quem tū conficere vīs? Num quis tibi iniūriam fēcit?

PASTOR I

Iniūriam fēcit? Caprum mihi abstulit iste fūr, iste latrō, iste scelestus, iste — [Shaking his fist] iste —

AGRICOLA

Dēsiste tandem. Iam abiit et capros abēgit. Haec rēs alio die tam bene cūrābitur quam hodie. Cūr hoc non dīces domino tuo? Ille sibi caprum recipiet sine morā.

PASTOR I

Caprum recipiet? Satis sciō quōmodo. Baculum meum prehendet et mē tam diū verberābit dōnec nesciam an ipse caper sim. Sī tū dominum meum nōssēs, id nōn dīcerēs.

AGRICOLA

Age, satis iam de dominō. Pereat caper! Vidēsne vesperum adesse? Tempus est ut caprōs domum agās. Deinde venī mēcum in oppidum. Ibi sunt multī hominēs. Ut dīcunt, Cicerō aditūrus est ut habeat cōntiōnem. Petit cōnsulātum atque amīcōs et vīcīnōs patris suī ōrat ut comitiorum die Romam veniant. Eorum auxilio sperat se fore consulem. Est iam clarus homo in urbe Roma. Sed hic est natus.

PASTOR 1

Ita. Saepe eum vīdī cum parvus esset. Bellus puer erat et mānsuētus. Ego quoque spērō eum fore cōnsulem. Clārus erit ille diēs cum domum redībit cum duodecim līctōribus

AGRICOLA

Age modo. Dicunt eum ante noctem adventūrum. Sī properābis, cum comitātū eum per viam euntem vidēre poterimus.

Manē paulisper. Postquam caprōs domum abēgerō, tē ad pontem conveniam.

AGRICOLA

Ibi të exspectābō.

[They go away.

Enter three Harvesters with sickles in their hands. They are going in the same direction as those who have just left the stage. One of them, Messor II, is limping behind.

MESSOR 1

Properā, Sexte. Celerius non ambulās quam testūdō. Nisi pedibus tuīs vim iniciēs, neque rem neque hominem ūllum vidēbimus. Certō sciō Cicerōnem et omnēs cēterōs iam praeteriisse et in oppidō esse iam diū.

MESSOR 11

Celerius îre non possum. Dolorem capio e dextro pede. Credo aliquid inesse in calceo quod mihi dolet.

MESSOR III

Abī, nihil habēs in calceō. Stultitiam habēs in corde.

SCENE II

MESSOR II

Manēte, precor, dum videō quid sit in calceō meō.

[Sits down to take off his shoe.

MESSOR III

Si tū remanēre vīs, remanē. Nōs ībimus. Vidēre volumus quid accidat in oppidō. Valē.

[Messor I and Messor III go in the same direction as Agricola.

MESSOR II

[Pausing] Hem, iam abiērunt. [To the audience] Vīdistisne umquam tālēs amīcōs? Sī quid est quod eīs faciat incommodum, etiam sī optimus eōrum amīcus mortuus sit, sī pater, sī māter, sī fīlius et fīlia gravissimō morbō adficiantur, tamen abeant. Sed mihi necesse est vidēre quid hoc sit in calceō meō. [Pulls off his shoe and takes out a stone] Pol, nōn est mīrum sī dolet pēs, cum tālī lapide.

[He throws it away, and limps off the stage, carrying his shoe in his hand.

SCENE II

The atrium of CICERO'S country house near Arpinum. Two maidservants are engaged at putting the room in order while they speak.

SERVA I

Quandō dīcunt dominum adventūrum?

SERVA 11

Nesciō, nisi quod scrīpsit crās sē ōrātiōnem habēre velle Arpīnī in oppidō.

SERVA I

Hodiē igitur ante noctem hūc in vīllam perveniet.

[83]

SERVA 11

Veniat modo ante noctem. Nam vigilare ad mediam noctem nolo.

SERVA 1

Id crit necesse sine dubiō. Tōta domus, tōta familia vigilābit dum veniat. Hoc domina ipsa imperāvit. Scīmus omnēs quam dīligēns, quam sevēra sit.

SERVA II

Ita semper fuit. Omnia providebat et curabat, cum dominus senex adhuc viveret. Multos annos enim propter valetudinem ipse paene nihil agere poterat.

SERVA I

Meminī tōtōs diēs eum mānsisse in cubiculō suō. Tamen semper librum aliquem habēbat in manibus. Semper legēbat, postquam in lectulō iacēre coāctus est. Meā sententiā tam adsiduē legēns sibi ipse et valētūdinī nocēbat.

SERVA II

Ita. Diūtius vīvunt eī quī librōs nōn tractant.

Enter HELVIA, Cicero's mother, looking about the room.

HELVIA

Suntne omnia parāta? Agite, properandum est. Nam puer mihi nūntiāvit ā summō colle sē hominēs vīdisse hūc venientēs. Nōn dubitō quīn sit filius meus cum comitātū suō. Brevī tempore aderunt. [Walks about the room, examining things and giving directions] Haec sella ibi pōnenda est. [Points to a place, and Serva I moves the chair to it. Then Helvia unlocks a cupboard] Ubi sunt pōcula?

SCENE II

SERVA II

Sunt in culinā. Ea nondum adportāvi.

HELVIA

Adportanda sunt omnia. [Serva II goes out.] Suntne cubicula parāta? Nōnnūllī hominēs adventūrī sunt, quibus hospitium praebēbitur.

SERVA I

Sunt parāta omnia.

Serva II returns with the cups and puts them in the cupboard, which Helvia locks immediately.

SERVA 11

Adpropinquat dominus, ut dixit puer. Iam ante portam est.

HELVIA

Ante portam? Id ipsa vidēbō.

Goes out.

CICERO

[Outside] Salvē, salvē plūrimum, mātercula mea. Quid agis?

HELVIA

[Outside] Et tū salvē, mī filī, gaudeō, gaudeō tē advēnisse.

Enter Helvia and Cicero hand in hand, looking at each other fondly.

Ut mihi vidētur, paene factus es senex. Rōmae nimis labōrās. Sine dubiō dēfessus es. Iam autem quiēscere licet. Haec est sella patris tuī.

CICERO

[Jesting] Errās, mātercula mea. Nōn sum dēfessus, neque senex. Puer fīō cum tē videō. Tū cōnsīdās, quaesō. [He makes his mother take the chair, and, turning to look for another, sees the servants] Salvēte ambae. Omnēs incolās salvōs esse videō in patriā meā.

SERVAE

[As Cicero shakes their hands] Salvē multum, domine.

[One of them places a chair for him beside his mother.

CICERO

[Sitting down] Iam, mātercula mea, dīc quid gestum sit mē absente. Multa audīre cupiō.

HELVIA

Nondum mihi tempus esse videtur narrandi. Scio post tam longum iter te esse fame confectum. [To the servants] Parate cenam sine mora. [The servants go out.

CICERO

Iam vērē loqueris, mātercula. Ut dīxī, puer factus sum, et puerī meministī fortasse quantum ēsse possint. [Helvia goes to the cupboard, unlocks it, and begins rearranging things in it. Cicero gets up and stands by, watching her] Tempora mūtantur nec nōs mūtāmur in illīs. Es semper eadem, mātercula mea. Meministīne quōmodo lagēnās inānēs obsignāverīs ūnā cum plēnīs? Dīcēbās id tē fēcisse nē servī eās exsiceārent. Oblīta erās eōdem modō tē fīliōs tuōs prohibēre. Tē cūstōdem aerārī esse oportuit, mātercula. Tum esset tūta pecūnia pūblica.

HELVIA

[Laughing] Īdem es ioculātor qui semper fuistī. Putāvī hominem qui consulātum peteret cum gravitāte se gerere debēre.

SCENE III

CICERO

Iterum errās, mātercula. Hīs temporibus, quō magis ioculēris, eō mātūrius cōnsul fīās.

HELVIA

Id non credo.

[Cicero laughs.

SERVA I

[Entering] Cēna est parāta, domina.

CICERO

[Clapping his hands] Hanc vocem ante omnia audire cupivi. Iam eāmus, mātercula.

[Takes Helvia by the arm and goes with her toward the door, following the servant, as the curtain falls.

SCENE III

The public square of Arpinum on the following morning. At the right a small table with chairs. At the left, projecting from the wall, is the pipe of a fountain, with steps below.

Enter COPA from behind the table.

COPA

[Gathering up dishes from the table and rearranging chairs] Numquam tanta multitūdō hominum in hōc oppidō fuit meā quidem memoriā. Omnia comēdērunt, vīnum omne combibērunt. [Holding up a bottle to show it is empty] Nōn querar tamen. Nōbīs sunt ūsuī, dummodo pecūniam habeant. [Calling into the door of the inn] Calva! Calva! [After a pause] Ubi est ista puella? [Louder] Calva!

CALVA

[Coming out] Quid vīs, domina?

[87]

COPA

[Mocking her] Quid vis, domina? Nonne vides quae sunt in hac mensa? Auferenda sunt. Id volo.

[Calva begins gathering up things and carrying them away, followed by Copa.

Enter three Women with jars or pails on their heads, and stop at the fountain, taking turns at filling their vessels while they talk.

MULIER I

Audivistisne iam de vicino nostro?

MULIER II

Non audīvī. Die nobis quid sit.

MULIER 1

Cognovistis illum sane, senem iam septuaginta annorum.

MULIER II

Bene. Cum patre meō fuit in lūdō, cum puerī essent.

MULIER I

[Looking toward the entrance] St! Tacēte, tacēte. Ut dīcunt, lupus in fābulā.

Enter a tottering Old Man, with a staff and wearing a garland on his head; he walks slowly across the stage.

[When he comes opposite, MULIER I addresses him saucily] Salvē, pater.

SENEX

[With a bow, in a shrill voice] Salvēte, filiae.

[While the women are whispering to each other behind his back he walks out slowly, as he came in.

SCENE III

MULIER III

[When he is gone, to Mulier I] Quid nārrātūra erās dē hōc vetulō? Quid eī accidit?

MULIER I

Nihil accidit. Ut vidētis, nondum mortuus est. Nē morbo quidem laborat, nisi amor morbus est.

MULIER II

Hicine amet? Quam mulierem? Tālem senem, ex temporibus maiōrum, illum antīquum hominem amāre?

MULIER I

Est rīdiculum. Dīcunt eum puellam in mātrimōnium dūcere velle.

MULIER III

Est vērē rīdendum. Nihil est in orbe terrārum quod hominēs non faciant, sī amant. Sed quae est illa quam dūcere constituit?

MULIER I

In hāc rē ostendit senex quam rīdiculus sit ipse. Nam puellam sēdecim annōrum dūcere vult.

MULIER II

[Laughing] Vēr et autumnum coniūnctōs vidēbimus. Senex cānō capite et puella quae pūpās vix relīquerit. Ex hōc mātrimōniō nihil bonī exspectō.

MULIER III

Id non dixerim. In tāli rē non semper coniectūram facere licet.

MULIER I

Etiam sī sunt eādem aetāte, nē hoc quidem semper facit mātrimōnium beātum.

MULIER III

Vērum est. Tamen senex avus puellārum, non marītus esse dobet, meā sententiā. Quid video? [Looking toward the entrance] Quī sunt omnēs illī hominēs quī per viam hūc veniunt?

MULIER II

Nonne tū audīvistī Ciceronem advēnisse, quī hoc anno consulātum petit, quī hodie contionem habitūrus est nostro in oppido?

MULIER III

Quem Ciceronem?

MULIER II

Eum qui praedium habet non longe ab hoc loco.

MULIER III

Novi neque hominem neque praedium.

MULIER II

Oblīta sum tē hīc nōn diū habitāvisse. Erat bona familia illa, pater et māter cum duōbus fīliīs, ē quibus hic M. Cicerō est maior nātū.

MULIER I

[Looking up the street] Ut mihi vidētur, rē vērā laetī sunt hominēs propter eius reditum. Vix prōcēdere potest, tam conferta eum circumstat turba.

TURBA

[Shouting behind the scenes] Salvē Cicerō! Salvē Cicerō!

MULIER II

[Pointing] Iam procedunt. Iam nos quoque eum videre poterimus.

SCENE III

CICERO and the Crowd come upon the stage. The women who spoke above remain where they are. Among those following CICERO are all the characters of Scene I, and others, as indicated in the Personae. The Shepherd and the Farmer stand at the edge of the crowd, where they can be seen by the audience. CICERO is smiling, bowing, and shaking hands as the crowd moves around him.

PASTOR I

Est quidem bonā speciē et splendidissimā togā indūtus est. [Points, and they both nod hard and seriously.

AGR1COLA

Tālēs togās nēmō in nostrō oppidō habet.

[Points, and they both shake their heads hard and solemnly.

PASTOR I

Diū iam Rōmae habitat. Sine dubiō magnam pecūniam habet. [Both nod as before.

AGRICOLA

Sine dubiō.

[They nod again.

PASTOR 1

[Touching his fellow on the elbow] Est grandis vir.

They nod.

CICERO

[Continues to shake hands and addresses a few words to the individuals] Salvē, mī amīce — Tē et patrem tuum bene cognōvī — Vīvitne adhūc māter tua?

TURBA

[The crowd gradually pass on, and leave the stage at the opposite side. As Cicero follows, shouts are heard behind the scenes] Salvē Cicerō! Salvē Cicerō!

[Two young men and two young women from Rome, all neatly and carefully dressed, turn back as the crowd disappears, and sit down around the table.

The women at the fountain walk away with their water meantime.

ADULESCENS ROMANUS I

[Rapping on the table] Copa! Copa!

[The other three laugh at him.

ADULESCENS ROMANUS II

Ego tibi ostendam quōmodo cōpa vocanda sit in hōc oppidō. [He gets up, pounds the table with a stick, so that the young women shrink back, and calls with all his might] Cōpa! Cōpa! Ubi es, cōpa?

Enter COPA running.

COPA

[Dropping a curtsy and smiling] Quid iubētis?

VIRGO ROMANA I

[Sternly] Copam semper adesse oportet, ut statim parata sit hospitium praebere. [Copa curtsies and smiles.

ADULESCENS ROMANUS II

[In a loud voice, as before] Nos sumus fame confecti. Toto hoc die nihil edimus, nihil bibimus.

VIRGO ROMANA II

Tam miserō in oppidō nihil est quod urbānīs hominibus sit idōneum

VIRGO ROMANA I

Quid habētis?

COPA

[Curtsying and ingratiatingly emphasizing each word with a smile] Habēmus ōva, cāseum, vīnum, pānem. Sunt omnia bona.

SCENE III

ADULESCENS ROMANUS I

[Wearily] Adferantur omnia celerrimē. Audīsne? Celerrimē! [Copa goes quickly.

ADULESCENS ROMANUS II

[Mocking her] Ōva, cāseum, vīnum [Making a wry face], pānem, [Beginning to show interest and touching his neighbor on the shoulder, as if surprised at the discovery] pānem, habent pānem.

[They all laugh.

CALVA shyly brings a loaf of bread on a tray, with which she stands a short distance off.

ADULESCENS ROMANUS II

Heus, puella, pānem adfer. [Calva sets the tray on the table and goes out. Adulescens II takes the loaf, rises, and holds it up] Pānem—pānem. [They laugh. He breaks the loaf ostentatiously, giving each a piece, and saying each time] Pānem. Hōc in oppidō edunt pānem. [They laugh and begin to eat.

The Copa comes out with a large tray containing the other things.

This she holds while the young women take them off, one by one, and set them on the table.

ADULESCENS ROMANUS II

[Still standing, with an exaggerated gesture and a loud voice, as each article is placed on the table] Ōva! Cāseum! Vīnum!

[Then as the Copa starts to go, he stands in her way, and when she tries to dodge him, does so again, holding out his arms to keep her from going past him. The others of the party laugh and come to join him, and they form a circle about her by grasping hands. Thus they dance around her, the girls singing lines 1 and 3, the boys 2 and 4, while 5 is sung twice by all together.\(^1\)

Tē tenēmus, cōpa; Nē velīs abīre, Vīnum sī praebēre nōlīs, Vīnum clārum, suāve, mīte, Vīnum quod sit optimum.

Tē laudāmus, cōpa, Dulcis et benigna, Quamquam nīl habēs in mēnsā Praeter ōva, praeter pānem, Praeter dūrum cāseum.

SCENE IV

The public square of Arpinum, as in the preceding scene. Enter three Girls of the town, with flowers in their hair and garlands over their shoulders.

VIRGO I

[Looking about] Mîror ubi sint adulēscentēs. Nondum vēnērunt.

VIRGO II

Id non est mīrum. Semper sunt tardiorēs.

VIRGO III

Modo omnēs adveniant. Non est iūcundum sī pars modo adest.

VIRGO II

Nē commōta sīs dē istā rē. Bene sciō Mārcum tuum adfutūrum esse.

¹ Music on p. 173.

SCENE IV

VIRGO III

Mārcum meum? Non est Mārcus meus. Mihi omnēs sunt similēs.

VIRGO II

Hoc vīs dīcere — omnēs esse similēs praeter ūnum. Nōnne eum vīdī ante iānuam vestram ambulantem et respicientem, ambulantem et respicientem, quasi aliquam puellam exspectet? [She laughs and points at Virgo III.

VIRGO III

Abī tū cum facētiis tuis. Putās omnēs semper dē adulēscentibus cōgitāre sī tū id facis.

Enter an old beggar woman, MENDICA, with a small bag on her arm and a staff in her hand. She stoops and walks slowly. Approaching the girls, she holds out her hand and speaks in a whining, sing-song voice.

MENDICA

Pauper sum, virginēs. Date mī aliquid, quō vītam sustentāre possim.

VIRGO I

Abī tū! nīl dabimus.

MENDICA

Atqui, si benignae estis, dabitis aliquid.

VIRGO II

[Louder] Nihil dabimus! Nonne audīvistī? Abī!

MENDICA

[Shaking her staff at them] Estis dürae. Dī vöbīs malum dent, ut dignae estis!

[She hobbles away, grumbling and talking to herself.

VIRGO III

[Listening] Iam veniunt. Nonne audītis?

[Shouts of "Salvē Cicerō!" are heard in the distance.

TURBA

[Behind the scenes the people are presently heard singing, in vigorous rhythm, like a college yell]

Salvē Rōma, salvē Cicerō, salvēte omnēs incolae! Hoc est oppidum quod laudāmus, māter clāra prīncipum; Hic est ille quem probāmus, hunc faciēmus cōnsulem.

[The crowd comes in shouting] Salvē Cicerō! Salvē Cicerō!

MESSORES

[Addressing the girls] Salvēte, omnēs virginēs, pulchrae et benignae!

VIRGINES

[Replying] Salvēte, omnēs iuvenēs, validī et fortēs!

[The Messores and Virgines stand together at one side of the stage, and occasionally talk to each other during the speech.

TURBA

[Continuing to shout] Salvē Cicerō! Salvē Cicerō!

[Meanwhile Cicero mounts the steps of the fountain, where he smiles and bows, then raises his hand for silence.

CICERO

Multō iūcundior, cīvēs mei, quam dīcere possum, est mihi vestra acclāmātiō. Hic diēs mihi est grātus et laetus per sē, quō mihi multōs post annōs vōs iterum vidēre licet. Laetiōrem eum fēcistis vestrā benevolentiā. Haec est patria mea. Hīc sum nātus.

SCENE IV

TURBA

Nos quoque hic sumus nati.

CICERO

Hōc gaudeō, amīcī. Ante oculōs videō nōn sōlum meōs, sed patris et omnium meōrum amīcōs et benevolentēs. Cum Rōmam laudem, prō eā, dominā gentium, parātus sim pugnāre, parātus, sī necesse sit, vītam āmittere, Arpīnum, patrium oppidum, nōn sōlum laudō, sed amō, et tōtō animō semper amābō.

TURBA

Arpīnum est clārum oppidum! Salvē Arpīnum!

CICERO

Quis hoc oppidum non amet, non omni modo iuvare et servare velit, cuius incolae rüstici, antiqui moris, patriae amantes semper fuerunt, ubi clarissimus ille omnium Romanorum, C. Marius, vicinus et familiaris vester et patrum vestrorum, habitavit?

TURBA

Clārus vir est Marius! Est conservator rei publicae!

C1CERO

Ā cīvibus vestrī similibus imperium Rōmānum sustentātur et dēfenditur. Sine vōbīs neque mīlitiae clārī neque domī ōtiōsī et sēcūrī esse possumus. Tālibus cīvibus opus est, praecipuē hōc tempore, quō improbī in urbe coniūrātiōnem faciunt et tōtum imperium dēlēre cupiunt.

TURBA

Dī perdant scelestos istos! Dī perdant latrones!

[97]

CICERO CANDIDATUS

C1CERO

Sī vōs nōn nōssem, dīcerem: Excitāte vōs, incumbite ad salūtem vestram et reī pūblicae. Id autem nōn est necesse. Vōs ipsī scītis quid sit faciendum.

TURBA

Scimus! Scimus! Parātī sumus.

CICERO

Consules creandi sunt qui vitam suam et fortunam minoris aestiment quam vestras res, quam potestatem atque dignitatem rei publicae. Talem consulem, si vestra voluntas faciet ut illud adipiscar fastigium, testor deos immortales me futurum esse.

TURBA

Cicerō sit consul! Cicero sit consul! Salve Cicero!

CICERO

Ūnum hoc võs moncō, idem quod omnēs. Ferte suffrāgia prō rē pūblicā. Id sōlum vōs numquam paenitēbit.

[Loud applause and shouting. Cicero bows and waves his hand in acknowledgment, then passes out followed by the crowd, which begins singing as soon as he starts to go out, and continues as it moves away, keeping step with the rhythm of the lines. They are still singing when the curtain falls.

Salvē Rōma, salvē Cicerō, salvēte omnēs incolae! Hoc est oppidum quod laudāmus, māter clāra prīncipum; Hic est ille quem probāmus, hunc faciēmus cōnsulem.

(The Conspiracy)

Personae

CATILINA, the leader of the conspirators (Scene I).

LAECA

CETHĒGUS

CĒPĀRIUS Conspirators (Scene I).

Cassius

LENTULUS

PHILANDER, a confidential servant in Laeca's house (Scenes I, II). SERVAE I, II, III, and IV, four maidservants in Laeca's house

(Scene II).

CURIUS, a former conspirator (Scene II).

FULVIA, loved by Curius (Scene III).

STAPHYLA, her maid (Scene III).

TERENTIA, Cicero's wife (Scene IV).

TULLIA, his daughter (Scene IV).

Mīlitēs I, II, III, and IV, soldiers guarding Cicero's house (Scene IV).

SERVA CICERŌNIS, a maidservant in Cicero's house (Scene IV).

CICERŌ, the consul (Scene IV).

CATO, friendly to Cicero (Scene IV).

VIRI I and II, two men friendly to Cicero (Scene IV).

PLACE: Rome.

TIME: November 6-8, 63 B.C.

CONTURATIO

SCENE I

The house of M. LAECA. It is night. LAECA and CATILINA are present. The latter wears a purple cloak, the others togas only.

CATILINA

[Walking up and down in agitation, while Laeca is seated] Hōra adest quā conveniendum erat. Cūr nōndum adsunt? Fēcistīne omnēs certiōrēs?

LAECA

Sunt prōvīsa omnia. Servum quem habeō fidēlissimum ad omnēs mīsī. Putō eōs mox adfutūrōs esse.

CATILINA

[Still walking] Numquam satis est provisum. Consulem qui vigilat, nisi vigilantes fallere non possumus. Estne omnis familia tua fidelis?

LAECA

Sunt servī, sunt neglegentēs. Neque sciunt, neque cūrant eās rēs quae ad sē nōn pertinent.

CATILINA

Est laetum quod dīcis. Caveās velim ut eī sōlī admittantur quibus fidem habēmus. Curius praesertim vidē nē domum intret. Est amīcissimus Fulviae. Ista fēmina mihi suspicionem movet. Est nimis cūriosa, nimis dīligēns, atque, ut dīcunt, Ciceronī ipsī non inimīca.

CONTURATIO

PHILANDER

[Entering, to Laeca] Adest vir qui colloquium petit.

LAECA

Quis est?

PHILANDER

Nesciō. Est capite opertō.

LAECA

Quid dixit?

PHILANDER

Dixit sē petere libertātem cīvium.

LAECA

Admittātur. Omnēs admittantur quī id dīcent.

[Philander goes out.

CETHEGUS

[Entering and shaking hands with Laeca and Catiline] Salvēte.

CATILINA

Sõlusne venīs? Est iam multa nox, neque quisquam praeter tē adest.

CETHEGUS

Ita mihi tūtius vīsum est. Dum viae sunt plēnae hominum, coniūrātōs melius est manēre domī.

CEPARIUS

[Entering] Salvēte omnēs quī lībertātem amant.

[102]

SCENE I

Enter Cassius puffing; he is fat.

CASSIUS

Dēfessus sum. [Waving his hand] Salvēte omnēs. [Puffing] Est haec via ardua. Perdant mē omnēs dī deaeque, sī nōn esset facilius domī manēre quam īre per noctem in hunc abditum locum.

[He puffs and sits down heavily.

CATILINA

Laborandum est, Cassī, sī lībertātem reciperāre volumus. Nisi tē bene cognossem et fidem tuam, putārem tē non esse nostrum, sed consulis.

CASSIUS

Ignoscite, sodālēs. Satis vēlocem mē inveniētis, cum impetus faciendus est in istum servum senātorium. [Shaking his fist] Dī eum perdant cum omnī manū suā!

CETHEGUS

Dis non opus est. Ad hanc rem ego sum paratus. Duos homines iam habeo, qui negotium conficiant.

CATILINA

Suntne certissimi? Confidisne eis in omnibus rebus?

CETHEGUS

Sunt tam fidēlēs quam ego sum ipse. Nēminem vīdī, nē nōbīs quidem exceptīs, quī tam cupidus sit istīus hominis interficiendī.

CATILINA

Mīror unde sit tibi tanta fīdūcia. Mementō hoc esse perīculōsum. Sī ūnus ex omnibus sit in minimā parte suspectus, tōtam rem perdere possit.

CETHEGUS

Fac periculum quodvis. Caput meum sit pignus eorum fidei.

CATILINA

[Shaking hands with Cethegus] Ignosce. Tibi credo. [Still holding his hand, to the others] Placetne ut hoc negotium Cethego tradatur?

OMNES

Placet.

[They shake hands with Cethegus. Meantime Laeca rings a little bell, and walks about rubbing his hands with satisfaction.

LAECA

[When Philander appears] Adferātur vīnum.

[Philander goes out.

CEPARIUS

Nondum omnés adsunt. Ubi est Lentulus?

CASSILIS

Ubi sit Lentulus? [He laughs aloud and puffs. He is seated, the rest are standing.] Sine dubiō auspicia facere volēbat, ut scīret quem locum auctōritātis ipse habitūrus esset. Nē ignōrētis, Lentulus est tertius ille Cornēlius, quem librī indicant rēgem huius urbis futūrum esse.

[He laughs, puffs, coughs, and fans himself with his hand. Philander comes in with a big bowl, which he sets on a table. Serva II follows with a tray of glasses. Laeca points to Cassius, whom Philander serves, ladling the wine from the bowl. The girl sets the tray on the table and both slaves go out.

SCENE I

LENTULUS

[Entering] Salvēte, amīcī lībertātis. Veniam petō quod tam sērus accēdō.

[He shakes hands. Cassius, still holding his glass, remains seated while he shakes hands.

CATILINA

Iam est constituendum quid quisque faciat. Cethegus videbit ut consul tollatur. Id constitutum est.

LENTULUS

Hoc mihi faciendum putāvī. Librī enim mihi magnam partem huius reī attribuunt. Non dubito quīn ipse sim tertius ille Cornēlius ad quem potestās huius urbis ventūra sit. Igitur mihi in urbe manendum est.

CASSIUS

[Laughing] Nonne hoc vobis praedixi?

[He puffs and fans himself.

CATILINA

[Stepping in front of Lentulus and pointing his finger at him] Iam prīmum tibi dīcō, in hāc rē quemque id factūrum esse quod ab omnibus cōnstitūtum sit. [Drawing himself up and thumping his breast] Adhūc ego sum dux, ā vōbīs ipsīs dēlēctus. [Looking around at the others, who nod] Per trēs annōs cōnsulātum petīvī, tōtam invidiam inimīcōrum in mē recēpī. Omnium opīniōne ego sum caput coniūrātiōnis. Meum est summum perīculum. Mea igitur sit summa dignitās. Nihil tamen postulō ante cēterōs. Quid futūrum sit in posterum, tunc vidēbimus cum aderit necessitūdō videndī. Iterum dīcō: Nunc cuique faciendum quod ab omnibus cōnstitūtum sit.

OMNES

[Applauding] Ita sit. Ita sit.

LENTULUS

[Abashed] Facite quidquid vultis. Ūnum petō tamen, ut maneam in urbe.

CATILINA

Hoc tibi concēdimus. Vidē modo ut vigilēs. Nōn duōs oculōs sōlum habet cōnsul. Praecipuē videndum est quid agat Curius. Dē istō homine suspicor.

LENTULUS

Factum reperies. Nihil crit quod in me queraris.

CATILINA

Quis cūrābit sollicitandos pāstorēs?

CEPARIUS

Id mihi postulō. Diū habitāvī in Āpūliā, cuius hominēs mihi sunt nōtissimī. Multī sunt in meīs praediīs, quī quācumque hōrā sīve diēī sīve noctis iubēbō, in armīs erunt.

CATILINA

[To the others] Placetne hoc vobis?

OMNES

Placet.

CASSIUS

[Still seated] Quid mihi est faciendum? Petō negōtium ad quod iter facere nōn sit necesse.

[106]

SCENE I

CATILINA

Adhūc nēminem habēmus quī urbem incendat.

CASSIUS

Id perficere possum per lībertōs meōs. Sunt hominēs strēnuī et ferōcēs, quī ex nūllā aliā rē maiōrem voluptātem caperent. Omnēs partēs eōdem tempore incendendās cūrābō, sī id placet.

OMNES

Placet.

CATILINA

Omnia sunt trānsācta. Reliquum est ut iūre iūrandō coniungāmur sānctissimō. Estisne parātī?

OMNES

Parātī sumus.

CATILINA

[Drawing his sword and raising it, in a louder voice] Quī ex nōbīs gladium stringere dubitet, gladiō interficiātur.

[He brings down the sword.

OMNES

[Drawing their swords and raising them] Gladiō interficiātur.

CATILINA

[Raising his sword] Prō lībertāte cīvium contrā rēgēs atque tyrannōs!

OMNES

[Raising their swords] Contrā rēgēs atque tyrannos!

CATILINA

In hoc proposito bibamus. [Laeca offers a glass of wine from the table. Catiline pushes it aside with a sweep of his arm] Non ita! Sanguinem fundemus: sanguinem bibemus.

[He draws his sword across his left forearm and holds it over a cup, slaps his sword on the table, and raises the cup before them, ready to drink. They raise their swords, as Catiline shouts] Per sanguinem ibimus ad libertātem!

SCENE II

The kitchen of LAECA's house, next morning. Four Maidservants are sitting in a semicircle facing the audience, engaged at some household work.

SERVA I

Iam est quārta hōra. Adhūc dominus dormit. Hoc mīror, cum aliās semper prīmā lūce domum iam relīquerit.

SERVA II

Non est mīrum, qui totam paene noctem vigilāverit.

SERVA I

Tōtam noctem vigilāverit? Unde id cognōvistī?

SERVA II

Unde id cognōverim? Nōnne mē et Philandrum multā iam nocte vīnum adferre iussit? Et nōnnūllās hōrās posteā vigilābant cum dominō.

SERVA I

Erantne multī hominēs?

[There is a knock at the door. Curius enters disguised as an old beggar. He speaks in a high, whining voice.

CURIUS

Benignae este homini miserō. Di vōs adiuvent si mihi dabitis quō famem levāre possim.

[108]

SCENE II

SERVA III

Vidēris dēfessus, senex. Fēcistīne longum iter?

CURIUS

Per trēs diēs continuōs in itinere fuī. Neque somnum neque cibum cēpī.

SERVA III

Quā regione ortus es?

CURIUS

Nātus sum in Āpūliā, ubi multōs annōs habitāvī, dīligenter labōrāns. Iam frāctus sum senectūte, neque diūtius labōrāre possum. Nisi mē adiuvābitis, reliquum est ut moriar. Dūrum est pectus hominum.

Shakes his head slowly.

SERVA IV

Sī cibum accipiās, velīsne nōbīs fābulam nārrāre, longam et bonam fābulam dē Āpūliā ?

CURIUS

Libenter fābulam narrābō. Multās nārrāre possum et bonās.

SERVA IV

[Getting him a plate of food] Em, habēs cibum quem petīvistī. Nē oblīvīscāris fābulam.

CURIUS

Grātiās agō. Non obliviscar.

[Sits down and eats. The girls resume their work and go on talking.

SERVA I

Tōtam noctem dīcis eōs vigilāvisse? Sine dubiō multum vīnum pōtāvērunt.

SERVA II

Paene nūllum. Hoc est maximē mīrandum. Cum dēnique omnēs abiissent, crātēra invēnimus plēnum, quōmodo eum Philander adportāverat.

SERVA III

Quid dīcis? Putāsne mē crēdere hominēs cum dominē per tōtam noctem vigilāvisse, cum nihil biberent? Nōn ita cognōvī dominī amīcōs.

SERVA II

Nesciō quid factum sit. Tamen noc sciō, vīnum eōs vix gustāvisse. Potius dīxerim sanguinem eōs pōtāvisse. Nam sanguis erat in pōculō ūnō. Guttās quoque vidī in mēnsā.

[Curius looks up, stops eating with his morsel half way to his lips, and listens intently.

SERVA III

Abī tū in crucem cum sanguine tuō. Mihi vidēris tōtam hanc fābulam somniāsse. Ego sī id fēcissem, timērem nē lārvae mē caperent.

SERVA 11

Facite quod vultis. Sī mihi non crēditis, nihil amplius nārrābo.

SERVA IV

[Putting her arm about Serva II] Age, nē īrāscāris. Perge nārrāre. Sīve vērum est, sīve falsum, dummodo nārrēs aliquid.

SERVA II

[Trying to shake off her arm] Satis benignae estis dum petitis quod võs dēlectet. Nihil amplius nārrābō.

SCENE II

SERVA IV

Nonne te nostri miseret? Tam bona fabula, tam pulchra et horrenda, iam periit.

SERVA III

Sī haec fābula periit, aliam reperiēmus. [To Curius] Heus, mendīce, nōnne tū nōbīs fābulam prōmīsistī?

CURIUS

Prōmīsī fābulam prō cibō. Quam parātus sum nārrāre.

SERVA 111

Et nos sumus paratae audire. Incipe.

CURIUS

[Clearing his throat] Erant ölim in urbe quādam hominēs malī quī cum bonīs contendēbant quis ex ipsīs imperium eius urbis habēret. Arbitrium incolīs urbis faciendum erat, quī quotannīs dē hāc rē dēcernēbant, ac per multōs annōs semper potestātem bonīs trādiderant. Dēnique hominēs malī, incolārum iūdiciō īrātī, coniūrātiōnem fēcērunt, ut bonōs interficerent atque imperium ipsī occupārent. Hoc nōn erat facile factū, quod bonī magistrātūs dīligenter prō populō vigilābant. Postrēmō autem in domō cuiusdam malī hominis noctū convēnērunt. Cuique ex suō numerō negōtium quoddam dedērunt, aut incendendae urbis, aut interficiendī magistrātūs, aut aliud negōtium huius modī. Quō sē autem artius coniungerent, cum iūs iūrandum dīxissent, nōn vīnum, sed sanguinem pōtāvērunt.

SERVA II

[In agitation] Sanguinem suum! Nõnne võbīs dīxī sanguinem suum?

SERVA 111

Tū nārrāvistī somnium. Haec autem sunt vēra. [To Curius] Nōnne haec sunt vēra?

CURIUS

Sunt dē vītā meā. [Rising] Prō cibō iterum grātiās agō. Valēte.

OMNES

Valē.

[Curius goes out.

SERVA IV

Iam abiit. Tālem mendīcum numquam vīdī.

SERVA I

Mendīcum? Sī ille est mendīcus, ego sum māter deōrum. Nōnne vīdistis ut ibi sēderit per tōtum tempus capite opertō, ut eius ōs vidēre nōn possēmus? [Nodding wisely] Plūs scit ille quam nōbīs nārrāvit, dē conciliō illō nocturnō, dē sanguine pōtō, dē malīs hominibus quī contrā bonōs coniūrātiōnem faciunt.

PHILANDER

[Entering] Dominus iubet prandium parāre. [Turns to go.

SERVA 1

Heus, manē paulisper. Habēmus quod te rogāre velīmus.

PHILANDER

Dīcite.

SERVA I

Quid tū scīs dē sanguine pōtō in hāc domō?

PH1LANDER

Nihil sciō. Aurēs habeō et oculōs, linguam non habeō.

[112]

SCENE III

SERVAE

[They get up and start to throw things at him, shouting] Mendāx! Proditor!

[He escapes through the door, ducking his head.

SCENE III

A room in the house of FULVIA, who sits at a small table.

FULVIA

[Singing¹] Ō dulcis amor, quī mē facis Per tōtās hōrās dīvitem, Tū dās mihī quod aestimō In omnī vītā maximum.

> Ō trīstis amor, quī mē facis Īdem longē miserrimam, Dum torqueor, dum cōgitō Quam mox rapiantur omnia.

[While she hums the tune over again to herself, she picks up a mirror, adjusts her hair, etc. Her old Maidservant comes in with letters on a tray, which she sets on the table before Fulvia, and goes out again.

FULVIA

Tanta vis epistulārum! Et plēnae sunt omnēs molestiārum. [She begins picking them up indifferently and tossing them aside] Hās epistulās saepe iam accēpī. Omnēs sunt similēs. [While she says the following, she keeps on tossing one letter aside at each word, harder and harder, till the last ones fall beyond the table on the floor] Piget, pudet, paenitet, taedet atque miseret. [Laughing] Hae clārum ignem facient.

¹ Music on p. 173.

[Suddenly she picks up a letter eagerly and presses it to her lips] Ecce tandem, tandem. Tū es plēna dulcēdinis, [As she opens it impatiently] plēna venustātis, plēna amoris, [She kisses it again, and begins to read] "Curius Fulviae suae, oculo suo, [Kissing the letter] vitae suae. Hodie venire non possum." Cūr venīre non potest? Sunt omnēs virī similēs. [Reading] "Negōtium" — [Disgusted] Negōtium! [Reading] "dē quō tibi dīxī — coniūrātionem — sanguine poto consulem interficere — est periculum." Consulem interficere? Clārum illum hominem, venustum, urbānum, interficere? Iam intellego, Iam intellego, [Reading] "Hoc prohibendum est. Quārē tē hodiē non vidēbo." [Enthusiastically waving the letter] Curi, tū es vir, tū es maioribus tuīs dignus! Ego quoque ostendam mē esse dignam tālī viro. [Kissing the letter again, she lays it down carefully] Prohibendum est, [Getting up] et prohibēbitur, sī quid ego facere possum. [Calling] Staphyla! [Louder] Staphyla!

STAPHYLA

[Entering] Quid vult domina mea?

FULVIA

Properā, Staphyla, paenulam patris mihi adfer.

STAPHYLA

Paenulam patris? Tū, fēmina iam adulta, in vestīmentīs virīlibus?

FULVIA

Tacē. Fac quod iubeō. Eundum est ad domum cōnsulis. [Staphyla goes out shaking her head, while Fulvia begins fixing herself up, and starts humming again the tune of the song she sang before. Staphyla comes in with a big man's cloak.] Iam tū mihi indue paenulam. Necesse est nōs virōs fierī.

SCENE III

STAPHYLA

[Horrified] Mē vestīmentīs virīlibus indūtam īre per viās? Fēminam senem meōrum annōrum tālēs nūgās agere? Ō certē ioculāris.

FULVIA

Nihil ioculor. Audīvistīne quid iusserim? Eundum est ad consulem, sine morā, statim.

[Staphyla goes out and comes back bringing an even larger cloak, while Fulvia is fixing herself up, trying to keep the long cloak from dragging on the ground. She has it pinned up by the time Staphyla returns. Then she puts the other cloak on Staphyla. It proves much too long and big.

FULVIA

Mēcastor, non es satis longa. Virum grandem esse oportet. [She doubles it under and pins it up] Ecce, iam sumus parātae.

[She looks in the glass and struts about with long paces like a man.

STAPHYLA

[Not enjoying her dress] Ō mē miseram. Tōtam vītam probam mē gessī, ut iam in senectūte meā faciam quae pudenda sint.

FULVIA

St! [Holding her hand before Staphyla's mouth] Mementō tē virum esse, et virōs esse fortēs. Iam ad cōnsulem eāmus.

[Picks up the letter of Curius, grasps Staphyla by the hand, and pulls her away as the curtain falls.

SCENE IV

The atrium of Cicero's house. Four Soldiers are on guard, two on each side of a door at the rear of the stage. It is night.

TERENTIA

[Coming in with a lamp in her hand] Suntne omnia quieta?

MILES I

Omnia.

TERENTIA

Mihi vidēbātur aliquid sē movēre extrā iānuam.

MILES I

Nihil audīvī, domina mea.

TERENTIA

Cūstōdīte iānuam dīligenter, nē quis intret nisi nōminātim sit permissum ā nōbīs.

MILES I

Ita fīat cūrābimus.

TERENTIA

[Half to herself] Est vērō haec misera nox et sollicita. Cum omnibus, etiam īnfimīs, dormīre liceat et quiēscere, cōnsul, cīvitātis caput, vigilat et vīvit in perīculīs.

TULLIA

[Coming in timidly, with a wrap about her] Ubi es, māter mea? Audīvī aliquem per viam euntem, postquam tū eubiculum relīquistī. Cūr nōn redīs? Cum sōla sum, timeō.

TERENTIA

Nē timeās, vīta mea. [Putting her arm around her] Iam redībimus. Nēmō adest. Sunt omnia tūta. Nē timeās. Manēbō tēcum. [Terentia and Tullia go out together.

[116]

SCENE IV

MILES 1

Mīror cūr domum tam ācriter cūstōdiant, praesertim hāc nocte. Nōn mihi vidētur maius esse perīculum quam ūllā aliā nocte.

MILES 11

[Peering through a small opening in the door] Via est tenebrōsa et dēserta. Equidem esse mālim in solitā statione nostrā. Dūrum negotium est vigilāre intrā parietēs.

MILES I

Diēs mox aderit. Tum erimus līberī.

[Some one knocks at the door.

MILES II

Heus, quis hic pultat? [Looks out through the opening.

номо

[Outside] Amīcī sumus consulis. Rēs est gravissima dē quā cum eo conloqui volumus.

MILES II

Non licet intrare.

HOMO

[Outside] Consulem me videre oportet.

MILES II

Consul iussit neminem admittere. [Closes the opening.

HOMO

[Outside] Posteā paulō redībimus.

TERENTIA

[Entering with Tullia clinging to her] Nonne vos loquentes audivi?

MILES II

Aderant duo hominēs, qui dicēbant sibi cum consule conloquendum esse.

TERENTIA

[In alarm, raising her hands] Duo hominēs? Sunt eidem dē quibus epistula illa nos certiorēs fēcit. Iamne discessērunt?

MILES II

Dixērunt sē paulō posteā reditūrōs.

TERENTIA

Obsecrō vōs per deōs immortālēs, nē quem admittātis. Vīta cōnsulis posita est in vestrā dīligentiā.

MILES I

Nē commōta sīs, domina mea. Officium factum ā nōbīs inveniētis.

TERENTIA

[In despair] Quid agam? Dormīre nōn possum. Cōnsulem excitāre nōlō. Vix dormit, postquam tōtam paene noctem ipse vigilāvit.

MILES I

Nūlla est causa timōris. Nōs sumus quattuor cum gladiīs. Illum vidēre velim quī incolumis per nostrās manūs intrāverit.

TERENTIA

Ignōscite. Sciō vōs esse fortēs et fidēlēs. Grātiās agō prō dīligentiā vestrā et cūstōdiā. Tamen, sī quis — [A maidservant comes running in excitedly.] Quid est? Dīc statim quid sit. Cūr timēs?

SERVA CICERONIS

[Breathlessly] Audīvī virōs loquentēs in hortō. [Pointing.

SCENE IV

TERENTIA

In hortō? Quō nōs vertāmus? Ubīque est perīculum. Īte, mīlitēs, vidēte nē in domum aliquō modō inrumpant.

MILES I

Ite vos duo. Totam rem exquirite. Nos hic manebimus.

[Soldiers III and IV go, followed by Terentia, Tullia, and the maidservant, holding fast each other's hands.

A short time elapses in silence.

CICERO

[Entering dressed in the toga] Dormīre diūtius non possum. Lūx etiam certa iam adest. Salvēte, mīlitēs. [The soldiers raise their swords in salute.] Ut video, adhūc iugulātorēs nos vīvos relīquērunt. Ubi autem sunt sociī vestrī?

MILES II

Observant hortum. Nam ibi quoque aliquem loquentem audīvērunt.

CICERO

Ibi quoque? Audīvistisne hominēs ūllō aliō locō?

MILES II

Hīc ante iānuam erant duo quī sibi tēcum negōtium esse dīcēbant.

Mēcum negōtium? Bene sciō quid sit illud negōtium. Erat igitur vērum quod Fulvia mihi obscūrīs verbīs dicere volēbat. Dīs grātiās et vōbīs, quod eōs nōn admīsistis.

[He shakes hands with them.

MILES I

Fēcimus id quod est officium nostrum. Mīles quod iussum est facit, sīve facile sit, sīve difficile.

[119]

CICERO

Bene meriti estis de re publica. Hoc semper memoria tenebo.

MILES I

Bene facis, domine. Per nos quidem non falleris.

[The other two soldiers return.

MILES III

Nihil invēnimus nisi vacuum hortum. Meā sententiā serva illa duōs hominēs somniāvit.

CICERO

[Laughing] Tū es homō urbānus et facētus. [Slapping him on the back] Tē aliquandō imperātōrem vidēbō et cōnsulem. [Shaking hands with him] Omnibus vōbīs maximās grātiās agō. Iam abīte et cibō vōs recreāte. Interim ego ipse portam tuēbor.

[They go. Cicero draws a sword from under his toga, which he lays on the table. Enter Terentia and Tullia.

TERENTIA

Tālem noctem spērō mē numquam visūram esse. O vir mihi cārissime, dī tē servāvērunt.

CICERO

Di et hominës fortës et mea providentia. Consul qui rem publicam servare vult, necesse est primum se ipse servet. Quid agit Tulliola mea? Totam noctem dormivit?

TULLIA

Ego vigilāvī prō tē, et hominem praetereuntem audīvī.

[120]

SCENE IV

CICERO

[Patting her on the head] Tū es fīlia vēra patris tuī. Is est cūstōs reī pūblicae, tū es cūstōs cōnsulis. Sī tū nōn vigilāssēs, rēs pūblica periisset. Tē puerum esse oportuit.

TULLIA

[In disgust] Puerum! Puerī et virī dormiunt dum praedonēs rem pūblicam auferunt. Sī fēminae non essent, et puellae, ego vēro nescīrem quid facerent virī. Praedonēs eos iam dūdum omnēs iugulāvissent.

CICERO

[Patting her on the head] Vērum dīcis, filia mea. Nōnne dīxī tē rem pūblicam servāvisse? [A knock is heard at the door. Terentia shrinks; Tullia clings to her. Cicero takes his sword from the table and speaks in a loud voice] Quis pultat?

CATO

[Outside] Est amīcus reī pūblicae.

CICERO

[Looking through the opening in the door, relieved] Ecce, Catōnem videō. [Opening the door wide] Salvē, amīce vērē amāns reī pūblicae.

[Entering] Salvēte omnēs.

[Shakes hands with Cicero.

TERENTIA

Salvē, Catō, et valē. Rēs pūblica fēminās nōn dēsīderat.

CATO

Vos estis mātrēs eorum qui civitātem cūstodiunt.

[Bows to the women as they retire. Another knock at the door. When Cicero opens, two other Men enter.

CICERO

Salvēte, salvēte, gaudeō vos omnēs mātūrē vēnisse.

VIRI

Salvē, Cicerō, et tū, Catō, salvē. [They shake hands. Then one of them speaks to Cicero] Quid nōs tandem iam mediā nocte excitāvistī?

CICERO

Breviter dicam. [The others show signs of surprise at various points in the speech, which Cicero addresses now to one, now to another.] Hesternő die mihi a femina quadam indicatum est duōs hominēs pollicitōs esse mē hodiē ante lūcem in lectulo meo interficere. Horum conatum praeveni. Ouattuor mīlitēs per tōtam noctem mē et domum cūstōdivērunt. Ante lūcem, guōmodo mihi praedictum erat. duo intrare conati sunt, quod, militibus absentibus, sine dubiō effēcissent. Haec rēs, ut mihi vidētur, nimium iam crēvit. Tempus adest quō omnēs bonī sē conjungere dēbent, ut Catilīnam et sociōs eius urbe ēiciant. Dum hīc manet iste, nos tūtī esse nūllo modo possumus. Iam dēnique rēs pūblica agitur. Hanc enim ipsam, non solum nōs, istī hominēs dēlēre cupiunt. Vōs igitur convocāvī. ut mē consilio vestro adiuvētis. Sī vobis placet, totam rem ita patefaciam in senātū, ut non solum hominēs, sed bēstiae intellegere possint quis sit amīcus, quis inimīcus omnium.

CATO

Sī est ut dīcis, diūtius non puto dubitandum esse.

UNUS EX VIRIS

Haec est mea sententia.

[122]

SCENE IV

ALTER EX VIRIS

Et mea. Eiciātur hostis.

CICERO

Optimē mihi consuluistis. Iam parātus sum. [Raising his hand toward heaven impressively] Hoc die liberābimus rem pūblicam!

PERSONAE

Anna, sister of Dido (Scenes I, III, IV).

DĪDŌ, queen of Carthage (Scenes I, III, IV).

SERVUS, a servant of Dido (Scenes I, IV).

CARTHĀGINIĒNSĒS I and II, two Carthaginians (Scenes I, IV).

ANICULA, an old woman, soothsayer and friend of Anna (Scene I).

MULIĒRĒS I, II, III, and IV Trojans from the ships of Aeneas

VIRĪ I and II (Scenes II, IV).

IARBĀS, a Numidian prince, suitor of Dido (Scene II).

AENĒĀS, leader of the Trojans (Scenes II, III, IV).

ACHĀTĒS, his friend (Scenes II, III, IV).

ĪLIONĒUS, a Trojan (Scenes III, IV).

CUPĪDŌ, son of Venus, dressed as Ascanius, son of Aeneas

(Scene IV).

BITIĀS, a Carthaginian (Scene IV).

SILENT CHARACTERS: One of the Carthaginians mentioned above (Scenes I, IV), the attendants of Iarbas (Scene II), two ladies of Dido's court (Scenes III, IV), a captive Trojan (Scene III), two soldiers (Scene III), menservants and maidservants at the banquet (Scene IV).

PLACE: Carthage and the seashore near by.

TIME: Seven years after the Trojan war.

IOPAS, a bard at Dido's court (Scene IV).

SCENE I

The palace of Dido. Dido is seated, with her head on her hand. Anna is standing beside her, with her hand on Dido's shoulder.

ANNA

Cūr tē, soror mea, tam trīstem videō? Omnēs rēs tuae sunt laetae. Urbs magna et pulchra tibi aedificātur. Populus tuus est fidēlis. Hostēs paene nūllōs circā fīnēs tuōs vidēs.

DIDO

Hostēs paene nūllōs — Utinam ita esset ut tū dīcis. Videō amīcōs quī īnfēstiōrēs sunt omnibus hostibus.

ANNA

Nesciō quā dē rē dīcās. Antehāc omnia cōnsilia tua mihi semper patēfaciēbās. Iam, ut vidētur, exclūsa sum. Crūdēlis es, soror mea, quae doleās neque dē causā dolōris tuī mē faciās certiōrem.

DIDO

[Looking up and putting her arm around Anna] Ignōsce, soror dulcissima, sī quid tibi occultāre videor. Sunt rēs quae nihil adferant nisi dolōrem atque aegritūdinem neque omnibus iuvantibus levārī possint.

ANNA

At tamen, sī eās in pectore tuō semper occlūsās habēbis, nōn tē sōlum, sed mē et omnēs tuōs laedent et cruciābunt. Quid tibi prōdest sorōrem habēre quae tē plūs amat quam vītam suam, sī tē iuvāre, omnia mala tēcum ferre nōn licet? Sī mē amārēs, ut ego tē—

DIDO

Ō soror mea, sēcrēta quae habēre posse mē sōlam spērāvī, postrēmō mihi ēripiēs. [Sadly] Ēheu, omnibus meīs nihil nisi trīstitiam parāvī, nihil nisi trīstitiam parābō in futūrum. Utinam mortua essem cum Sychaeō meō antequam hanc novam urbem vīdissem.

ANNA

Mortuō cavē nē iniūriam faciās. Hoc quod dīcis, ipse, crēdō, minimē voluisset. Sī adhūc vīvit et sentit, certē gaudet tē frātrem fefellisse, tē populō tuō hanc condidisse urbem. Nūllō aliō modō tam dignam cō tē possēs ostendere.

DIDO

[Weeping] Hoc ipsum mē acerbissimē discruciat. Dum illī amantissimō coniugī meō fidem servō, mē et tē et omnēs dō in perīculum.

ANNA

Dīcisne, quaesō, dē Iarbā? Putāvī eam molestiam iam dēpulsam esse.

DIDO

Non satis intellegis animos hominum. Primo petīvit, deinde monuit, iam postremo apertē minātur, nisi populum et urbem et mē ipsam trādam in eius potestātem. Conūbium vocat quod est manifesta vis.

SCENE I

ANNA

Mīror tē iam dēspērāre. Tempus erat cum omnibus rēbus egēnī in hanc terram pervenīrēmus; tum erat perīculum ab hostibus. Iam autem cum urbem munītam habitāmus, cum dīvitiae incolārum crēscunt in diēs, quid est quod timeāmus?

Ēheu, nihil scīs dē eīs rēbus quae ad aurēs meās veniunt. Hic populus ipse imperium gerentem vidēre velit Iarbam et mē cum eō coniūnctam. Vel sī nōn Iarbam, tunc alium quemvīs, dummodo rēgem habeant. Taedet eōs semper mulierī pārēre. Virum volunt quī bella gerere possit.

Cavē nē inīquē loquāris. Populus tē amat et ab omnibus perīculīs dēfendere parātus est.

DIDO

[After a little pause, looking up] Non haec sola me territant. Saepenumero, cum dormīrem, id somniāvī quod magis me sollicitam tenet quam Iarbās et omnes eius copiae.

[Entreating] Dic mihi somnium, soror mea. [Putting her arm about her] In hāc rē certē auxilium dare possum.

DIDO

Nūllum est auxilium. Tam multās noctēs iam eadem vīdī, semper eadem.

ANNA

Dic autem quid videris. Est nota mihi anicula quaedam in hāc urbe quae somniorum est peritissima. Illam advocābo.

DIDO

Nihil agis. Parvam fidem habeō aniculae tuae et tālī perītiae.

ANNA

[Pleading] Tamen experīrī potius est quam tōtōs dies et noctes vivere in metū.

DIDO

[Kisses Anna] Fac quod tibi placet, soror mea. Si tibi est cordi, bene contenta sum.

Enter a Servant. While he makes his announcement, Anna goes out quickly.

SERVUS

[Bowing] Adsunt, domina mea, qui të consulere volunt de templo Iunonis.

DIDO

Accēdant.

[The servant goes out.

Enter two Men with plans in their hands. They bow and wait for the Queen to speak.

DIDO

Quōmodo prōcēdunt rēs nostrae?

CARTHAGINIENSIS

Bene, rēgīna mea. Sunt tamen aliqua quae pertinent ad templum Iūnōnis, dē quibus tē rogāre volumus, nisi molestum est.

DIDO

Nihil est molestum quod pertinet ad aedem eius nūminis cuius auxiliō nostra urbs vīvit et crēscit. Dīcite.

CARTHAGINIENSIS

[They hold the plans before her for inspection while he speaks] Dēligenda sunt örnāmenta quae in summō templō pōnantur. Quaerimus utrum ex hīs duōbus faciendum sit quae hīc dēscrīpta sunt. Hoc opus [Pointing to one] nōn sōlum pulchrius erit, sed secundum dēscrīptiōnem multō magis sūmptuōsum. Est rēgīnae dēcernere utrum ex hīs facere incipiāmus.

DIDO

Id mihi difficile non videtur. Alius deus nullus in nostra urbe cum Iunone comparandus est. Igitur providendum censeo ne cuius templum posthac maius neve clarius aedificetur. Mea sententia est Iunonis quam maximum, tum etiam quam pulcherrimum faciendum. Ita Iuno de nobis semper meruit.

CARTHAGINIENSIS

Grātiās agimus, rēgīna nostra. Fient omnia secundum voluntātem tuam.

DIDO

Valēte, cīves meī. [They bow and go out. She rests her head on her hand. After a silence she speaks to herself] Omnēs cīvēs meī contentī sunt. Labōre suō aliquid cōnferunt ad bonum populī. Rēgīna sōla nescit quid sibi potius agendum sit. Ea sōla distrahitur cūrīs et cōgitātiōnibus.

While she sits lost in thought Anna enters with the Soothsayer, an old woman dressed in dark, with a staff in her hand. Seeing her sister sad, Anna stands still a little while, then goes to her and lays her hand on her arm.

DIDO

[Starting up from her brooding] Paene oblīta sum dē somniō. Iam tē redeunte rūrsus veniunt mihi in mentem quae mē sollicitant.

ANNA

Dī bene vortant! Addūcō vātem quae tibi somnium dēclārābit.

DIDO

Salvē, māter. Dī faciant ut adventus tuus fēlīcitātem adferat.

ANICULA

Placeat rēgīnae somnium nārrāre. Intereā fiat silentium. [She marks off a space about her with her staff, mumbling to herself the while. Then she sinks down in the space and bows forward so that her cloak falls over her head, covering her face. Thus she sits huddled up, only her staff being held upright. After a silence she begins to stir slightly, which soon turns into a rocking back and forth. At last in a high voice she cries] Deus adest. Deus loquitur. Quod nārrāre vultis, nārrāte.

DIDO

[After a little while when she has looked intently at the woman as if fascinated, Dido begins to speak slowly in a deep voice which gradually becomes stronger and filled with interest] Quōmodo incipiam? Quid potius dīcam? Vidēbar mihi in somniō esse sōla et dēserta, ab hostibus petīta. Neque reperīre poteram quō mē verterem, ubi auxilium invenīrem. Tune procul per mare mihi vidēbātur nūbēs advenīre, adsiduē crēscēns, dōnec mē et urbem meam et tōtam terram Carthāginiēnsium operiēbat. Deinde quamquam nec vidēre neque agere quicquam poteram, tamen timēre dēstitī. Paulō post placidē dormiēbam ad lūcem. Multīs iam noctibus haec mihi vīsa sunt, ut certum sit aliquid portendī. Quid hoc sit precor ut deus mihi ostendat.

SCENE II

ANICULA

[After a silence the Soothsayer rises slowly, and stands at the side of the stage half facing the audience, with her head lifted and eyes closed and her arms raised and outspread. When she has stood in this way a little while, she begins speaking in a low, distinct voice, slowly and impressively. Dido and Anna watch her intently] Per mare hospes advenit, quī sub nūbe hanc terram intrat ferēns pācem et concordiam tam diū quam dīs placēbit. Quid deinde futūrum sit, deus ipse suō tempore dēclārābit.

[The curtain falls slowly while she stands thus.

SCENE II

The shore near Carthage. The Trojans are temporarily encamped amid the wreckage and salvage from the storm. Two Women are examining clothing, broken utensils, etc.

MULIER I

Frācta, corrupta, perdita sunt omnia. Paene nihil iam restat quō vītam tolerēmus.

MULIER II

Noli desperare. Dum vitam ipsam habebimus, spes non defiet.

MULIER I

Mīror cūr tam laeta sīs. Equidem gaudendī causam nōn inveniō. Dux noster quoque tam diū iam abest. Nisi mox redībit, hostēs vereor nē nōs circumveniant.

MULIER II

Mox redībit. Nōlī timēre.

[133]

DIDO

MULIER I

Dum vīvam, tempestātem illam vidēbō ante oculōs. Horrendum erat, nāvem istam vidēre, cum ventīs et fluctibus agerētur. Tum dictō citius, cum omnibus quī in eā erant, submersa est.

MULIER 11

Nūllum ex illīs miserīs umquam vidēbimus.

While they go on with their work in silence, two other Women enter, carrying big dishes of wet grain, which they spread out to dry.

MULIER 111

Frümentum omne est undis madefactum et corruptum. Tamen videndum est num quid servāre possīmus. Per sōlem fortasse fiet āridum.

MULIER IV

Sī modo rediissent quī in silvam profectī sunt ad lignum colligendum. Ignī celerius omnia fierent.

MULIER III

Istī iam redībunt. Paulō ante sonitus caedendī nōn longē ab hōc locō audiēbatur. Id mē nōn angit, sed dux Aenēās, quid ille explōrātum sit relātūrus.

MULIER IV

Nostra fortūna est misera. Maximō opere tamen doleō cum meminī eius uxōris Creūsae, quae illā nocte tam subitō, tam mīrō modō, dum virum sequitur, in mediā viā ēvānuit.

SCENE II

MULIER III

Est vērō miserābile. Dux erat omnium, tamen quid facere poterat? Lūdibriō sumus omnēs Fortūnae, quae sī fīlium ducis servābit, aut nōs aut līberōs nostrōs post multōs annōs fortasse in sēdēs exoptātās quās quaerimus conlocābit.

Enter two Men with bundles of fagots on their shoulders, which they throw down and sit on them to rest.

VIR I

Est illa silva invia et horrenda, quam ferae atque serpentēs înfēstant. Mīrandum est nōs vīvōs exiisse.

VIR II

Non ferae solum, sed hominēs quoque, ferīs inimīciorēs, mihi quidem eam pervagārī videntur. Vestīgia eorum plānē vīdī in harēnā.

MULIER II

Nonne vos ducem nostrum vidistis? Eius fortasse erant vestīgia illa.

VIR II

Non puto. Erant vestīgia facta pedibus nūdīs, [Pointing to the ground] quasi ā barbarīs hominibus.

VIR I

Revertēruntne illī quī aquam petītum exiērunt?

MULIER I

Nondum. Iam diū eos exspectamus.

[The blowing of a horn is heard. They all start and look up in amazed silence for a little while. The next few remarks are made in frightened half-whispers.

MULIER I

Quid erat illud?

VIR II

Quod exspectāvī. Sunt eī quōrum vestīgia—

[Another blast is heard.

VIR I

Hostēs, nisi fallor. [Aloud, getting up] Capite arma, virī. Castra dēfendenda sunt.

[The men pick up spears and shields that have been standing at hand, and walk off stealthily and cautiously in the direction of the sound. The women sit huddled together and frightened. After a little they get up and begin to look after the grain, etc., repeatedly stopping to listen. A little later IARBAS with three Followers, all in outlandish clothes, and barefooted except Iarbas, come in on the opposite side. The women drop everything, scream, and run away.

IARBAS

[Goes about the place cautiously, examining things, and gradually becomes bolder. Finally he stands still and laughs] Castra—castra sine mīlitibus—ā mulieribus dēfēnsa. [He laughs] Cuius modī bellātōrēs istī sint, vehementer mīror. [After going about examining things, to his men who have followed him] Audīte quod dīcō! [They stand and listen to him.] Haec omnia sunt auferenda. Omnia! Intellegitisne? [They bow.] Hominēs quī iniussū meō in fīnibus meīs cōnsīdunt, cognōscere dēbent hanc terram cum omnibus rēbus, cum omnibus—[With a sweeping gesture] intelligitisne? [They bow.] quae in eā inveniuntur esse meam, meam [He slaps himself on the chest. They bow.] Iam agite! Cōnferte, comportāte, condūcite, contrahite omnia. Nam omnia auferentur. [They begin gathering the things together.

SCENE II

Meantime the two Trojans have returned, but remain cautiously on the outskirts, pointing excitedly at Iarbas' men. When Iarbas sees them, he beckons them to him with a sweeping gesture and says] Iam redeunt bellātōrēs fortēs. [With a majestic bow] Gaudeō vōs rediisse. Nē timeātis. Nēmō vōbīs nocēbit. Hoc mihi dīcite tamen. Scītisne in cuius fīnibus cōnsēderītis? [Drawing himself up] Ego sum Iarbās. Meī sunt fīnēs, mea est silva [Indicating them with a gesture]. Meum est lignum [Pointing to the fagots] quod mihi abstulistis. Mea sunt omnia. [The men shrink back.] Nē timeātis. Hominibus nōn nocēbō. Sī bonī eritis, prō bonīs vōs habēbō. Tamen sum rēx. Estne vōbīs nōtum quid rēgī dēbeātur?

Aeneas comes in with Achates. He has a helmet on and is otherwise distinguished by his dress. His men run to him. Iarbas' men stop work and stand behind Iarbas. Iarbas and Aeneas confront each other for a few seconds in silence.

IARBAS

[Angrily] Quis es? Quid quaeris? Dic!

AENEAS

[With quiet dignity] Ego sum Trōius Aenēās, sī quid dē Trōiā umquam audīvistī. Sēdēs quaerō populō meō, neque in animō est ūllī mortālī facere iniūriam. Nāvibus frāctīs ēiectī sumus in terram, nesciī quis eius sit rēx. Sī tū es rēx, scītō mē quoque esse rēgem, mātre Venere ortum et dīs caelestibus nōtum.

TARBAS

[Somewhat overawed] Rēx sum incolārum huius ōrae. Comitēs tuī, modo iniūriam nē faciant, in harēnā cōnsīdere licet, tam diū quam mihi placēbit.

DIDO

AENEAS

Tālēs condicionēs Troiānī non accipiunt. Sī sine iniūriā hīc, quam diū opus erit, manēre non licēbit, scīto deos nos adiūvisse nec posthāc nos relictūros esse. Iovem venerāmur, cui hospitēs sunt cūrae. Eius auxilio nos dēfendere sciēmus.

LARBAS

[Sullenly and contemptuously] Rex tibi quidem esse videris — naufragus et superbus.

AENEAS

Non pudet nos quod non accidit nostrā culpā. [Raising his hand to heaven] Sub dīs vīvimus. Eōrum sit iūdicium.

[He faces Iarbas squarely, drawn up to his full height. Iarbas looks sullen and askance. So they stand when the curtain falls.

SCENE III

The interior of the temple of Juno. An altar stands at the rear of the stage, on which incense is burning. If possible a statue should be behind this to represent Juno. At one side of the stage is a throne, somewhat elevated. Dido, with Anna and two other Carthaginian ladies, comes in while a slow stately march is being played, and walks slowly across the stage to the throne, where she seats herself as the ladies group themselves about her. When the music stops, a confused noise is heard at the entrance. ILIONEUS and another captive Trojan are brought in by two Soldiers and take up their position before the Queen, but at a distance. Soft music should be played throughout the whole scene. The action should be stately and dignified.

ILIONEUS

[Extending his hands to Dido in supplication]

O rēgīna, novam cui condere Iuppiter urbem

SCENE III

Iūstitiāque dedit gentēs frēnāre superbās,
Trões tē miserī, ventīs maria omnia vectī,
Ōrāmus: prohibē īnfandōs ā nāvibus ignīs,
Parce piō generī et propius rēs aspice nostrās.

[Dido makes a sign, and he draws nearer while the soldiers fall back.

Est locus, Hesperiam Grāī cognōmine dīcunt, Terra antīqua, potēns armīs atque ūbere glēbae; Hic cursus fuit,

Cum subitō adsūrgēns fluctū nimbōsus Oriōn
In vada caeca tulit penitusque procācibus Austrīs Dispulit; hūc paucī vestrīs adnāvimus ōrīs. [A slight pause.
Rēx erat Aenēās nōbīs, quō iūstior alter
Nec pietāte fuit nec bellō maior et armīs.
Quem sī fāta virum servant, sī vēscitur aurā,
Nōn metus. Officiō nec tē certāsse priōrem Paeniteat.

DIDO

[In a kindly tone]
Solvite corde metum, Teucrī, sēclūdite cūrās.
Quis genus Aeneadum, quis Trōiae nesciat urbem
Virtūtēsque virōsque aut tantī incendia bellī?
Seu vōs Hesperiam magnam Sāturniaque arva
Sīve aliōs rēgēs aliamque optābitis ōram,
Auxiliō tūtōs dīmittam opibusque iuvābō.
Voltis et hīs mēcum pariter cōnsīdere rēgnīs,
Urbem quam statuō vestra est, subdūcite nāvīs:
Trōs Tyriusque mihī nūllō discrīmine agētur.
Atque utinam rēx ipse Notō compulsus eōdem
Adforet Aenēās! Equidem per lītora certōs
Dīmittam et Libyae lūstrāre extrēma iubēbō,

DIDO

Sī quibus ēiectus silvīs aut urbibus errat.

[Aeneas, who has stood behind the curtain at the other end of the stage with Achates, is revealed as the curtain is drawn farther back. All look at them in surprise as Aeneas advances and begins to speak.

AENEAS

Cōram, quem quaeritis, adsum
Trōius Aenēās, Libycīs ēreptus ab undīs.
Ō sōla īnfandōs Trōiac miserāta labōrēs,
Nōn opis est nostrae grātēs persolvere dignās.
Dī tibi digna ferant. Quae tē tam laeta tulērunt Saecula? Quī tantī tālem genuēre parentēs?
In freta dum fluviī current, dum montibus umbrae
Lūstrābunt convexa, polus dum sīdera pāscet,
Semper honōs nōmenque tuum laudēsque manēbunt,
Ouae mē cumque vocant terrae.

[He and Achates shake hands joyfully with the other Trojans.

DIDO

[With great interest]

Tūne ille Aenēās, quem Dardaniō Anchīsae
Alma Venus Phrygiī genuit Simoentis ad undam?
Tempore longinquō cāsus mihi cognitus urbis
Trōiānae nōmenque tuum rēgēsque Pelasgī.
Quārē agite, ō tēctīs, iuvenēs, succēdite nostrīs.
Mē quoque per multōs similis fortūna labōrēs
Iactātam hāc dēmum voluit cōnsistere terrā.

[Dido rises and gives her hand to Aeneas, and they walk out across the stage slowly to the music of a march, followed by the other Trojans, each by the side of one of the Carthaginian ladies. The soldiers bring up the rear.

SCENE IV

The palace of DIDO. There are three tables, of which the central one is for DIDO and AENEAS. Those on the sides are set obliquely, so that all sitting behind the tables can see DIDO and AENEAS. Each of these is for four or six guests, half of them men and half women. The men and women are arranged alternately, BITIAS being next to DIDO. One place is left vacant for ACHATES. There is a small space between the tables to allow passing. On the tables are vases with flowers, and goblets. Several large covered dishes are being carried out at the opening of the scene by three menservants. When they are gone, three maidservants bring in baskets with fruit, which take the place of the dishes. The first part of the conversation goes on during this action.

[While Dido speaks to Aeneas, the people at the other tables converse with each other in a low voice and glance at them occasionally] Laetus est hic dies mihi et populo meo, quo tu et comites tui tectis nostris succeditis. Unum tantum desidero — filium tuum.

Brevī tempore, ut spērō, aderit. Achātem, fidēlissimum amīcum meum, mīsī ad nāvēs ut eō duce puer accēdat.

Grātum fēcistī. Magnopere mīror sitne fīlius patrī similis, ut eius quoque fortia facta exspectēmus.

AENEAS

Dīcere non possum, rēgīna, quam grāta nobīs sint beneficia tua. Errantēs, egēnos nos recēpistī, ut melius nobīs esse non posset, sī in nostrās sēdēs pervēnissēmus.

DIDO

Utinam fāta dedissent ut haec urbs non solum Poenorum, sed Troiānorum sit domicilium.

DIDO

AENEAS

Fiet quod dis placebit. Tū quidem, rēgīna, [Bowing to her] semper nos obligātos habēbis, quodcumque fāta ferent.

Enter Achates, and Cupid dressed as Ascanius, carrying gifts.

They are conducted by a Servant, who brings them before Dido and Aeneas, then stands near Dido's chair.

AENEAS

[Rising] Hic est ille, dē quō dīximus, quem habeō fidēlissimum omnium [Achates bows to the queen], et fīlius meus Ascanius [Laying his hand on Cupid's head], quem spērō virum fortem et bonum rēgem populī suī futūrum esse.

DIDO

[Seizing Cupid by the hand and drawing him around to a chair between her and Aeneas] Salvē, mī puer, et tuā et patris tuī causā. [Noticing the gifts] Quid autem habēs in manibus?

CUPIDO

Sunt haec dōna, quae ē nāvibus tibi adportāmus. [Bowing to Dido] Grātum erit nōbīs, rēgīna, si haec accipere dignāberis.

DIDO

Grātiās maximās agō tibi et omnibus vōbīs [Looking at Aeneas and Achates]. Haec numquam exspectāvissem ab eīs quī modo naufragium fēcērunt. Sunt sine dubiō dōna pretiōsissima, quae tam longē ab urbe vestrā advexerītis.

[She takes them, looks at them in admiration, as do several of the others, who have come near for the purpose. Then they go back to their places and Dido gives the gifts to the servant by her side, who carries them out carefully. Achates has taken the vacant chair at one of the tables. Cupid takes much interest in what goes on after this, and is occasionally smiled at and petted by Dido and Aeneas.

DIDO

Hunc diem fēstum et fēlicem celebrēmus ut decet.

[Two menservants bring in a great bowl which they set on a bench in front of the central table, and then go out. Two maidservants fill the goblets by means of ladles, and place them before the guests. These engage in lively conversation and laughter meanwhile, holding up the goblets to look at the color of the contents. The increase of cheerfulness all around should be noticeable. When the glasses are filled, the servants withdraw.

DIDO

[As she rises, a hush falls on the rest. She holds a small glass, and speaks slowly and distinctly. When she lifts up the glass, all rise and stand while the following words are spoken]

Iuppiter, hospitibus nam tē dare iūra loquuntur, Hunc laetum Tyriīsque diem Trōiāque profectīs Esse velīs, nostrōsque huius meminisse minōrēs. Adsit laetitiae Bacchus dator et bona Iūnō, Et vōs, ō, coetum, Tyriī, celebrāte faventēs.

[She pours the libation on the table solemnly, after which the rest are seated. Then at once she becomes more cheerful, takes her big cup and, touching it to her lips, suddenly raises it high and says] Iam proelium restat cum vīnō. Ubi sunt bellātōrēs fortissimī? [She looks at the guests, who enter into the spirit of the occasion] Quis hoc pōculum capiet? Quis honōrem et fāmam suam dēfendet? Bitiā, tē vocō.

BITIAS

[Rises promptly and stands straight before the queen. He is the one at the next table nearest to her] Parātus sum, rēgīna. Ouid iubēs?

DIDO

Hoc pōculum iubeō occīdere, sine morā, sine dubitātiōne.

BITIAS

[Taking the cup and raising it high] Fiet ut iubes, regina mea.

[He drinks it off quickly and with gusto. All the others, who have been looking on, cheer loudly and laugh. Bitias sets the cup on the queen's table, bows, and is seated.

DIDO

[Slapping him on the shoulder] Tū es vir, Bitiā. Quī tālēs mīlitēs habet, proclium facere potest. [He rises and bows again and is scated.] Quis tālia facta aemulātur?

[She looks around at the other men, two of whom immediately rise and raise their cups.

VIR I

Ego, rēgina.

VIR II

Et ego.

DIDO

Virī factīs suīs probantur. Videāmus quis cum Bitiā contendat.

In nōbīs, rēgīna, nōn fallēris.

[They raise their glasses and drink like Bitias. All applaud and laugh again, Dido, Aeneas, and especially Cupid joining heartily.

Enter IOPAS, an old man with long gray beard and hair. He has a lyre, and is led by a Maidservant, who conducts him to a stool before one of the side tables. As he comes in, DIDO, who with the others has taken her seat again, speaks, pointing to him in high spirits.

DIDO

Ecce, Bacchum Musae sequuntur.

IOPAS

[After playing a short prelude on the lyre, the music of which may be furnished by a piano near by, he begins to chant in a slow and stately manner, accompanied softly on the piano, while he touches the strings of the lyre with his fingers]

Errantem canimus lūnam sōlisque labōrēs, Unde hominum genus et pecudēs, unde imber et ignēs, Arctūrum pluviāsque Hyadas geminōsque Triōnēs; Quid tantum Ōceanō properent sē tinguere sōlēs Hībernī, vel quae tardīs mora noctibus obstet.

[When he is through singing, after a short postlude, he stops playing, and they all applaud long and loud. He rises and bows. Dido with her own hands fills a cup and hands it to the servant, who gives it to him. He turns toward Dido and the guests, bows, drinks, and then speaks.

IOPAS

Prō tantō beneficiō di vōbis grātēs persolvant, ut meruistis.

[Then he is led out.

DIDO

Est quidem hōc diē nōbīs datum gaudium atque laetitia. Nē tamen oblīvīscāmur hospitēs nostrōs egēre auxiliō. Ut ego vōs nōvī, cīvēs meī, [Turning to them] necesse non est vos diū rogāre ut eos iuvētis. Ipsī vos docti estis periculis, fortūnā maris et terrārum, quid sit egēre amīcō.

BITIAS

[Rising promptly] Grātiās agimus, ō rēgīna, prō tālī sententiā, Ouidquid in nobīs est vīrium, exercēbimus ad eōs iuvandōs. Dum Trōiānī adsunt in nostrā urbe, nos ipsī tūtiorēs sumus. Eorum famā factīsque, per tötum orbem nötis, alii quoque defenduntur. Utinam igitur eis placeret inter nos manere, sociari nobiscum, partemque urbis nostrae pro scdibus perpetuis accipere.

> [The Carthaginians cheer. AFNEAS

[Rising] Non est virium mearum neque ingeni mei dicere quanto gaudio commotus sim verbis istis auditis. Maiōra beneficia iam accēpimus quam per multōs annōs rependere possīmus. Neque, sī līberum esset iūdicium, quicquam nobis gratius esset quam coniungere nos cum populo Carthaginiensium. Sī haec est deorum voluntas. nōbīs vērissimē placēbit. Sub dīs conscendimus acquor, incēnsā patriā nostrā, eōrum manibus nostra omnia trādidimus, eōrum arbitriō nōs sēdēs quaerimus in futūrum. Ut së rës habent, accipimus auxilium quod tam benignë vos dedistis, manēbimus vobiscum quam diū dī immortālēs nos manēre volent. In omnibus rēbus rēgīnā vestrā [Bowing to Dido] et vöbis [To them] nos dignos ostendere conabimur. Cives vestri, socii, et comites erimus, si dīs placēbit; omnī autem tempore, ut spērō, amīcī et benevolentēs.

> [He sits down. All except Dido and Aeneas rise and cheer. Standing thus they suddenly burst out in the following song, all raising their hands toward Dido and Aeneas during the singing of the first two lines of each stanza. The curtain falls as they are singing the last line.¹

Salvē tū, rēgīna nostra, Semper tē laudābimus. Seu malae rēs, seu secundae, Nostra spēs es optima.

Et tū salvē, noster hospes, Semper tū laudāberis, Bellō clārus, pāce mītis Rēx dīlectus omnibus.

1 Music on p. 174.

Personae

CĒPHĒUS, king in Ethiopia (Scenes I, II, IV, V)

CASSIOPĒ, his queen (Scenes I, II, IV, V)

SERVUS, a servant in the palace (Scenes I, V)

NŪNTIUS, a messenger from the temple (Scene I)

Cīvēs I and II, two citizens of the country (Scenes I, III, V)

Andromeda, daughter of Cepheus and Cassiope (Scenes II, IV, V)

SACERDŌS, a priest (Scenes II, III)

CHORUS VIRGINUM, friends of Andromeda (Scenes II, III, IV, V)

MULIERES I, II, and III, three women of the city (Scenes III, V)

Perseus, son of Zeus and Danae, betrothed to Andromeda (Scenes IV, V)

Рнīneus, formerly betrothed to Andromeda (Scene V)

SILENT CHARACTERS, a maidservant in the palace (Scene I), several men and women of the city (Scenes III, V), an attendant of the priest (Scene III)

The place is a city and the seashore in Ethiopia, in mythological times.

SCENE I

A room in the palace of CEPHEUS and CASSIOPE. There is a Maidservant in the background. CEPHEUS is seated. CASSIOPE is walking about as if disturbed and preoccupied.

CEPHEUS

Mīror, rēgīna mea, cūr tam sollicita sīs. Antehāc semper omnēs superāvistī laetitiā. Iam per tōtum diem tē videō cūrīs oppressam. Quidquid tē angit, petō ut patefaciās.

CASSIOPE

Nihil est. Aut sī quid est, ipsa dīcere nōn possum quid sit. Neque causa est cūr dē tē aut dē aliō homine querar. Semper enim tē bonum coniugem cognōvī. Veniam petō sī per mē dolēs.

[She lays her hand on his arm and sits down by his side.

CEPHEUS

Dolōrem nōn capiō nisi ē dolōre tuō. Uxor enim fuistī omnium optima. Mīrum est tamen, cum anteā semper laeta fueris, cum gaudium cēperīs ē fīliā nostrā et omnibus rēbus quae mātrī et rēgīnae sunt cūrae — mīrum est iam tē ex eīsdem hīs nihil nisi maestitiam capere. Andromeda nostra est optima fīlia et pulcherrima tōtīus terrae, ut semper fuit.

CASSIOPE

Est bona, est pulchra fîlia. Ēheu, timeō nē sit nimis pulchra, nē propter eius pulchritūdinem ipsa nimis gāvīsa sim.

Enter SERVUS; he bows.

SERVUS

Adest nūntius, rēgīna mea, quī dīcit sē iussū deōrum advenīre.

CASSIOPE

Ēheu, id quod timuī. Dī fortūnae hominum invident. [After a pause, in a depressed voice] Admittātur nūntius.

[The servant bows and goes out.

Enter NUNTIUS; he stands looking sternly at the king and queen.

NUNTIUS

Adsum nūntius deī suprēmī huius terrae. Audīte animō aequō cum pietāte quod deus mē dīcere iussit.

CEPHEUS

Parātī sumus audīre. Sīve dūrum sit, sīve laetum, deō pārēbimus.

NUNTIUS

Nē suprā deōs sē extollant quī mortālēs sunt nātī. Quōrum est potentia, eōrum dēbent esse laudēs. In hāc rē quoniam errātum est, supplicium quoque nōn deerit. Propter ūnīus fēminae adrogantiam [Looking at the queen] dolōribus opprimentur omnēs. Haec deus nūntiārī voluit.

[He turns and walks slowly away. Cepheus looks amazed, Cassiope depressed.

CEPHEUS

[To the queen, who sits with downcast face] Hōc dūrō nūntiō quid portenditur? Dīc, rēgīna mea, quae sententia tibi sit in animō. [Cassiope remains silent, with a growing expression of suffering on her face, which slowly sinks into her hands] Nē dolōrī tē dēdās, rēgīna mea. [Kindly] Quidquid id est, ā mē, rēge et coniuge tuō, ab omnibus cīvibus tēcum tolerābitur.

CASSIOPE

[Looking up wildly] Per mē, per mē omnēs perībunt. Ego sōla et tē et fīliam meam et populum nostrum perdidī. Ō miseram mātrem, ō miseram fīliam, quam pulchriōrem esse putāvī quam beātās illās immortālēs.

[Her head sinks down in deep grief. The maidservant and Cepheus conduct her away.

CEPHEUS returns; he walks up and down in anxious thought.

CEPHEUS

Est vērum quod dīxērunt sapientēs. Homō nē putet sē similem esse deōrum. Id caveat suprā omnia. [He is silent and continues walking] Hoc erat quod rēgīnam maestam tenēbat. [He walks as before, then stops] Quam calamitātem iam exspectem? Horrenda erant illa verba, "dolōribus opprimentur omnēs." [He begins walking again and shakes his head sadly] Ō Fortūna, minimē tibi crēdere dēbēmus. Utinam līberōs numquam habuissem. [He sits down in deep thought.

Enter Servus; he bows.

SERVUS

Adest cīvis huius urbis, quī colloquium petit cum rēge.

CEPHEUS

[After a pause] Admittātur.

[The servant goes out.

Enter Civis I; he stands respectfully at a distance.

CIVIS I

Licetne dicere, rex optime, quod omnium civium maxime interest?

CEPHEUS

[Looking up] Semper parātus sum audīre quod cīvēs mei dīcunt.

CIVIS I

Missus sum qui tē certiōrem faciam civēs tuōs per tōtam urbem cum servīs suīs perīre. Cum ad hanc hōram omnēs fuerint incolumēs, subitō corruunt et moriuntur. Omnia sunt plēna maerōris. Auxilium petimus, domine.

[He holds out his hands. A wailing is heard outside.

CEPHEUS

Auxilium petitis, quod libenter dabō sī poterō. [The citizen bows and goes out. The wailing is heard again.] Ō miserum populum! Ō miserum rēgem! Contrā deōs quis iuvāre potest?

Enter SERVUS as before.

SERVUS

Adest homō quī vēnit ex agrīs.

CEPHEUS

[Sadly] Admittatur. [The servant goes out and Cassiope enters, looking resigned and earnest, and seats herself beside the king, who does not notice her and speaks to himself] Homines moriuntur. Corruunt in media via.

The man from the country, CIVIS II, enters greatly excited.

Quod malum iam restat?

CIVIS II

[Breathlessly] Advēnī quam celerrimē ā marī. Horreō cum dīcō quid ibi vīderim. Ingēns mōnstrum, ō rēx, ē fluctibus oriēns in terram ēgreditur. Tōtum agrum iam vāstāvit. Aedēs hominum lātē iam dēlēvit. Fugiunt miserī neque tamen sē servāre possunt. Ipse vix effūgī. Nisi auxilium inveniētur, omnēs nōs perībimus.

CEPHEUS

Malum înfinîtum in hanc terram incidit. Deī ipsī dē nōbīs poenam petunt. Hoc tantum dīcere possum: Quod in rēgis est potestāte, fiet ut auxilium ferātur.

[The man goes out. Cepheus is silent.

CASSIOPE

[Earnestly] Ā dīs est hic dolor, ā dīs petendum est remedium. Mea est culpa. Quidquid impōnent, ferre parāta sum.

CEPHEUS

[More hopefully] Optimam viam invēnistī, rēgīna mea. Ut semper ārās cumulāvimus honoribus, ex illā pietāte iam spērāre possumus auxilium. Consulāmus deos, nam eorum est summa potestās. [They go out as the curtain falls.

SCENE II

The space in front of the temple of Jupiter Ammon. There is an altar in the center near the front of the stage. Cepheus and Cassiope, leading Andromeda between them, come slowly upon the stage, followed by a chorus of girls, companions of Andromeda. They are all in mourning except Andromeda. When they reach the front of the temple they halt, the chorus standing behind the others.

CEPHEUS

Hoc iter, omnium maestissimum, iam perfēcimus. Quod deus iussit, est perāctum. Tē, fīliam nostram, quam pulcherrimam accēpimus ā dīs, eīs iam reddimus. Haec est fortūna rēgnantium. Servī sumus populī. Quod malum est cīvium, multō maius malum est rēgis.

CASSIOPE

Et omnium maximum malum rēgīnac. Tū sōla es fīlia mea, fīlia cārissima. [She puts her arm around Andromeda's neck] Tē sōlam amāvī, tuā pulchritūdine et pietāte gāvīsa sum. Per tē mihi vīsa sum pār deābus. Utinam prō tē patī possem quod meā culpā patiendum est.

ANDROMEDA

Nōlī dolēre, māter mea. Nēminī vīta data est in perpetuum. Ille diūtius, hic brevius eius commodīs fruitur. Sī vōbīs probāta sum, nihil amplius optō. Quod sum libenter dabitur, dummodo tū et pater et populus servēminī. [She embraces her mother, who weeps on her shoulder and then turns sadly away. Andromeda kisses her, then turns to the girls] Neque vestrī, cārae comitēs meae, oblīta sum. Sī melior fortūna fuisset, vōbīscum multōs annōs vīxissem; postrēmō rēgīna vestra fuissem. Iam valēte et memoriā mē tenēte, ut ego vōs tenēbō dum vīta manēbit.

SCENE II

[She embraces them, one by one. Meanwhile the priest in impressive robes, with a staff and a chain, has appeared from the temple. They bow before him, and he begins to speak.

SACERDOS

Quī suprā deōs sē extollit, eōrum potentiā dēprimitur. Haec audīte quae per mē ā deō vōbīs nūntiantur. Mala omnia huius terrae fīnem habēbunt cum causa malōrum sublāta erit. Mōnstrō, quod in marī vīvit, quod terram vāstat et hominēs et pecus necat, haec virgō, ūna prō omnibus, dabitur deī dēcrētō. [Cassiope and Andromeda fallinto each other's arms, overcome with sorrow. The others raise their hands in grief and weep] Per mē, sacerdōtem ipsīus deī, vinciētur et ad mare dūcētur, ubi vinculīs tenēbitur tam diū quam dīs placēbit. Haec terra et eius incolae erunt sospitēs ex eō tempore quō virgō ad saxum religāta erit, modo sit animō volente.

ANDROMEDA

[With determination, raising her head and holding out her hands to be bound by the priest, while her mother continues weeping on her shoulder] Parāta sum. Vincīte manūs. Modo per meam poenam reliquī omnēs sint malīs suīs līberātī. Nē flēverīs, māter mea, filia tua dēdecorī tibi nōn erit. Libenter moriar, dum omnibus sit remediō. Comitibus meīs omnibus dīc mē eās amāre, ac iam valēte.

[She embraces her father, then her mother. The priest advances, puts the chain on her hands, and slowly leads her away. She walks with resigned but firm step. While her parents stand sadly gazing after, the chorus slowly sings the following stanzas, during the last lines of which the curtain falls.

CHORUS

[Singing 1] Iam valē, puella dulcis Fīliārumque optima; Nōbīs, dum vīvēmus, semper Tū manēs cārissima.

> Prō parentibus, prō nōbīs Vītā tū prīvāberis, Stella sed caelō pōnēris Et lūcēbis omnibus.

SCENE III

The space in front of the temple of Jupiter Ammon, as in the preceding scene. The altar has garlands hung on it. At first there is no one on the stage, then two Women enter talking.

MULIER I

Hic est dies vere laetus, quem numquam fore speravimus. Modo omnes videbāmur capitis damnātī. Moriebantur nūllo discrīmine senesque iuvenesque. Iam vīvunt florentque, et res suās secundās vident.

MULIER II

Ita. Mortis periculo et omnibus malīs, quae tam subito in terram nostram inciderant, iam liberātī sumus.

¹ Music on p. 174.

SCENE III

MULIER I

[Pointing] Vidēsne āram sertīs cumulātam? Diēs erit vērē fēstus omnibus. Supplicātiō dēcrēta est per tōtam urbem atque terram. Etsī nōndum est secunda hōra, tamen viae sunt complētae hominibus.

MULIER II

Haec omnia dēbentur deō, cuius benevolentiā servātī sumus.

MULIER I

Eī tamen, miserī hominēs, quōs mōnstrum illud dēvorāvit, hōc diē nōn gaudēbunt. Cum sīs mortuus, diēs fēstī nōn iuvant.

MULIER II

Favē linguā. Ista verba deō minimē placēbunt.

MULIER I

Sine dubiō. Eīs autem quī patrem aut fīlium āmīsērunt, hic diēs nōn gaudium, sed trīstitiam adferet maiōrem.

MULIER II

[Pointing] Ecce, estne illa vicina nostra, quae advenit?

MULIER I

Ea non laeta est, meā sententiā. Non ūnum solum filium, sed duos, per monstrum illud āmīsit.

Enter a Woman, in mourning, with a wreath, which she hangs on a corner of the altar.

MULIER II

[Addressing her] Gaudeō të salvam esse, vicina mea.

[159]

MULIER III

Grātiās agō, quod mē tam benignē adloqueris.

MULIER I

Valetne coniūnx tuus?

MULIER III

Valēmus ambō, sī validī sunt eī quōrum filiī sunt mortuī.

MULIER II

Male factum in filiis vestrīs. Tamen beātī estis quod tam bonī semper fuērunt.

MULIER III

Bonīs, ut vidētur, mātūrius moriendum est. Ō fīliī meī, utinam adhūc vīverētis. [She weeps.

MULIER I

Nē doleās. Sumus omnēs mortālēs. Nē rēx quidem suam fīliam servāre poterat.

MULIER II

Etsī rēx est omnium, tamen monstro dare filiam coactus est.

MULIER I

Ita est sors hominum. Sīve rēgēs, sīve pauperēs sumus, omnēs malō aliquō labōrāmus.

MULIER II

Quārē patiendum esse putō quod prohibēre non possumus. Melius mihi vidētur bonō fruī quod nōbīs concēditur ā dīs, quam nimis dolēre propter mala.

SCENE III

MULIER I

Rēgis fīliae mē miseret. Dīcunt eam vinctam catēnīs sōlam sedēre ad mare, ubi mōnstrum cotīdiē ēgreditur. Dūrius est hoc ferre cum sīs rēgis fīlia simul et pulcherrima omnium puellārum.

MULIER III

[Drying her eyes] Est hoc vērō dūrissimum. Potius paene mālim fīliōs meōs esse mortuōs quam semper vīvere in tālī sollicitūdine.

MULIER II

Fertur rēgīna ipsa huius malī fuisse causa, cum pulchritūdinem fīliae suprā deārum extolleret.

MULIER III

Hoc dīcō semper, quod vērum esse repperī, deōs esse dominōs nostrōs, quibus hominēs concēdere oporteat.

[Several men and women, among them the two citizens of Scene I, come upon the stage, followed by the chorus in festive garb, with garlands in their hair, who stand in a semicircle behind the altar.

MULIER II

Vidē, iam accēdunt hominēs. Tempus adest quō deō sacrificētur.

MULIER I

Quam pulchrae sunt illae virginēs cum corōnīs suīs! Cum eās videō, molestē ferō mē senem fierī.

The Priest appears from the temple. He makes preparation for the sacrifice, while the people are silent. Then he lights it with a torch which is handed to him by an attendant. Then, standing directly behind the altar, he raises his hands to the sky and begins to pray.

SACERDOS

Juppiter omnipotēns, per tē vīvimus ēreptī perīculīs, per tē negōtia nostra agimus omnia. Tū es suprēmus omnium deōrum, tū regis caelum et terrās, tū sōlus es dignus summīs laudibus et summō honōre. Precāmur ut nōs respiciās hōc diē et in futūrum, atque benevolēns et propitius sacra nostra accipiās. Maximē petimus ut spectēs grātum animum huius populī, quem servāvistī et ēripuistī ē maximīs perīculīs.

[As he walks slowly back toward the temple the chorus begins to sing.

CHORUS

[Singing¹] Audī nōs cum tē vocāmus, Summe rēx caelestium; Es tū dignus quī laudēris Sōlus ā mortālibus.

> Vītam nōbīs reddidistī, Summe rēx caelestium; Ex tuā manū fruēmur Prō dolōre gaudiō.

In caelō dum sōl lūcēbit, Summe rēx caelestium, Vīvet hic diēs per annōs Cōnsecrātus laudibus.

¹ Music on p. 175.

SCENE IV

A spot by the seashore. Andromeda, her hands chained fast to a rock, is sitting with her head bowed.

ANDROMEDA

[Raises her head slowly and lifts her hands to the length of the chains, then lets them sink 'again and looks at the chains Per diēs, per noctēs hīc vigilō, sōla et dēserta. Nōn omnīnō sõla tamen, nam võs, vincula mea, semper adestis. Praeter vos nullos iam habeo parentes, neque amicos, neque comitēs. Praeter hoc saxum nūllam habeō domum. Hoc lītus est patria mea. Vōs, sīdera, et sōl quī radiīs tuīs mē adhūc respicis, vos estis deī. Nam alios non habeo. Iuvenisne sim an senex nesciō, nec rēfert. Dolentī iuventa pār est senectūtī. [After a pause] Rēgis fīliam dīcunt mē fuisse, pulcherrimam quae esset in tōtō orbī terrārum. Per noctem in somnīs adhūc mihi videor lībera. In somnīs videō patrem rēgem mātremque rēgīnam. Posteā cum diēs exorītur, omnēs abiērunt. Sī ipsī adveniunt, procul astant lacrimantes, neque me appellare audent, neque respondere appellantī. Miserī sunt quōs vinculīs meīs morte līberāvī — līberāvī et cotīdiē līberō. Nam omnium terrōrum maximum est mönstrum illud, quod semper mē necāre minitātur, neque tamen mē necat. Quantus timor me invādit eius õs atque oculõs videntem. Timeō, eademque gaudeō. Nam hōc meō timōre tōtam terram ab omnibus periculis defendo. Nonne hoc est tanti? [She rises up and stands proudly erect] Ego, infirma puella, digna aestimor ā dīs immortālibus, quae vītam tot hominum cūstōdiam. Per mē vīvunt, per mē laetantur.

[She sits down and sinks into thoughtful silence. Suddenly a swishing sound is heard, as of wings, which causes her to look up in surprise and expectation. It is heard again, and she turns toward it, but turns away again and casts her eyes on the ground when Perseus appears.

PERSEUS

[Entering rapidly, stops short before her in surprise. He has a helmet, winged sandals, and a short curved sword, and holds his shield with the Gorgon's head on it averted, but so that the audience can see the device] Ouem video? Dic, virgo. An es dea? [Noticing her chains] Ouis te his vinculis adligāvit? Per deōs iūrō, tam pulchram et tam miseram mē non vidisse in toto itinere meo. Ouisquis est [He raises his sword] qui his cruciātibus tē adfēcit, etiam sī rēx sit huius terrae, per mē, virgō, līberāberis. [As she does not look up, he sheathes his sword and draws nearer] Cur tam maesta es? Tam pulchram, tam bonam virginem laetam esse decet. Non credo tua culpa hoc supplicium tē patī. Quidquid est quod tē dolēre coēgit, iam satis doluistī. Īra neque deōrum neque hominum semper manere debet. [He draws still nearer and speaks in a kindly tone] Oui sunt parentes tui? Vivuntne adhūc? Habesne frātrēs, sororēs, cognātos? Ouae terra tē genuit? [Appealing to her] Dīc, virgō, per dolōrem tuum et pulchritūdinem të oro, et fac me certiorem.

ANDROMEDA

[Looking up] Vidēs eam quae damnāta est ā dīs. Quisquis es, advena, ōrō tē ut abeās. Sacer est hic locus, neque quicquam in eō invenītur nisi dolor atque maestitia.

PERSEUS

Tantō magis mē quaerere cōgis quis cāsus tē adflīxerit. Neque ego sum dīs ignōtus. Perseus sum, quī terrās peragrō ad noxiōs pūniendōs et miserīs auxilium ferendum.

ANDROMEDA

Contrā voluntātem mihi persuādēs ut fāta mea patefaciam. Deōrum īra et mātris meae adrogantia ad hoc saxum mē adligāvērunt, ubi mōnstrum cotīdiē mē terret et mortem minātur. Sī quis hoc mōnstrum — sed quid dīcō? [In despair] Quis enim contrā deōs vītam daret in perīculum?

PERSEUS

At tamen, sī quis hoc audeat, quid sit eius praemium?

ANDROMEDA

Nölī mē, advena, lūdificāre. Tanta spērāre nön licet. [A splashing of water and a great puffing is heard. Andromeda draws away frightened, as she and Perseus look in the direction of the sound] Mönstrum! Mönstrum adest! [Holding out her folded hands to Perseus] Servā mē, obsecrō, servā vītam meam.

PERSEUS

[Drawing his sword] Non frustrā orāveris.

[He walks away sturdily to meet the monster. A louder splashing, puffing, and roaring is heard, with repeated blows, as if on the monster's back. Finally the noise subsides. Andromeda has been sitting in great fear and anxiety, looking on and holding her hands clenched before her. When the noise ceases she looks relieved.

PERSEUS

[Entering with his sword red with blood] Hōc periculō es liberāta. Nam monstrum est mortuum. Iam salva es et libera.

ANDROMEDA

[Gratefully] Numquam tibi, ut meruistī, grātiās agere poterō. Deus es, quī mē servāvistī.

PERSEUS

[Sheathing his sword] Non deus, sed coniunx tuus, ut spēro, nisi fāta obstant. [Andromeda sits with downcast eyes.

CEPHEUS, CASSIOPE, and the Chorus appear from the opposite side.

CEPHEUS

[Joyfully] Estne vērus nūntius ille quem audīvimus? Dīcunt mōnstrum interfectum esse. [To Perseus] Tūne es ille, iuvenis, quī per hoc factum nōs omnēs servāvistī?

PERSEUS

Nisi fallor, võs estis parentēs huius virginis. Ego sum Perseus, quī Gorgonem et hoc mõnstrum interfēcī, dīs ipsīs nōn ignōtus.

CASSIOPE

Utinam grātiās satis magnās tibi agere possēmus, ō iuvenis. Fīliam nōbīs reddidistī, quam mortuam iam plōrābāmus. [She and Cepheus shake Perseus' hand.

CEPHEUS

Numquam tibi praemium satis dignum praebēbimus, nisi gaudium patris et mātris tē dēlectat.

PERSEUS

Gaudiō vestrō vērō dēlector. Magis tamen gaudeam, sī mihi fīliam dētis in mātrimōnium.

CEPHEUS

Honore nos dignos aestimas quem numquam spērāvimus. Sit tua, sī ipsa vult.

PERSEUS

[Goes to Andromeda and holds out his hand. She has been sitting with her eyes on the ground] Sī idem velīs, ō virgō, quod volunt parentēs — dīcere nōn possum quam faciās mē beātum.

[Andromeda looks up and gives him her hand, which he grasps eagerly. As she does so, the chains fall from her and she rises with a happy smile. They go out slowly hand in hand, followed by Cepheus and Cassiope, and the chorus, who sing as they go.

CHORUS

[Singing¹] Noctem iam diēs fugāvit Quī tē vītae reddidit. Multōs annōs ūnī vīvās Quae vīvēbās omnibus.

¹ Music on p. 175.

SCENE V

Before the palace of Cepheus, on the wedding day of Perseus and Andromeda. Phineus and two other men, the Citizens of Scene I, are standing outside the palace gate, armed with swords and shields.

CIVIS II

Ut mihi vidētur, frūstrā hīc morāmur. Aliō itinere ībunt sine dubiō.

CIVIS I

Id non credo. Per hanc portam semper ierunt marītī rēgii.

CIVIS 11

Quod ad mē attinet, eant quālibet viā. Dēfessus sum exspectandō. Nihil agimus dum hīc stāmus, nisi ut hominēs nōs inrīdeant.

PHINEUS

[Angrily] Satis iam est querēlārum tuārum. Ego sum dux huius negōtī. Vestrum est facere quod iussī. [To Civis II] Putāsne minus mē hominēs inrīsūrōs esse, sī postrēmō iam dēficiam, cum per omnēs hōs annōs contenderim?

CIVIS II

Per mē quidem [Shrugging his shoulders] faciās quidlibet. Sī tē nōn dēterret rīsus hominum, ego sum contentus.

PHINEUS

Rēgem melius mē nosse putāvī. Postquam fidem dedit, postquam fīliam suam dēspondit, iam aliēno hominī, dē quo ante hoc tempus nēmo audīvit, nē hoc quidem dicto [Snapping his fingers] fīliam dat in mātrimonium.

SCENE V

CIVIS I

Est iniūria maxima, non tibi solum, sed omnibus cīvibus. Eī quī hoc rēgnum per multos annos dēfendērunt ab hostibus, quī omnēs laborēs pro rēge ipso sustinuērunt, iam exclūsī sunt et relēgātī, quasi contrā haec omnia fēcerint.

PHINEUS

Mercēdem nōbīs dēbet, quā iam prīvāmur. Fīliam dare pollicitus est. Illam igitur postulō, nōn quod eam praeter aliās habēre mālim, sed quod iūs est eōs habēre praedam quī pugnāverint.

CIVIS II

Est ut dīcis. Tamen nōn intellegō quid putēs tē facere posse iam cum diēs mātrimōnī adsit, cum novus marītus uxōrem suam domum dūcat.

PHINEUS

Quid facere possim? Id spērō mē ante noctem dēmōnstrātūrum esse. Nōnne nōs sumus trēs hominēs cum gladiīs? Saepe iam trēs hostēs ego sōlus occīdī, nē putēs mē timēre ut contrā ūnum nōs satis valeāmus.

CIVIS II

Dīcunt eum esse fortem. Sunt quī eum dīs ortum esse fingant. Certē nōn dubium est quīn mōnstrum illud interfēcerit.

PHINEUS

[Laughing] Fābulam istam audīvī. Eam crēdant puerī. Facile est causam invenīre, sī fidem servāre nōlīs. Sīc dīcās [In a mocking tone]: "Hic fīliam meam līberāvit ā mōnstrō. Igitur missus est ā dīs. Igitur est ipse deus.

ANDROMEDA

Igitur filiam meam habēre dēbet. Nisi hoc fiet, deī erunt īratī. Deinde mōnstrum, quod mortuum est, redībit."

The Chorus come in walking two and two, with garlands in their hair, as before, and followed by several men and women. They are singing when they enter and continue their song as they stand before the palace, facing the audience. While they are singing the last stanza, they pass on into the palace, followed by those who have come with them.

CHORUS

[Singing¹] Collis ō Helicōniī
Cultor, Ūraniae genus,
Quī rapis teneram ad virum
Virginem, ō Hymenaee Hymēn,
Ō Hymēn, Hymenaee,

Cinge tempora flöribus Suāve olentis amāracī, Flammeum cape, laetus hūc, Hūc venī niveō gerēns Lūteum pede soccum, Ac domum dominam vocā Coniugis cupidam novī, Mentem amōre revinciēns, Ut tenāx hedera hūc et hūc Arborem implicat errāns.

¹ Music on p. 176.

SCENE V

PHINEUS

[When they have all gone in] Iam est agendum, nē deus iste manibus nostrīs effugiat.

[He walks up to the gate and knocks with the hilt of his sword. A Servant comes.

SERVUS

Quis pultat? Quid vultis?

PHINEUS

Novum marītum petō ut vocēs extrā portam. Est quod cum eō conloqui volō.

SERVUS

Eum vocābō.

[He goes in. The three take up a threatening position a little distance from the entrance, and examine their swords to see if they are in good condition.

PERSEUS

[Coming out with his shield behind him, which he leans against the wall with the Gorgon's head averted. He is smiling and bows to the men] Vosne mē vocāvistis? Quid mihi dicere vultis?

PHINEUS

[Stepping forward a pace or two] Non diū tē morābimur. Linguā non loquēmur, sed gladio.

[As he says this, they draw their swords and advance along the back of the stage as if to cut off his retreat. Perseus quickly takes up his shield and turns the Gorgon's head toward them, whereupon they become rigid and stand in that attitude to the end of the scene. Their positions should be as varied as possible

ANDROMEDA

PERSEUS

[Turning his shield so that the audience can see the head] Sic semper fiat eis qui dis minitantur. [He goes into the palace.

In a little while the Chorus is heard singing within. After a line or two they come out, walking two and two, as before, singing as they do so, and stand grouped before the door till they reach the last stanza. Then they move away, and complete the song as they go. They are followed by Perseus and Andromeda, Cepheus and Cassiope, and the other men and women. The curtain falls just as the song closes, while the last ones are moving across the stage.

CHORUS

[Singing 1] Quis deus magis anxiīs
Est petendus amantibus?
Quem colunt hominēs magis
Caelitum? Ō Hymenaee Hymēn,
Ō Hymēn, Hymenaee.

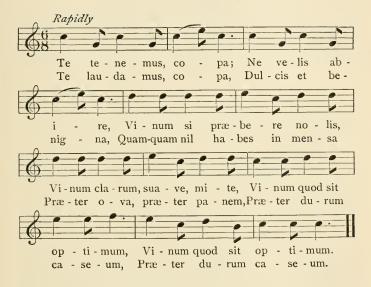

Nîl potest sine tē Venus, Fāma quod bona comprobet, Commodī capere: at potest Tē volente; quis huic deō Comparārier audet?

Omnēs võs simul, integrae Virginēs, quibus advenit Pār diēs, agite in modum Dīcite, "Ō Hymenaee Hymēn, Ō Hymēn, Hymenaee."

¹ Music on p. 176.

SONGS

I. TE TENEMUS, COPA (PAGE 94)

to - tas ho - ras di - vi - tem, Tu das mi - hi quod dem lon - ge mi - ser - ri - mam, Dum tor - que - or, dum

SONGS

3. SALVE TU, REGINA NOSTRA (PAGE 147)

te lau - da - bi - mus. Seu ma - læ res, seu se tu lau - da - be - ris, Bel - lo cla - rus, pa - ce cun - dæ, Nos-tra spes es op - ti - ma, Seu ma mi - tis, Rex di - lec - tus om - ni - bus, Bel - lo læ res,seu se - cun-dæ,Nos - tra spes es op - ti - ma. cla-rus, pa - ce mi - tis,Rex di - lec - tus om - ni - bus.

4. IAM VALE, PUELLA DULCIS (PAGE 158)

SONGS

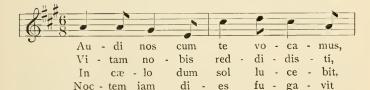

Fi - li - a-rumqu[e] op - ti - ma. No - bis, dum vi -Vi - ta tu pri - va - be - ris, Stel - la sed cæ - ve - mus, sem - per Tu ma - nes ca - ris - si - ma. lo po - ne - ris Et lu - ce - bis om - ni - bus.

- 5. AUDI NOS CUM TE VOCAMUS (PAGE 162)
- 6. NOCTEM IAM DIES FUGAVIT (PAGE 167)

qui lau - de - ris So - lus a mor - ta - li - bus. nu fru - e - mur Pro do - lo - re gau - di - o. es per an - nos Con - se - cra - tus lau - di - bus. u - ni vi - vas Quæ vi - ve - bas om - ni - bus.

7. COLLIS O HELICONII (PAGES 170 AND 172)

Col-lis O He-li-co-ni-i, Col - lis O He - li -Cin - ge tem - po - ra flo - ri - bus, Cin - ge tem - po - ra Ac do-mum do-mi-nam vo-ca, Ac do-mum do - mi -Ouis de - us ma-gis anx - i - is, Quis de - us ma-gis Nil po-test si-ne te Ve-nus, Nil po-test si-ne Om - nes vos si - mul, in - te - græ, Om - nes vos si - mul.

Cul - tor, U - ra - ni - æ ge - nus, flo - ri - bus Suav[e] o - len - tis a - ma - ra - ci, Con - iu - gis cu - pi - dam no - vi, nam vo - ca anx - i - is Est pe - ten - dus a - man - ti - bus? te Ve - nus, Fa - ma quod bo - na com - pro - bet, Vir - gi - nes, qui - bus ad - ve - nit in - te - græ ra - pis te-ner[am] ad vi-rum Vir-gin[em],O Hy-me -Qui Flam - me - um ca-pe, læ - tus huc, Huc ve - ni ni - ve -Ment[em]a-mo - re re - vin - ci - ens, Ut te - nax he-der[a] Ouem co-lunt ho-mi - nes ma-gis Cæ-lit[um]? O Hy-me-Com-mo-di ca-per[e]: at po-test Par di-es, a-git[e] in mo-dum Di-cit[e] O Hy-me-

Te vo-len-te: quis

Hy-men, Hy-me-næ-e, næ[e] Hy-men, 0 ge - rens Lu - te - um pe - de soc - cum, 0 Ar-bor[em] im - pli - cat er - rans. et huc huc O Hy-men, Hy-me-næ-e. næ[e] Hy-men, Com - pa - ra - ri - er au - det? huic de - o O Hy-men, Hy-me-næ-e. næ[e] Hy-men,

SACCUS MALORUM

Scene I. Ego mālim: I'd rather. — Mihi vidēris magnam rem factūrus esse: it seems to me you will do wonders. — Omnia sunt parāta: everything is ready. — in animō est: we intend. — sapientissimōs: the wisest ever. — Tempus morandī et loquendī: time to stop and talk. — Putant vērō: they do think. — iter facit: is making a trip.

Scene II. ēsse: to eat (esse: to be).— Ecce casam: there's a hut!— nēmōn: = nēmō + ne.— māla: bad.— māla: apples.— pater: translate uncle.— dīcere volō: I mean.— māter: translate auntie.— Accipe: we'll give you.— Nōn tam... quam: not so much...as.

Scene III. Trēs gradūs fēcī: I have taken three steps.—Iam diū adesse dēbēbās: you ought to have been here long ago.—Ignōscendum est: you must pardon them.—Nēve (nē + ve): and don't you.—Nōn ita eās cognōvī: I haven't come to know them in that light.— prō eārum dēlictō: for what they have done.— melius erat: it would have been better.— Sī quid sceleris: if any crime.—licet quaerere: you may look for it.— mihi ex hortō: from my garden.—Quī eum habuit: whoever had it.—Nihil hārum rērum intellegō: I don't understand any of these things.—tibi abstulisse: took it from you.— vērī simile: likely.

Scene IV. minus quinque sestertiis aestimanda: to be estimated at less than five sesterces (i.e. about twenty cents). — Eōs vērō accūsō: I do accuse them. — quod abstulerītis: of having stolen. — Gaī Furnī, genitive of Gaius Furnius, the farmer's name. — nōn satis causae: not ground enough. — Manūs abstinē! Mē līberā! hands off! let me go! — Nihil umquam, quod sciam: never a cent, that I know. — labōret: he shall work.

TIRONES

Scene I. Nonne ita placet: don't you like it this way? — Hoc gaudēbit: he will be delighted with this. — puerīlia dēponentēs et sūmentēs virīlia: laying aside boyish things and taking up those of manhood. — tibi adimo: I take from you.

Scene II. Diū exspectāmus: we have been waiting a long time. — neque quisquam: and no one. — Non esset mirandum: it would not be strange. — Nēminem umquam vīdisse videor: I don't think I ever saw one. — Quārē dīcō: that's why I say. — Dēfessa manendō: tired of waiting. — eīs obviam: to meet them. — Melius esset: it would be better.

Scene III. Iūrāvimus in verba imperātoris: we have sworn allegiance to the general. - omnēs dies et horās: every day and hour. - Ut tū dīcis: according to what you say. - in loco: in the proper place. - proelia facere: fight battles. - Num vobis proficiscendum est: you don't have to start, do you? - Helvētiis esse in animo: that the Helvetians intend. - Cur bellum non differatur: why can't the war be put off? - Quanto gaudio fruamur: how we should enjoy ourselves! - suāvis, suāvissimus: sweet, so sweet. - Hoc modo vērius dīcitur: this is a truer way to say it. - Quid agit: how is he getting along? - bonā valētūdine: in good health. - Sempronius Marco suo salutem : Sempronius to his dear Marcus, greeting. - quam magnis itineribus contenderet: at what a rate he pushed on. - nihil erat quod ederemus: there was nothing for us to eat. — O fortunam maximam: what luck! — res aguntur: there is something doing. - Id quod putavi: just as I thought. - Desinite iūrgāre: stop quarreling. - Cūr tubā canitur: what is the trumpet being blown for? - Est quod: there is something that. - Grātiās maximās agō: thank you very much.

Scene IV. is sum rūrsus quī sum: I am my own self again.
— cōgitāns: when I think. — āctum est dē: good-by to. — ab hominibus vacua: without a soul in it. — Aliud: anything else. — nūllō modō: not possibly. — optimā fidē: perfectly reliable. — eius mentem: translate, she. — velīmus: we should like. — Ita mē dī ament: as sure as I live (literally, so may the gods love me). — velīm eī tū hoc persuādeās: I wish you'd convince her of this.— Potest esse: it may be.— Licetne tibi: can you?— nē tibi malum accidat: that you don't get into trouble.

Scene V. poenās dare quantās ā mē petere tibi placēbit: to suffer any punishment it shall please you to inflict on me.— eō cōnsiliō ut: with the intention of.— iūstam causam redeundī: a good reason for returning.— Nihil malī: not... anything bad.

EXITUS HELVETIORUM

Scene I. Iam dūdum tē exspectāmus: we have been waiting for you a long time (see note on iam dū, Saccus Malorum, Scene III).

Nonne vīs ēsse: not ĕsse, see note, Saccus Malorum, Scene II.

quod edāmus: something to eat.—Edātis licet: you may eat.—

Ēheu, nōs miserōs: alas, we poor people!—prōpōnō animō: I think of.—parvulae: little darlings.—Rēctē dīcis: you've got it right.

Scene II. Dēfessus morandō: see note, Tirones, Scene II. — Tē ducem esse oportuit: you ought to have been commander-in-chief. — Idem ego sentiō: just what I think. — Aggredere: go at it! — Pudet mē: I am ashamed. — Id cavē iterum dīcās: don't you say that again. — Īre licet per nōs quidem: go for all we care. — Satis labōris: enough hardship. — magnō ūsuī: very useful. — mē paenitet: I regret. — Quid facerēmus: what could we do? — Pārendum est, sequendum est: transl. by imperatives. — cōgitāns: see note, Tirones, Scene IV. — quod spērēmus: that we can hope for. — adhūc vīvenda est: is still before you. — manendum nōn erit: we shall not have to stay. — Hocine: = hoc + ne.

Scene III. iam stīpendia faciō: for tense see note on iam dūdum, Scene I.—dormiēns: when he's asleep.—Quid vōbīs est cum meīs rēbus: what have you got to do with my property?—in aliō homine: on somebody else.—Puellane tē amet: a girl love you?

Scene IV. ut amīcum agere: act like a friend.—tubā canitur: see note, Tirones, Scene III.—scit imperāre: knows how to command.—sequī placet: it is a pleasure to follow.—Bene accidit: it is a good thing.—Nisi hoc esset: if it were not for that.

CICERO CANDIDATUS

Scene I. Quid mē vīs: what do you want with me?— neque gallīnam quidem: nor even a hen.— faxō cognōscat: I'll see that he finds out.— necne: or not.— scit sē dēfendere: knows how to defend himself.— Taedet mē: it makes me tired.— valeat dominus: good-by to your master.— pedibus vim iniciēs: put some go into your feet.— Dolōrem capiō ex pede: I have a pain in my foot.— in corde: in your head.

Scene II. Arpīnī: locative. — Salvē, salvē plūrimum: glad to see you, so glad to see you! — Quid agis: how are you? — nimis laborās: you are working too hard. — nec: but...not.

Scene III. meā quidem memoriā: as far as I can remember.
— sunt ūsuī: they are profitable. — lupus in fābulā: the wolf in the story (i.e. coming along just when you are talking about him).
— Hicine amet: he in love? — Hicine: = hic + ne. — illum hominem amāre: think of that man being in love! — dūcere cōnstituit: i.c., in mātrimōnium. — nihil bonī: no good. — Id nōn dīxerim: I wonldn't say that, I'm not so sure. — nōn coniectūram facere licet: you can't tell. — Salvē Cicero: hurrah for Cicero!

Scene IV. tardiōrēs: a little behind time.— Modo adveniant: if they will only come.— omnium meōrum: of all my people.—benevolentēs: devoted supporters.— patriae amantēs: patriotic.—idem quod omnēs: i.e. moneō.— vōs paenitēbit: you will regret.

CONIURATIO

Scene I. conveniendum erat: we were to meet.— Numquam satis est provisum: one can never be too careful.— Est laetum quod dīcis: I'm glad to hear it, that's good news.— Caveas velim: I wish you'd be careful.— mihi suspicionem movet: makes me suspicious.— Est capite operto: he has his head covered.— unde sit tibi tanta fīdūcia: where you get your confidence.— Placetne: is it agreed?— Nē ignorētis: don't be mistaken.— librī: i.e. the Sibylline Books.— Factum reperies: he easy about that (literally, you'll find it done). — Nihil erit quod querāris: you'll have no reason to complain in my case. — cūrābit sollicitandōs: will see to stirring up.

Scene II. quī vigilāverit: when he has been awake.—velīsne: would you?—Paene nūllum: hardly any.—Nōn ita cognōvī dominī amīcōs: that's not the sort I know our master's friends to be.—Abī in crucem: go to grass.—tē nostrī miseret: you pity us.—Habēmus quod: we have something that.

Scene III. Tanta vīs: such a lot. — Piget, pudet, etc. (supply mē): I am disgusted, I am ashamed, etc. — Fulviae suae: to his dear Fulvia. — Necesse est nos viros fierī: we must turn ourselves into men. — mē miseram: dear me. — quae pudenda sint: things to be ashamed of.

Scene IV. Ita fiat cūrābimus: we'll see that it's done.—Lūx certa: clear daylight.— Dīs grātiās: supply agō.— Bene meritī estis dē rē pūblicā: you have deserved well of the state.— Bene facis: you're very kind.— esse oportuit: ought to have been.— Sī nōn essent: if it were not for.— Haec rēs, ut mihi vidētur, nimium iam crēvit: it seems to me this business has gone too far.— dubitandum esse: we ought to hesitate.

DIDO

Scene I. quae doleās neque: to suffer and not.— omnibus iuvantibus: with the help of all.— mihi ēripiēs: you will tear from me.— omnibus meīs: to all whom I love.— Taedet eōs pārēre: they are tired of obeying.— cordī: see vocabulary.— Est rēgīnae: it is the queen's privilege.— Quid potius dīcam: what part shall I tell?— vīsa sunt: have appeared.

Scene II. tam diū abest: has been away so long.—quid explorātum: what report.—Iam diū: for tense compare tam diū.—Cuius modī: what sort of.— prō bonīs vōs habēbō: I shall treat you like good people.— scītō (imperative of sciō): I would have you know.—quam diū: = tam diū quam.— cui hospitēs sunt cūrae: under whose care strangers are.— pudet nōs: we are ashamed (of).

Scene III. maria omnia vectī: carried over all the seas.—
fluctū: from the sea.— non metus: supply est.— Officio nec tē certāre priorem paeniteat: nor shall you regret to have taken the lead in generous service.— Voltis et: = et sī vultis.— urbem quam statuō: = urbs quam statuō.— sōla miserāta: thou who alone hast pitied.— non opis est nostrae: it is not within our power.
— quae mē cumque: = quaecumque mē.— voluit: has willed.

Scene IV. eō duce: conducted by him.— melius nōbīs esse nōn posset: we could not be better off.— et tuā et patris tuī causā: both on your account and on your father's account.— Trōiā profectīs: those who have come from Troy.— velīs: be it thy will.— huius: supply diēi.— Hyadas: Greek accusative of Hyades.— tardīs noctibus: i.e. in summer.— sociārī (middle voice): to ally themselves.— Nōn est vīrium meārum: see note, nōn opis est nostrae, Scene III.— sē rēs habent: things are.— Seu malae rēs: supply sunt.

ANDROMEDA

Scene I. Dolorem capio: I suffer. — mātrī sunt cūrae: concern a mother (cūrae, dative of service). — animo aequo cum pietāte: patiently and reverently. — deus nūntiārī voluit: it is the god's will to have announced. — tibi in animo: in your mind. — exspectem: am I to look for. — dē nobīs poenam petunt: seek our punishment.

Scene II. dei decreto: according to the god's decree. — modo sit animo volente: provided she is willing. — dedecori non erit; dum sit remedio: will not disgrace; if it will bring relief (see note, curae, Scene I). — stella sed (= sed stella): but as a star.

Scene III. hōc diē gaudēbunt: will rejoice over this day.—Cum sīs mortuus: when you are dead (indefinite second person).— mātūrius: too soon.— Rēgis fīliae mē miseret: I pity the king's daughter.— mālim fīliōs meōs esse mortuōs: I would rather my sons were dead.— suprā deārum: i.e. pulchritūdinem.— Tempus quō sacrificētur: the time for the sacrifice to be offered.— molestē ferō: I hate to think.— benevolēns: translate as adverb, propitionsly.— dignus quī laudēris: worthy to be praised.

Scene IV. Dolentí: to one in grief.— respondère appellantí: answer me when I speak to them.— videntem: when I see.— decet: should.— tuā culpā: for any fault of yours.— Tantō magis: so much the more.— Neque ego sum: I myself am not.— Tanta spērāre non licet: such hopes I may not have.— Sit tua: she shall be yours.— Sī idem velīs: should your wish be the same.— ūnī vīvās: may you live for one.

Scene V. Per mē quidem faciās quidlibet: for all I care, do as you like. — nē hōc quidem dictō: without saying this much. — contrā haec omnia: the opposite of all this. — suāve olentis: sweet-smelling. — laetus: translate as adverb, joyfully. — Est quod conloquī volō: I have something to discuss. — Nīl commodī: no comfort. — tē volente: with your consent. — comparārier: old form of comparārī. — pār diēs: a like day (i.e. the wedding day). — in modum dīcite: chant.

ā, ab, w. abl., from, by abditus, -a, -um, out of the way abdūco, -ere, -dūxī, -ductus, lead away abeo, -ire, -ii, -itus, go away, depart, disappear, get out abigō, -ere, -ēgī, -āctus, drive off ablātus, perf. part. of auferō abripiō, -ere, -ripuī, -reptus, carry off, steal absēns, -ntis, absent abstineo, -ere, -tinui, -tentus, keep off abstulī, perf. act. of auferō absum, -esse, āfuī, āfutūrus, be away ac (atque), and accēdo, -ere, -cessī, -cessus, come, approach accido, -ere, -cidi, happen accipio, -ere, -cepī, -ceptus, receive, accept, get, take, take up acclāmātiō, -onis, f., acclaim, applause accūso, -āre, accuse acerbe, bitterly ācriter, sharply, strictly ad, w. acc., to, toward, until, for, near, at addūco, -ere, -dūxī, -ductus (imperative adduc), bring, bring up,

bring in

adeo, -ire, -ii, -itus, go up, come, come up adfero, -ferre, -tuli, -latus, bring adficio, -ere, -feci, -fectus, afflict adfīrmō, -āre, assure adfligo, -ere, -flixi, -flictus, cast adforet = adesset adhūc, hitherto, till now, still, up to this time adiciō, -ere, -iēcī, -iectus, add adimō, -ere, -ēmī, -ēmptus, take arvav adipiscor, -ī, adeptus, reach adiuvo, -āre, -iūvī, -iūtus, help adligo, -are, bind fast adloquor, -ī, -locūtus, speak to, address admitto, -ere, -mīsī, -missus, admit adno, -are, swim to, swim up adolēsco, -ere, -olēvī, adultus, grow adporto, -are, bring, carry in adpropinquo, -are, approach, come adrogantia, -ae, f., pride adsequor, -ī, -secūtus, secure, reach adsidue, constantly adsum, -esse, -fuī, -futūrus, be here, be present, be at hand adsuō, -ere, -suī, -sūtus, serv on adsurgens, -ntis, rising adulēscēns, -ntis, m., young man adultus, -a, -um, grown up adveho, -ere, -vexī, -vectus, bring, conviev advena, -ae, m., stranger advenio, -īre, -vēnī, -ventus, come adventus, -ūs, m., coming advoco, -are, call, call in aedes, -is, f., (sing.) temple, (plur.) house, dwelling aedifico, -āre, build aeger, -gra, -grum, sick aegritūdo, -inis, f., sorrow, care aemulor, -ārī, rival, vie with aemulus, -ī, m., rival Aeneadae, -um, m., followers of Aeneas aequor, -oris, n., sea aequus, -a, -um, even, calm aerārium, -ī, n., treasury aestās, -ātis, f., summer aestimo, -āre, value, consider; minoris aestimare, consider of less importance aetās, -ātis, f., age; bonā aetāte, in the prime of life Africa, -ae, f., Africa ager, agrī, m., land, country, field aggredior, -ī, -gressus, attack agito, -āre, pursue, chase agnus, -ī, m., lamb ago, -ere, ēgī, āctus, do, act, drive, accomplish, be about, treat, take part in, conduct; pass., be at stake; quid agit? how is he getting along? actum est de, it is all over with; vitam agere, spend one's life; grātiās agere, thank; age, agite, come agricola, -ae, m., farmer alias, at other times, usually alienus, -a, -um, foreign aliquamdiu, for some time aliquando, sometime aliquis, -qua, -quid -quod), somebody, something, some alius, -a, -ud, other, another, else Allobroges, -um, m., the Allobroges (a Gallic tribe) almus, -a, -um, fostering Alpes, -ium, f., the Alps alter, -tera, -terum, the other, second amāns, -ntis, loving; amāns, patriotic; as noun, lover amāracus, -ī, m., marjoram ambo, -ae, -o, both ambulō, -āre, walk, saunter amīcus, -a, -um, friendly amicus, -ī, m., friend āmittō, -ere, -mīsī, -missus, lose amo, -are, love, be in love amor, -oris, m., love, affection āmoveo, -ēre, -movi, -motus, take away, remove amplius, more, further an, but that, or Anchises, -ae, m., Anchises (father of Aeneas) ancilla, -ae, f., maid, servant ango, -ere, anxi, anctus (anxus), trouble, worry anicula, -ae, f., old woman animus, -ī, m., mind, spirit, heart; bonō animō, in good spirits; mihi in animo est, I intend; in animum venīre, come into one's head annus, -i, m., year aspicio, -ere, -spexi, -spectus, look ante, adv. and prep. w. acc., beupon fore, ago anteā, adv., before asto, -are, stand, stand near at, but antehāc, hitherto atque (ac), and, as antequam, conj., before antiquus, -a, -um, ancient, oldatquī, and yet time, antiquated; antiqui moris, ātrium, -ī, n., atrium (the main room of a Roman house) old-fashioned ānxius, -a, -um, troubled, anxious attendo, -ere, -tendo, -tentus, give aperio, -ire, -rui, -rtus, open attineo, -ere, -tinui, -tentus, conaperte, openly appāreo, -ēre, -uī, appear, be apcern; quod ad me attinet, so far as I am concerned parent appāritor, -oris, m., apparitor (an attribuo, -ere, -bui, -būtus, assign attendant of a magistrate) auctor, -oris, m., author, originator auctoritas, -atis, f., authority, appello, -are, speak to, call apud, w. acc., with, before, in the power presence of audeo, -ere, ausus sum, dare, undertake Apūlia, -ae, f., Apulia (a district audiens, -ntis, obedient in Southern Italy) aqua, -ae, f., water audio, -ire, -ivi, -itus, hear, listen, listen to aquila, -ae, f., cagle aufero, -ferre, abstuli, ablatus, āra, -ae, f., altar arbitrium, -ī, n., decision carry off, take away aufugiō, -ere, -fūgī, -fugitūrus, arbitror, -ārī, think, judge run away arbor, -oris, f., tree Arctūrus, -ī, m., Arcturus (a star) aura, -ae, f., breeze, air aureus, -a, -um, golden, of gold arcus, -ūs, m., bow auris, -is, f., ear arduus, -a, -um, steep auspicium, -ī, n., auspices; auspiargentum, -ī, n., money, silver cia facere, take the auspices āridus, -a, -um, dry auster, -trī, m., the south wind arma, -orum, n., arms aut, or; aut . . . aut, either . . . or Arpīnum, -ī, n., Arpinum (a town in Central Italy, birthplace of autem, but autumnus, -ī, m., autumn Cicero) auxilium, -ī, n., help, aid artifex, -ficis, m., artisan, goldavis, -is, f., bird smith avunculus, -ī, m., uncle artius, more closely arvum, -ī, n., field avus, -ī, m., grandfather callidus, -a, -um, shrewd, clever Bacchus, -i, m., Bacchus (god of canis, -is, m., dog cano, -ere, cecini, cantus, sing; baculum, -ī, n., staff barbarus, -a, -um, barbarian tubā canere, blow the trumpet barbarus, -ī, m., a barbarian canto, -are, sing beātus, -a, -um, blessed, happy cānus, -a, -um, gray, white caper, -prī, m., goat, he-goat bellator, -oris, m., warrior bellum, -ī, n., war capio, -ere, cepī, captus, take, get, catch, obtain, experience, feel bellus, -a, -um, nice capra, -ae, f., goat, she-goat bene, well, all right beneficium, -ī, n., kinduess, favor caput, -itis, n., head, life; capitis benevolēns, -ntis, kind, devoted; damnāre, condemu to death as noun, devoted supporter careo, -ere, -ui, w. abl., be without, benevolentia, -ae, f., kindness, lack Carthaginiensis, -e, Carthaginian; good will benigne, kindly as noun, a Carthaginian cārus, -a, -um, dear benignus, -a, -um, kind bēstia, -ae, f., beast casa, -ae, f., hut, shanty cāseus, -ī, m., cheese bibō, -ere, bibī, drink castellum, -ī, n., redoubt, fort bis, twice castra, -orum, n., camp; castra bonum, -ī, n., the good movēre, break camp bonus, -a, -um, good, kind, fine brevis, -e, short cāsus, -ūs, m., chance, lot, fate breviter, briefly catena, -ae, f., chain causa, -ae, f., cause, reason, occabulla, -ae, f., bulla (an amulet worn around the neck by children) sion, pretext; qua de causa, for this reason, for what reason? his (duābus) dē causis, for these C., abbrev. for Gaius cado, -ere, cecidi, casus, fall (two) recsons; tuā causā, for caecus, -a, -um, blind, hidden your sake; cuius causa, on whose caedo, -ere, cecidi, caesus, cut, account; causam dicere, to plead one's case here, chop caelestis, -e, hcavenly; as a noun, caveo, -ere, cavi, cautus, beware of, be on one's guard, take care, be god

[188]

caelites, -um, m., gods

calamitās, -ātis, f., calamity, dis-caelum, -ī, n., sky

calceus, -ī, m., shoe aster careful celebro, -are, celebrate, attend celer, -ris, -re, quick celeritas, -atis, f., speed

celeriter, quickly, fast

cēlo, -āre, hide, conceal cēna, -ae, f., dinner cēnō, -āre, dine, have dinner cēnseō, -ēre, -suī, -sus, be of the opinion certe, certainly certo, definitely, for sure certo, -are, contend, vie certus, -a, -um, sure, clear, reliable; certissimus, absolutely reliable; certiorem facere, to inform cēterī, -ae, -a, the others, the rest ceterum, still, at the same time charta, -ae, f., paper, sheet cibus, -i, m., food Cimbricus, -a, -um, of the Cimbri, with the Cimbri cingo, -ere, cinxi, cinctus, encircle circa, adv. and prep. w. acc., about, around circum, w. acc., around circumsto, -are, stand around, surround circumvenio, -īre, -vēnī, -ventus, surround Cisalpīnus, -a, -um, Cisalpine, this side of the Alps citerior, -ius, hither, on this side citius, more swiftly; dicto citius, swifter than speech cīvis, -is, m., citizen, fellow citizen, fellow countryman cīvitās, -ātis, f., state clāmō, -āre, shout, cry out, proclaim clāmor, -oris, m., shouting clārus, -a, -um, clear, bright, illustrious, famous, loud clēmēns, -ntis, lenient clēmentia, -ae, f., leniency coetus, -ūs, m., company, meeting cogitatio, -onis, f., thought, worry cogito, -are, think, think about cognātus, -ī, m., kin, relative cognomen, -inis, n., surname cognosco, -ere, -novi, -nitus, find out, find, recognize, become acquainted with; cognovi, know; cognitus, -a, -um, known cogo, -ere, coegi, coactus, compel, colligo, -ere, -legi, -lectus, gather collis, -is, m., hill colloquium, -ī, n., conference, audicollum, -ī, m., neck colo, -ere, colui, cultus, worship combibō, -ere, -bibī, drink up comedo, comesse, -edi, -esus, eat up comes, -itis, m. or f., companion, friend comēsse, inf. of comedo comitatus, -ūs, m., retinue, party comitia, -orum, n., election commodum, -ī, n., advantage commoveo, -ēre, -movi, -motus, move, disturb, alarm comparo, -āre, compare compleo, -ere, -evi, -etus, fill, cover comporto, -are, carry together comprehendo, -ere, -endi, -ensus, seize, arrest comprobo, -are, approve compulsus, -a, -um, driven conatus, -us, m., attempt concēdo, -ere, -cessi, -cessus, vield, grant concilium, -i, n., meeting

concordia, -ae, f., harmony

condemno, -are, convict consilium, -i, n., advice, plan, incondicio, -onis, f., condition condo, -ere, -didi, -ditus, found, esconsisto, -ere, -stiti, take a stand, tablish stop, find a home condūco, -ere, -dūxī, -ductus, lead constituo, -ere, -stitui, -stitutus, together, draw together decide, determine consul, -lis, m., consul confero, -ferre, -tuli, -latus, contribute, collect consulatus, -ūs, m., consulship consulo, -ere, -sului, -sultus, conconfertus, -a, -um, dense conficio, -ere, -feci, -fectus, finish, sult; w. dat., counsel make, spoil, do up; fame confeccontendo, -ere, -ndi, -ntus, contend, exert one's self, hasten tus, hungry as a bear contentus, -a, -um, satisfied confido, -ere, -fisus sum, w. dat., contineo, -ere, -tinui, -tentus, keep, trust confirmo, -are, strengthen hold in check congredior, -ī, -gressus, meet, clash continuus, -a, -um, in succession conicio, -ere, -iecī, -iectus, throw contio, -onis, f., mass-meeting; conconiectura, -ae, f., conclusion, guess tionem habere, to hold a meeting coniungo, -ere, -iūnxī, -iūnctus, contrā, w. acc., against, the opposite join together, unite coniunx, -iugis, m. or f., husband, contraho, -ere, -traxi, -tractus, drag together wife coniūrātio, -onis, f., conspiracy conubium, -i, n., marriage coniūrātus, -ī, m., conspirator convenio, -īre, -vēnī, -ventus, come conloco, -are, station, establish together, meet, assemble conloquor, -ī, -locūtus, confer, disconventus, -ūs, m., session of court; conventum habēre, m., to hold cuss conor, -ari, try, endeavor court conscendo, -ere, -scendo, -scensus, convexum, -ī, n., slope climb, scale, embark on convoco, -are, call tegether copa, -ae, f., landlady, woman conscribo, -ere, -scripsi, -scriptus, keeping an inn enroll conscriptio, -onis, f., conscription, copiae, -arum, f., forces cor, cordis, n., heart; tibi est cordī, drafting your heart is set on it consecro, -are, consecrate, hallow consequor, -ī, -secūtus, overtake coram, adv. and prep. w. abl., conservator, -oris, m., savior present, before you Cornelius, -ī, m., Cornelius (the consido, -ere, -sedi, -sessus, sit dozon, settle family name of Lentulus) corona, -ae, f., garland, wreath coronatus, -a, -um, with a garland on corono, -are, to crown corpus, -oris, n., body corruo, -ere, -rui, fall down corruptus, -a, -um, spoiled cotīdiē, daily, every day crās, to-morrow crātēr, -ēris (acc. crātēra), m., mixing bowl crēdo, -ere, -didī, -ditus, believe, trust (person in dat.) cremo, -āre, burn creo, -are, elect crēsco, -ere, crēvī, crētus, grow; nimium crescere, go too far Creusa, -ae, f., Creusa (wife of Aeneas) cruciātus, -ūs, m., torture crucio, -are, torture; fame cruciātus, dead hungry crūdēlis, -e, cruel crux, crucis, f., cross, gallows; in crucem ire, go to thunder cubiculum, -ī, n., room, chamber culīna, -ae, f., kitchen culpa, -ae, f., fault cultor, -oris, m., inhabitant cum, prep. w. abl., with (enclitic w. pers., rel., interrog., reflex. pron., mēcum, tēcum, etc.) cum, conj., when, while, since, seeing that, although cumulo, -are, heap up cupidus, -a, -um, eager, desirous of, longing for (w. gen.) cupio, -ere, -īvī, -ītus, desire, want, be eager, be anxious to cūr, why cūra, -ae, f., care, grief cūriosus, -a, -um, inquisitive cūrō, -āre, care for, take care, see to it, attend to; w. gerundive, to have a thing done, cause to be done curro, -ere, cucurri, cursus, run cursus, -ūs, m., course custodia, -ae, f., protection, guard, custody cūstodio, -ire, -ivi, -itus, guard, rvateh cūstos, -odis, m., guardian, keeper damno, -are, condemn; capitis damnāre, condemn to death Dardanius, -a, -um, Trojan dator, -oris, m., giver de, w. abl., from, about, concerning, of; quā dē causā, for this reason dea, -ae, f., goddess; dat. and abl. plur. deābus dēbeō, -ēre, -buī, -bitus, ought, owe; pass., be due decem, ten dēcernō, -ere, -crēvī, -crētus, decree, decide, vote decet, -ere, it is proper, it becomes dēclārō, -āre, explain, interpret dēcrētum, -ī, n., decree decumānus, -a, -um, used in porta decumana, rear gate of the camp dedecus, -oris, n., dishonor dēdo, -ere, dēdidī, dēditus, give up dēfendō, -ere, -ndī, -nsus, defend dēfessus, -a, -um, tired, worn out, tired out

dēficio, -ere, -fēcī, -fectus, fail, give dēfīō, -fierī, -fectus, fail deinde, then delecto, -are, delight, entertain dēleō, -ēre, -ēvī, -ētus, destroy delictum, -ī, n., fault, offense, what one has done dēligō, -ere, -lēgī, -lēctus, choose, dēmonstro, -āre, show, prove dēmum, at last denique, finally dēpono, -ere, -posuī, -positus, lay down, lay aside dēprimō, -ere, -pressī, -pressus, lower, crush dēpulsus, -a, -um, warded off dēscendo, -ere, -scendo, -scensus, climb down dēscrīptiō, -onis, f., drawing, plan descriptus, -a, -um, drawn, outlined desertus, -a, -um, deserted dēsīderō, -āre, need, require, miss dēsinō, -ere, -sīvī, -situs, stop, cease dēsistō, -ere, -stitī, hold off, stop, dēspērō, -āre, despair dēspondeō, -ēre, -spondī, -sponsus, promise in marriage dēsum, -esse, -fui, be wanting, fail dēterreō, -ēre, -uī, -itus, deter dēvorō, -āre, devour deus, -ī, m., god dexter, -tra, -trum, right di, plur. of deus dīcō, -ere, dīxī, dictus (imperative dic), say, tell, tell of, speak; causam dicere, plead one's case diēs, diēi, m., day; in dies, from day to day differo, -ferre, distuli, dilatus, put difficilis, -e, hard, difficult dignitās, -ātis, f., rank, dignity dignor, -ārī, deign dignus, -a, -um, w. abl., worthy; dignus esse, deserve dīlēctus, -a, -um, beloved diligens, -ntis, attentive, particular diligenter, carefully, diligently, industriously diligentia, -ae, f., diligence, care dīmitto, -ere, -mīsī, -missus, send out dīripiō, -ere, -ripuī, -reptus, plundiscēdo, -ere, -cessī, -cessus, go away, leave disciplina, -ae, f., discipline disco, -ere, didici, learn, study discrimen, -inis, n., distinction discrucio, -are, torture, torment dispello, -ere, -puli, -pulsus, scatter distrahō, -ere, -trāxī, -trāctus, disdiū, long, for a long time; diūtius, any longer; iam diū, long ago dives, -itis, rich dīvitiae, -ārum, f., wealth do, dare, dedi, datus, give, grant; in fugam dare, put to flight; in periculum dare, endanger doceo, -ere, -cui, -ctus, teach, show doleo, -ere, -ui, suffer, grieve, feel sad, hurt

efficio, -ere, -feci, -fectus, accomdolor, -oris, m., grief, pain, sufferplish ing domicilium, -ī, n., dwelling, house, effugio, -ere, -fugi, -fugiturus, escape, run away egēnus, -a, -um, in want (w. abl.) domina, -ae, f., mistress, lady dominus, -ī, m., master egeō, -ēre, eguī, need (w. abl.) domus, -ūs, f., house, home; domī, ego, I ēgredior, -ī, ēgressus, go out, come loc., at home: domo, from home donec, till, until ēheu, O, alas donum, -i, n., gift dormiō, -īre, -īvī, -ītus, sleep eho, ho, hello dubitātiō, -onis, f., hesitation ēiciō, -ere, ēiēcī, ēiectus, cast out, dubito, -are, doubt, hesitate expel ēlābor, -ī, -lapsus, slip out of dubius, -a, -um, doubtful; dubium, -i, n., doubt; sine dubio, no elephantus, -ī, m., elephant em, there ! doubt ēmigrō, -āre, move away, emigrate dūco, -ere, dūxī, ductus (imperative dūc), lead; dūcere in mātriemō, -ere, ēmī, emptus, buy emptor, -ōris, m., buyer monium, marry enim, conj., for dūdum, see iam eō, īre, iī, itus, go dulcēdo, -inis, f., sweetness epistula, -ae, f., letter dulcis, -e, sweet, dear equidem, certainly, for my part dum, while, so long as, until, proēripiō, -ere, -ripuī, -reptus, tear wided away, save, snatch away dummodo, if only, provided erro, -are, wander, err, lose the way, Dumnorix, -igis, m., Dumnorix be mistaken, commit a fault (a Haeduan chief) ēscendō, -ere, -scendī, -scēnsus, duo, -ae, -o, troo climb up, climb out duodecim, twelve ēsse, inf. of edō dūrus, -a, -um, hard, harsh, cruel estote, plur. imperat. of sum, you dux, ducis, m., leader, chief, head shall be et, and; et . . . et, both . . . and ē (ex), w. abl., from, out of, of ecce, there! see! see there! etiam, also, too, even ēdīcō, -ere, -dīxī, -dictus, proclaim, etsi, although eundus, -a, -um, gerundive of eo issue instructions euntis, gen. of iens, pres. partic. ēdictum, -ī, n., proclamation, instructions ēvānēsco, -ere, -vānuī, vanish edō, ēsse, ēdī, ēsus, eat ēveniō, -īre, -vēnī, -ventus, happen, facere, inform; male factum, too fall to one's lot factū, supine of faciō; see facilis ex (ē), w. abl., from, out of, of exceptus, -a, -um, excepted, except factum, -ī, n., deed excito, -are, rouse, wake facultās, -ātis, f., opportunity exclusus, -a, -um, shut out fallo, -ere, fefelli, falsus, deceive; exeo, -ire, -ii, -itus, go out, escape pass., be mistaken exerceo, -ere, -ui, -itus, exert, falsus, -a, -um, false, not true fāma, -ae, f., report, reputation exercise exercitus, -ūs, m., army fames, -is, f., hunger; see conficio exhauriō, -īre, -hausī, -haustus, and cruciō draw out, experience familia, -ae, f., household, family exīstimō, -āre, consider familiaris, -e, intimate; as noun, exitus, -ūs, m., exodus, departure close friend exoptātus, -a, -um, longed for fastīgium, -ī, n., pinnacle, high exorior, -īrī, -ortus, rise up, appear fātum, -ī, n., fate experior, -īrī, -pertus, try exploratus, -a, -um, discovered faveo, -ēre, fāvī, fautus, be favorexquiro, -ere, -quisivi, -quisitus, able; favere lingua, be silent; search out, inquire into favens, with kindly spirit faxo, old fut. of facio, I'll see to it exsicco, -are, drain, empty exsilium, -ī, n., exile fēlīcitās, -ātis, f., good fortune, exspecto, -are, wait, wait for, look happiness for, expect fēlīx, -īcis, happy exstruo, -ere, -struxi, -structus, fēmina, -ae, f., woman build up fera, -ae, f., wild beast fero, ferre, tuli, lātus (imperative extollo, -ere, lift up, exalt extrā, w. acc., outside of fer), bear, bring, say, extol, enextrema, -orum, n., farthest places ferox, -ocis, proud, stubborn, sure fābula, -ae, f., story, tale of one's self facētiae, -ārum, f., witticisms, ferreus, -a, -um, iron, of iron fēstus, -a, -um, festal; fēstus diēs, smartness facētus, -a, -um, witty holiday fidelis, -e, trustworthy, faithful facile, casily fides, -ei, f., good faith, confidence, facilis, -e, easy; facilis factū, easv

to do facio, -ere, feci, factus (imperative fac), make, do; certiorem pledge, word of honor fiducia, -ae, f., confidence

filia, -ae, f., daughter

finis, -is, m., end; plur., territory fīō, fierī, factus sum, become, happen, take place, be done (= pass. of facio) flammeus, -ī, m., bridal veil fleo, flere, flevi, fletus, weep floreo, -ere, -ui, flourish, prosper flos, floris, m., flower fluctus, -ūs, m., wave flümen, -inis, n., river fluvius, -ī, m., river, stream fore, fut. inf. of sum fortasse, perhaps fortis, -e, brave, strong fortiter, bravely fortitūdō, -inis, f., courage fortuna, -ae, f., fortune, luck, success; Fortuna, Fortune (the goddess) forum, -ī, n., forum, market place, public square frāctus, -a, -um, broken down (frangō) frango, -ere, fregi, fractus, break, break down, smash, wereck frāter, -tris, m., brother frēnō, -āre, bridle, control fretum, -ī, n., strait, sea frīgus, -oris, n., cold frumentum, -i, n., grain fruor, -ī, frūctus, w. abl., enjoy; gaudio frui, enjoy one's self frūstrā, in vain fuga, -ae, f., flight; in fugam dare, put to flight fugiō, -ere, fūgī, fugitūrus, flee, run away, run away from fīlius, -ī, m., son

fingo, -ere, finxi, fictus, imagine fugo, -āre, put to flight, drive away fundo, -ere, fūdī, fūsus, pour, shed für, -is, m., thief fūror, -ārī, steal fürtum, -ī, n., theft; fürtum! futurus, -a, -um, fut. part. of sum; in futurum, in the future Gallia, -ae, f., Gaul Gallicus, -a, -um, Gallic gallina, -ae, f., hen Gallus, -ī, m., a Gaul gaudeo, -ēre, gāvīsus, be glad, rejoice, be happy gaudium, -ī, n., jov, delight geminus, -a, -um, troin gens, -ntis, f., nation genuī, perf. of gignō genus, -eris, n., offspring, progeny, Germānus, -i, m., a German gero, -ere, gessi, gestus, carry on, conduct, wear; se gerere, behave: male gestum, a bad stroke of business gigno, -ere, genui, genitus, bring forth, bear gladius, -ī, m., sword glēba, -ae, f., clod, soil gloria, -ae, f., glory, renoven gloriosus, -a, -um, full of glory Gorgo, -onis, f., Gorgon (a monster with snaky hair) gradus, -ūs, m., step; gradūs facere, take steps Grāī, -ōrum, m., Greeks grandis, -e, full-grown, big grānum, -ī, n., grain, speck grātēs, f., thanks hic, here hiems, -mis, f., winter grātia, -ae, f., gratitude; grātiās agere, to thank hodie, to-day grātus, -a, -um, pleasing, grateful, homo, -inis, m., man, human being; acceptable; grātum, -ī, n., a favor plur., people, persons gravis, -e, heavy, hard, serious, honestus, -a, -um, respectable important honor (honos), honoris, m., honor, gravitās, -ātis, f., dignity offering, sacrifice gustō, -āre, taste hōra, -ae, f., hour gutta, -ae, f., drop horrendus, -a, -um, awful, gruehabeo, -ere, -ui, -itus, have, conhorreo, -ere, -ui, shudder sider; sē habēre, to be hortus, -ī, m., garden hospes, -itis, m., stranger, guest habitō, -āre, live, reside hospitium, -ī, n., hospitality, en-Haedui, -orum, m., the Haeduans (a Gallic tribe) tertainment hostis, -is, m., enemy, foe harēna, -ae, f., sand, shore hasta, -ae, f., spear hūc, hither, here; hūc . . . hūc, hauriō, -īre, hausī, haustus, drazv, hither . . . thither drain, shed Hyades, -um, f., the Hyades (a conhedera, -ae, f., ivy stellation) Heliconius, -a, -um, of Ilelicon Hymen, -enis, m., Hymen (god of Helvētia, -ae, f., Helvetia (the marriage) modern Switzerland) Hymenaeus, -ī, m., god of mar-Helvēticus, -a, -um, Helvetian riage Helvētius, -ī, m., a Helvetian hem, O! why! well! look at that! iaceō, -ēre, -uī, lie hercule, by George (lit., by Hercuiactātus, -a, -um, tossed iam, now, already, presently; non Hesperia, -ae, f., Ilesperia, i.e. iam, no longer; iam diū, iam Italy dūdum, long ago hesternus, -a, -um, yesterday's; iānua, -ae, f., door . hesternō diē, yesterday ibi, there idem, eadem, idem, the same; at heus, hello ! say! hiberna, -orum, n., winter quarters the same time, also hībernus, -a, -um, of winter idoneus, -a, -um, suitable, proper hic, haec, hoc, this; he, she, it; igitur, therefore, then hic . . . ille, the latter . . . the ignis, -is, m., fire former, the one . . . the other ignoro, -are, be ignorant (of) ignosco, -ere, -novi, -notus, w. dat., incipio, -ere, -cepī, -ceptus, begin incola, -ae, m., inhabitant pardon incolumis, -e, unharmed ignotus, -a, -um, unknown : ignoincommodus, -a, -um, inconventus, -ī, m., a stranger ille, illa, illud, that; he. she, it; ient; incommodum facere, cause hic . . . ille, the onc . . . the other inconvenience incumbo, -ere, -cubuī, -cubitus, illic, there bend forward, exert one's self imāgō, -inis, f., picture, likeness indicium, -ī, n., evidence imber, -bris, m., rain indico, -are, point out, show, reimmortalis, -e, immortal: immortālēs, -ium, the gods impedimentum, -ī, n., hindrance; indignus, -a, -um, w. abl., unworimpedimento esse, to hinder thv impedio, -īre, -īvī, -ītus, hinder, induō, -ere, -uī, -ūtus, dress, put interfere with indūtus, -a, -um, dressed imperātor, -ōris, m., general īnfandus, -a, -um, awful, terrible imperītus, -a, -um, unskilled, inīnfēstō, -āre, haunt, infest experienced (w. gen.) īnfēstus, -a, -um, hostile imperium, -ī, n., authority, control, government, supreme power, īnfimus, -a, -um, lozvest, lozvliest infinitus, -a, -um, boundless command īnfīrmus, -a, -um, weak impero, -are, w. dat. of pers., order, give orders ingenium, -ī, n., ability ingens, -ntis, great, huge, big impetro, -are, obtain inicio, -ere, -iecī, -iectus, inject impetus, -ūs, m., attack inimīcus, -a, -um, hostile, unimplico, -are, infold, wind about friendly; inimicus, -i, m., an impono, -ere, -posui, -positus, impose, order enemy improbus, -ī, m., reprobate inīquē, unjustly in, w. acc., into, upon, to, till, initium, -ī, n., beginning iniūria, -ae, f., wrong, injury° against; w. abl., in, on, in respect to, in the case of, among iniussū (abl. case), without orders iniussus, -a, -um, without orders, inānis, -e, empty incendium, -i, n., conflagration unbidden incendo, -ere, -cendo, -census, set iniūstē, wrongly, unjustly innocēns, -ntis, innocent on fire, burn incido, -ere, -cidi, come upon, hapinopia, -ae, f., want, privation pen upon inquam, I say inrīdeō, -ēre, -rīsī, -rīsus, laugh at incīdō, -ere, -cīdī, -cīsus, cut in, carve inrumpo, -ere, -rūpī, -ruptus, break ipse, ipsa, ipsum, intens. pron., myself, yourself, himself, etc. īnsānus, -a, -um, unsound; īnsānā īra, -ae, f., anger mente, crasy īrāscor, -ī, īrātus, become angry īrātus, -a, -um, angry, enraged īnscrībō, -ere, -scrīpsī, -scrīptus, is, ea, id, he, she, it; this, that insidiae, -ārum, f., trap, treachery iste, ista, istud, that of yours, that īnsidiātor, -oris, m., highway-(often in contempt) ita, so, in such a way, such, yes man insignis, -e, distinguished, con-Italia, -ae, f., Italy itaque, therefore spicuous īnspiciō, -ere, -spēxī, -spectus, iter, itineris, n., way, journey, trip, look into road; iter facere, to march; magna itinera, forced marches īnsum, -esse, -fuī, be in integer, -gra, -grum, fresh, young iterum, again intellego, -ere, -lexi, -lectus, uniubeo, -ēre, iussī, iussus, order, bid iucundus, -a, -um, pleasant, nice derstand iūdex, -icis, m., judge inter, w. acc., among, amid intereā, meanwhile iūdicium, -ī, n., judgment, verdict, interest, it interests, concerns; nidecision, court hil interest, there is no differiūdico, -āre, judge iugulātor, -oris, m., cut-throat, asence interficio, -ere, -feci, -fectus, kill sassin interim, meanwhile iugulo, -are, cut the throat, murintermissio, -onis, f., interruption Iūno, -onis, f., Juno (wife of intermitto, -ere, -mīsī, -missus, stop, rest, lay off Jupiter) intrā, w. acc., inside of Iuppiter, Iovis, m., Jupiter (the intrō, -āre, enter supreme god) invādo, -ere, -vāsī, -vāsus, attack, iūrgō, -āre, scold iūrō, -āre, swear seize iūs, iūris, n., right, justice; iūra invenio, -ire, -veni, -ventus, find invideo, -ere, -vidi, -visus, w. dat., dare, dispense justice, pronounce judgment invidia, -ae, f., dislike, hatred iūs iūrandum, iūris iūrandī, n., invius, -a, -um, pathless oath ioculātor, -oris, m., joker iussū, abl., by order ioculor, -ārī, joke, jest iūstitia, -ae, f., justice iūstus, -a, -um, just, strict

Iovis, gen. of Iuppiter

iuvenis, -e, young; iuvenis, -is, m., young man iuventa, -ae, f., youth (time of life) iuvo, -āre, iūvī, iūtus, help, aid labor, -oris, m., labor, hardship laboro, -are, work, labor, suffer, be afflicted lac, lactis, n., milk lacero, -are, mangle lacrima, -ae, f., tear lacrimo, -are, weep laedo, -ere, laesi, laesus, hurt, laetitia, -ae, f., cheer, joyfulness laetor, -ārī, rejoice laetus, -a, -um, joyful, glad, happy, prosperous lagēna, -ae, f., bottle lapis, -idis, m., stone Lares, -um, m., Lares, household gods lārva, -ae, f., goblin lātē, far and wide lateo, -ere, -ui, be concealed latro, -onis, m., robber laudo, -āre, praise, approve laus, laudis, f., praise lectulus, -ī, m., bed lēgātiō, -onis, f., embassy lēgātus, -ī, m., lieutenant legio, -onis, f., legion lego, -ere, lego, lectus, read leniter, gently lepus, -oris, m., hare, rabbit levo, -are, relieve, help lēx, lēgis, f., law libenter, willingly, gladly liber, -brī, m., book līber, -era, -erum, free Līberālia, -ium, n., Liberalia (March 17, a Roman festival, when boys put on the man's toga) līberē, freely līberī, -ōrum, m., children līberō, -āre, free, let go lībertās, -ātis, f., freedom lībertus, -ī, m., freedman lībum, -ī, n., cake Libya, -ae, f., Libya (ancient name of Africa) Libycus, -a, -um, Libyan licet, -ēre, licuit, impers., it is permitted, it is allowed, may, have a chance (w. dat.) līctor, -oris, m., lictor (an attendant of the higher magistrates) lignum, -ī, n., wood līnea, -ae, f., line lingua, -ae, f., tongue, speech; favēre linguā, be silent littera, -ae, f., letter lītus, -oris, n., seashore locus, -ī, m., plur. loca, n., place, spot longē, far longinquus, -a, -um, far distant longus, -a, -um, long, tall loquor, -ī, locūtus, speak, talk, say lūceo, -ēre, lūxī, shine lūdibrium, -ī, n., mockery, sport; lūdibrio habere, to mock; lūdibrio esse, be an object of mockery lūdificō, -āre, mock lūdo, -ere, lūsī, lūsus, play

lūdus, -ī, m., school

lūna, -ae, f., moon

lupus, -ī, m., wolf lūstro, -āre, explore, wander over lūteus, -a, -um, yellow lūx, lūcis, f., light, daylight; prīmā lūce, at daybreak M., abbrev. for Mārcus madefacio, -ere, -fēcī, -factus, wet, soak maeror, -oris, m., sorrow, mourning maestitia, -ae, f., sadness maestus, -a, -um, sad magis, more magister, -trī, m., master, teacher magistrātus, -ūs, m., magistrate magnopere, greatly, very much, highly magnus, -a, -um, great, large, immaior, maius, compar. of magnus; maiores, -um, m., ancestors, forefathers male, ill, badly, not correctly; male factum, too bad ! mālō, mālle, māluī, prefer mālum, -ī, n., apple malus, -a, -um, bad, wicked, poor; malum, -ī, n., trouble, calamity, misfortune maneo, -ēre, mānsī, mānsus, stay, remain, wait, wait for, last manifestus, -a, -um, evident, clear mānsuētus, -a, -um, gentle, wellbehaved manus, -ūs, f., hand, band mare, -is, n., sea

maritus, -i, m., husband, pl. couple;

Marius, -ī, m., Marius (a famous

novus marītus, bridegroom

Roman general, born near Arpinum) māter, -tris, f., mother mātercula, -ae, f., little mother, dear little mother mātrimonium, -ī, n., marriage; in mātrimonium dūcere, to marry mātūrē, early, soon mātūrō, -āre, hasten, hurry up maxime, very, particularly, especially, most of all maximus, superl. of magnus; maximo opere, most, very much mē, acc. and abl. of ego mēcastor, goodness / (lit., so help me Castor) medius, -a, -um, middle of; media nox, midnight mehercule, by George! (lit., so help me Hercules) meī, gen. of ego melior, melius, compar. of bonus memento, imperative, remember meminī, -isse, remember memor, -oris, mindful memoria, -ae, f., memory: memoriā tenēre, to remember mendax, -acis, lying; as noun, a liar mendīcus, -ī, m., beggar mens, -ntis, f., mind, thought; in mentem venire, come into one's head mēnsa, -ae, f., table mēnsis, -is, m., month mercenārius, -ī, m., hired man merces, -edis, f., pay, reward mereo, -ere, -ui, -itus (and depon. mereor), deserve metuō, -ere, -uī, fear, be afraid metus, -ūs, m., fear meus, -a, -um, my, my dear mī, voc. of meus; dat. of ego mihi, dat. of ego

mīles, -itis, m., soldier mīlitia, -ae, f., warfare; mīlitiae, loc., in war minimē, least, not at all, very little minime, teast, not at all, very time minimus, superl. of parvus minitor, -ārī, threaten (w. dat.)

minor, -ārī, threaten (w. dat.)
minor, minus, compar. of parvus; minōrēs, -um, m., descendants minus, adv., less mīror, -ārī, wonder, wonder at mīrus, -a, -um, wonderful, strange miser, -era, -erum, wretched, unfortunate, unhappy, pitiful miserābilis, -e, pitiable miserātus, -a, -um, pitying, having pity miseret, -ēre, impers., pity, feel sorry for miseria, -ae, f., misery mītis, -e, mild mittö, -ere, mīsī, missus, send modo, only, just, lately, provided modus, -ī, m., manner, way, tune; in modum dīcere, to chant; omnī modō, in every way; eius modī, huius modī, such molestē ferre, be annoyed, be dissatisfied molestia, -ae, f., annoyance molestus, -a, -um, troublesome moneō, -ēre, -uī, -itus, urge, warn, advise

möns, -ntis, m., mountain mönstrum, -ī, n., monster mora, -ae, f., delay morbus, -ī, m., disease mordeō, -ēre, momordī, morsus, bite morior, -ī, mortuus, die moror, -ārī, delay, stay, tarry, hang around

mors, -rtis, f., death mortālis, -e, mortal; as noun, a mortal

mortuus, -a, -um, dead (morior) mõs, mõris, m., custom, manner; antīqui mõris, old-fashioned moveō, -ēre, movī, motus, move; sē movēre, to stir mox, soon

mulier, -eris, f., woman multitūdō, -inis, f., crowd multō, adv., much (w. comparatives)

multus, -a, -um, much; plur., many; multā nocte, late at night mūniō, -īre, -īvī, -ītus, fortify mūnus, -eris, n., task, duty mūrus, -ī, m., wall
Mūsae, -ārum, f., the Muses nam, conj., for nancīscor, -ī, nactus, obtain, get, fall in with nārrō, -āre, tell nāscor, -ī, nātus, be born

mūtō, -āre, change

nātū, abl.: maior nātū, older nātus, -a, -um, born, old (nāscor) naufragium, -ī, n., shipwreck; naufragium facere, suffer shipwreck

naufragus, -a, -um, shipwrecked noli, nolite, do not (imperat, of nōlō) nāvis, -is, f., ship nolo, nolle, nolui, not want, not -ne, added to first word of quest.; in indir. quest., whether wish, be unwilling nē, w. subj., not, do not, let not, nomen, -inis, n., name that not, lest, (w. verbs of fearnominatim, by name, expressly non, not ing) that nondum, not vet nē . . . quidem, not even nec (neque), and not, but not, $n\bar{o}nne = n\bar{o}n + ne$ (in questions) nonnulli, -ae, -a, some nor; nec . . . nec, neither . . . nos, we nor nosco, -ere, novi, notus, learn; necesse, necessary perf., know necessitūdo, -inis, f., necessity nosse, perf. inf. of nosco neco, -are, kill noster, -tra, -trum, our, our dear neglegens, -ntis, indifferent nostrī negotium, -ī, n., business, task gen. of nos nostrum nēmo, -inis, no one, nobody notus, -a, -um, known, wellneque (nec), and not, but not, known nor: neque . . . neque, neither notus, -i, m., the south wind . . . nor novi, perf. of nosco nesciō, -īre, -īvī, -ītus, not know novus, -a, -um, new, late nescius, -a, -um, ignorant, not nox, noctis, f., night; multa nox, knowing (w. gen.) late at night neve (neu), and not, and don't, noxius, -a, -um, guilty and that not $(= n\bar{e} + ve)$ nūbēs, -is, f., cloud nihil, nothing; nihilo minus, none nūdius tertius, day before yesterthe less day $n\bar{i}l = nihil$ nūdus, -a, -um, bare nimbosus, -a, -um, cloudy nugae, -ārum, f., trifles, nonsense nimis, too nullus, -a, -um, no, none nimium, too, too much num, used in quest. expecting a nisi, if not, except, unless neg. answer; in indir. quest., niveus, -a, -um, snow-white whether; num quid, whether anynobis, dat. and abl. of nos noceo, -ēre, -uī, -itus, w. dat., harm, thing numen, -inis, n., deity hurt numero, -are, count noctū, at night numerus, -ī, m., number nocturnus, -a, -um, in the night, numquam, never at night

nuntio, -are, declare, report, announce nuntius, -i, m., messenger, message, ō, 0 obligātus, -a, -um, under obligaobliviscor, -i, oblitus, w. acc. or gen., forget obscūrus, -a, -um, dark obsecro, -are, beseech, pray observo, -āre, watch obsigno, -are, seal obsitus, -a, -um, planted over, patched over obsto, -are, oppose, stand in the way, delay obtempero, -āre, w. dat., submit, obtestor, -ārī, beseech, adjure obtineo, -ere, -nui, -ntus, hold obviam, adv., w. dat., to meet occīdo, -ere, -cīdī, -cīsus, kill, slay, finish occlūsus, -a, -um, shut up occulto, -are, conceal occupō, -āre, occupy, seize; occupātus, busy ōceanus, -ī, m., ocean oculus, -i, m., eye, apple of one's eye officium, -ī, n., duty oleo, -ere, -ui, smell olim, once, once upon a time omnīnō, wholly (omnis) omnipotens, -ntis, all-powerful omnis, -e, all, every; omnia, everything

nunc, now onus, -eris, n., burden operiō, -īre, -ruī, -rtus, cover opes, -um, f., means; sing., power opīnio, -onis, f., opinion, belief oportet, -ēre, impers., it is necessary, ought, must oppidum, -ī, n., town opprimo, -ere, -pressi, -pressus, overwhelm oppugno, -āre, attack optimātēs, -ium, m., nobles, aristocracy optime, excellently, splendidly, best; in exclam., splendid! optimus, superl. of bonus optō, -āre, wish, choose opus, -eris, n., work, fortification opus est, there is need (w. abl.) öra, -ae, f., shore ōrātiō, -ōnis, f., speech; ōrātiōnem habēre, make a speech orbis, -is, m., circle; orbis terrārum, the earth Orgetorix, -īgis, m., Orgetorix (a Helvetian leader) Orion, -onis, m., Orion (a constellation) orior, -īrī, ortus, arise, spring, be örnämentum, -ī, n., ornament ōrnō, -āre, deck, adorn ōrō, -āre, pray, beseech, entreat ōs, ōris, n., mouth, face ostendo, -ere, -ndi, -ntus, show ōtiōsus, -a, -um, at peace ōtium, -ī, n., peace, rest, quiet ovis, -is, f., sheep ōvum, -ī, n., egg

paene, almost paupertās, -ātis, f., poverty paenitet, -ēre, impers., regret, repāx, pācis, f., peace pectus, -oris, n., breast, heart paenula, -ae, f., mantle pecudes, -um, f., cattle pānis, -is, m., bread pecūnia, -ae, f., money pannus, -ī, m., patch pecus, -oris, n., cattle par, paris, equal, like peior, peius, worse (compar. of parātus, -a, -um, ready, prepared malus) parco, -ere, peperci, parsus, w. dat., Pelasgus, -a, -um, Greek pendeo, -ēre, pependī, hang spare parens, -ntis, m. and f., parent penitus, adv., deep, far pāreō, -ēre, -uī, w. dat., obey, pēnsum, -ī, n., assignment, lesson listen to per, w. acc., through, over, along, pariës, -ietis, m., wall (of a house) during, for, by; per sē, in itself; pariter, on equal terms per mē quidem, so far as I am paro, -are, prepare, prepare for, obconcerned perago, -ere, -egi, -actus, accomtain, get ready pars, partis, f., part: in minimā plish, finish parte, in the slightest degree peragro, -are, travel through partior, -īrī, -ītus, share perdo, -ere, -didi, -ditus, min, parvulus, -a, -um, little; parvula, confound -ae, f., little girl pereo, -īre, -iī, -itūrus, perish, pass parvus, -a, -um, small away, be lost; pereat, confound pāsco, -ere, pāvī, pāstus, feed, pashim! perficio, -ere, -feci, -fectus, compāstor, -ōris, m., shepherd plete, accomplish, perform patefacio, -ere, -fēcī, -factus, make pergo, -ere, perrexi, perrectus, go elear, lay bare, expose, reveal on, continue pater, -tris, m., father periculosus, -a, -um, dangerous periculum, -i, n., danger, test, risk; patior, -ī, passus, suffer, allow dare in periculum, endanger; fac patria, -ae, f., native land, native periculum, try it! city peritia, -ae, f., skill, knowledge patrius, -a, -um, paternal, native paucī, -ae, -a, fero peritus, -a, -um, skilled, versed (w. paulisper, a little while paulo, a little, a little while (w. permitto, -ere, -mīsī, -missus, percomparatives) mit permoveo, -ere, -movi, -motus, dispaulum, a little pauper, -eris, poor, humble turb, alarm, overcome

perpetuus, -a, -um, perpetual; in pol, great Scott! (lit., by Pollux) polliceor, -ērī, -licitus, promise, perpetuum, forever persolvo, -ere, -solvi, -solūtus, pay offer polus, -ī, m., firmament persuādeō, -ēre, -suāsī, -suāsus, w. dat. of pers., persuade, perpono, -ere, posui, positus, put, place, lay suade of pons, -ntis, m., bridge pertineo, -ere, -tinui, w. ad and populus, -ī, m., people acc., concern porta, -ae, f., gate, door, entrance pervagor, -ārī, wander through, portendo, -ere, -ndi, -ntus, portend, provel in presage, foreshadow, mean pervenio, -īre, -vēnī, -ventus, w. in or ad and acc., arrive, come to porto, -āre, carry pēs, pedis, m., foot possum, posse, potui, can, be able post, w. acc., after, behind peto, -ere, -īvī, -ītus, beg, seek, ask, posteā, afterward, after that, later ask for, be a candidate for Phrygius,-a,-um, Phrygian, Trojan posterus, -a, -um, coming after; in posterum, for the future pietās, -ātis, f., piety, devotion posthāc, hereafter piget, -ēre, impers., disgust, weary pignus, -oris, n., pledge, security postquam, conj., after postrēmo, finally, in the end piscis, -is, m., fish postulo, -are, ask, demand pisco, -āre, fish; piscātum īre, go fishing potens, -ntis, powerful pius, -a, -um, pious, God-fearing, potentia, -ae, f., power, might potestās, -ātis, f., power, dominplaceo, -ere, -ui, w. dat., please, be ion pleasing, suit; placet, it is agreed potior, -īrī, -ītus, w. abl., get posplacide, peacefully session potius, rather, preferable plānē, distinctly, utterly poto, -are, drink plēnus, -a, -um, full potus, -a, -um, perf. part. of poto ploro, -are, weep, bewail plūrimus, -a, -um, superl. of praebeo, -ere, -ui, -itus, offer, supmultus ply praecipue, especially plūs, plūris, compar. of multus praeda, -ae, f., booty, game pluvius, -a, -um, rainy praedīco, -ere, -dīxī, -dictus, prepoculum, -i, n., cup poena, -ae, f., satisfaction, punishdict, warn ment; poenās dare, suffer punishpraedium, -ī, n., estate, farm praedo, -onis, m., robber, brigand praemium, -ī, n., reward Poenī, -ōrum, m., Carthaginians praesertim, especially proditor, -oris, m., traitor praeter, w. acc., besides, beyond, proelium, -ī, n., battle; proelia facere, fight except praetereā, besides profectio, -onis, f., departure praetereo, -īre, -iī, -itus, go by: proficio, -ere, -feci, -fectus, accomplish, make progress pres. partic. praeteriens, praeproficiscor, -i, -fectus, set out, tereuntis praetextus, -a, -um, with a border; start, leave progredior, -i, -gressus, advance toga praetexta, purple-bordered toga (worn by boys and officials) prohibeo, -ere, -ui, -itus, prevent, keep off praevenio, -ire, -vēnī, -ventus, promitto, -ere, -misi, -missus, anticipate prandium, -ī, n., breakfast promise prope, nearly, closely prātum, -ī, n., meadow propero, -are, be quick, hurry precor, -ārī, pray prehendo, -ere, -ndi, -nsus, seize, propitius, -a, -um, propitious, favorable lay hold of propono, -ere, -posui, -positus, pretiosus, -a, -um, expensive, costly pretium, -ī, n., price, value; minimī place before, put before propositum, -i, n., resolution preti, worth very little prīmō, at first propter, w. acc., on account of primum, first, in the first place prosum, prodesse, profui, profutuprimus, -a, -um, first rus, be of advantage, profit princeps, -cipis, m., leader, chief, provectus, -a, -um, advanced, far great man along providentia, -ae, f., foresight, preprior, prius, first, first of the two priusquam, conj., before caution prīvo, -āre, deprive (w. abl.) provideo, -ere, -vidi, -visus, provide, look after, see to pro, w. abl., for, instead of, in beprovincia, -ae, f., province half of proximus, -a, -um, nearest, next probātus, -a, -um, acceptable (probō) probe, in exclam., fine! publicus, -a, -um, public, of the probo, -are, approve, prove, test, people pudet, -ēre, impers., be ashamed esteem probus, -a, -um, honorable, upright (of) puella, -ae, f., girl procax, -acis, boisterous puellula, -ae, f., little girl procedo, -ere, -cessi, -cessus, proceed, advance puer, -i, m., boy procul, at a distance puerilis, -e, boyish, of a boy pueritia, -ae, f., boyhood pugno, -are, fight pulcher, -chra, -chrum, beautiful, fair, pretty pulcherrime, best, most beautifully pulchritudo, -inis, f., beauty pulto, -are, knock, knock at pūnio, -īre, -īvī, -ītus, punish pūpa, -ae, f., doll puto, -are, think quadrans, -ntis, m., (one fourth of an as) a penny quaero, -ere, quaesivi, quaesitus, ask, seek, look for quaeso, pray (parenthetical) quam, as, than, how; w. superl., as ... as possible; tam ... quam, as ... as; quam diū, as long as quamquam, although quando, when quantus, -a, -um, as great as, how great, how big, what great, how much, as quare (qua re), therefore, for that quartus, -a, -um, fourth quasi, as if quattuor, four -que, and; -que...-que, both ... and querela, -ae, f., complaint queror, -ī, questus, complain (of) que, whoever, whatever tain, a qui, quae, quod, who, which, that, quīcumque, quaecumque, quodcumquid, what? why? quidam, quaedam, quoddam, a cer-quidem, indeed, I'm sure, at least; per mē quidem, so far as I am concerned quiesco, -ere, quievi, quietus, rest quietus, -a, -um, quiet (quiesco) quilibet, quaelibet, quodlibet (quidlibet), any you please quin, but that, that quinque, fire quinquāgintā, fifty quis, quae, quid (interrog.), who? which? what? quis, qua (quae), quid (quod), someone, something, anyone, anything (used chiefly after sī, nisi, nē, num) quisquam, quaequam, quidquam (quicquam), anyone, anything (with negatives) quisque, quaeque, quidque (quodque), each, every, each one quisquis, quidquid, whoever, whatever quivis, quaevis, quidvis (quodvis), whoever, whatever, any whatever quo, in order that, so that (used before comparatives); quo... eo, the . . . the quo, whither? where? quod, because, that quomodo (quo modo), how, just as quoniam, since quoque, also quotannis, annually radius, -ī, m., ray recipio, -ere, -cepī, -ceptus, get back, receive; in se recipere, take upon one's self recreo, -are, refresh recte, rightly, properly rēctus, -a, -um, right, straight reddo, -ere, -didi, -ditus, give back redeo, -ire, -ii, -itus, go back, come back, return; pres. partic. rediens, redeuntis reditus, -ūs, m., return refero, -ferre, -tuli, -latus, bring absurd back, report rēfert, rēferre, impers., it makes a difference rēgīna, -ae, f., queen regio, -onis, f., district, part of the country rēgius, -a, -um, royal rēgnō, -āre, govern, rule rēgnum, -ī, n., kingdom, dominion regō, -ere, rēxī, rēctus, rule relēgō, -āre, send away religo, -are, bind fast, fasten relinquo, -ere, -liqui, -lictus, leave reliquus, -a, -um, left, remaining, the rest (of); reliquum est, it remains remaneō, -ēre, -mānsī, -mānsus, saepe, often remain behind remedium, -ī, n., relief rependo, -ere, -pendo, -pensus, pay reperio, -ire, repperi, repertus, find reporto, -āre, carry back res, rei, f., thing, matter, affair, circumstance, fortune; rē vērā, really; res publica, rei publicae, state, commonwealth respicio, -ere, -spexī, -spectus, look back, care for, regard respondeo, -ēre, -ndī, -nsus, reply resto, -are, remain revertor, -ī, revertī, return revinciō, -īre, -nxī, -nctus, bind rēx, rēgis, m., king Rhodanus, -i, m., the Rhone (river) ridendus, -a, -um, ridiculous, worth laughing at rīdiculus, -a, -um, ridiculous, rīpa, -ae, f., bank (of a river) rīsus, -ūs, m., laughter rogo, -āre, ask Roma, -ae, f., Rome Romanus, -a, -um, Roman; as a noun, a Roman rūrsus, again rūsticus, -a, -um, rustic, peasant saccus, -ī, m., sack, bag sacellum, -ī, n., shrine sacer, -cra, -crum, sacred, accursed sacerdos, -otis, m., priest sacra, -orum, n., sacrifices sacrifico, -āre, sacrifice saeculum, -ī, n., age, generation saepenumero, many a time saevus, -a, -um, fierce sagitta, -ae, f., arrow sagum, -ī, n., soldier's cloak saltem, at any rate salūs, -ūtis, f., safetv. greeting salveo, -ēre, be well; salvē, salvēte, how do you do? hurrah for . . . ! welcome! hail! salvus, -a, -um, well, safe sanctus, -a, -um, sacred, inviosenex, gen. senis, old, an old lable man sānē, of course sententia, -ae, f., thought, judgsanguis, -inis, m., blood ment, opinion sapiens, -ntis, wise; as a noun, a sentiō, -īre, sēnsī, sēnsus, feel, perwise man ceive, have opinion satis, enough, sufficient, sufficiently septuāgintā, seventy Sequani, -orum, m., the Sequani-Sāturnius, -a, -um, of Saturn, Saturn's ans (a Gallic tribe) saxum, -ī, n., rock sequor, -ī, secūtus, follow serpēns, -ntis, f., reptile, serpent scālae, -ārum, f., ladder scelestus, -ī, m., rascal sertum, -ī, n., garland scelus, -eris, n., crime; sī quid sērus, -a, -um, late sceleris, if any crime serva, -ae, f., slave, woman servscio, -īre, -īvī, -ītus, know; quod ant sciam, so far as I know servīlis, -e, a slave's scissus, -a, -um, torn, rent servo, -āre, save, keep, preserve scītō, imperative of sciō servus, -ī, m., slave, servant scrībo, -ere, scrīpsī, scrīptus, write sestertius, -ī, m., sestertius sē, acc. and abl. of refl. pron., (= four cents), a nickel himself, herself, themselves seu = sīve sēclūdo, -ere, -clūsī, -clūsus, shut sevērus, -a, -um, stern, strict away, banish sex, six secretum, -ī, n., secret, hidden Sextus, -ī, m., Sextus (a Roman thing name) secundum, w. acc., according to sī, if secundus, -a, -um, second, prossibi, dat. of refl. pronoun; see sē sic, thus perous sēcūrus, -a, -um, free from care sīcut, as, just as sed, but sīdus, -eris, n., constellation sēdecim, sixteen signum, -ī, n., signal sedeo, -ēre, sēdī, sessus, sit silentium, -ī, n., silence sēdēs, -is, f., abode, home silva, -ae, f., forest sella, -ae, f., chair similis, -e, like, alike; vērī simile, semper, always likely senātor, -oris, m., senator Simoīs, -entis, m., the Simois (a senātorius, -a, -um, of the senate river near Troy) senātus, -ūs, m., senate simul, at the same time; simul senectūs, -ūtis, f., old age atque, as soon as sine, w. abl., without; sine dubio, stabulum, -i, n., stable statim, immediately no doubt statio, -onis, f., post, place of duty sive, or if; sive . . . sive, whether statuo, -ere, -ui, -ūtus, decide, found, establish soccus, -ī, m., shoe, slipper stella, -ae, f., star sociō, -āre, ally socius, -i, m., partner, companion sternő, -ere, strāvī, strātus, spread, sodālis, -is, m., comrade, chum, seatter stīpendium, -ī, n., pay; stīpendia best friend sodes (= si audes), please (parenfacere, serve in the army sto, -are, steti, status, stand thetical) sol, solis, m., sun strēnuus, -a, -um, vigorous, enersoleo, -ere, solitus sum, be accusstringo, -ere, -nxi, strictus, draw solitus, -a, -um, customary, usual (sword) studeo, -ere, -ui, be eager (soleō) stultitia, ae, f., stupidity sollicito, -are, stirup, excite, trouble stultus, -a, -um, stupid, foolish sollicitūdo, -inis, f., anxiety, worry suādeō, -ēre, suāsī, suāsus, advise, sollicitus, -a, -um, anxious, worried suggest solum, only solus, -a, -um, alone, only, lonely suāvis, -e, sweet solvo, -ere, solvi, solūtus, free, sub, w. acc. and abl., under, bedispel somniō, -āre, dream subdūco, -ere, -dūxī, -ductus, draw ashore (ships) somnium, -ī, n., dream subito, suddenly somnus, -ī, m., sleep, dream sonitus, -ūs, m., sound sublātus, perf. partic. of tollo submergo, -ere, -mersi, -mersus, soror, -oris, f., sister sors, sortis, f., lot, fate sink sospes, -itis, safe succēdo, -ere, -cessī, -cessus, enter speciës, -ēi, f., appearance, looks; (w. dat.) suffrāgium, -ī, n., vote; suffrāgium bonā speciē, good-looking specto, -are, look, look at, behold ferre, to vote spēro, -are, hope, hope for suī, gen. of refl. pronoun; see spēs, -eī, f., hope splendidus, -a, -um, fine, white sum, esse, fui, futurus, be; est quod, there is something which sponte: tuā sponte, of your oron summus, -a, -um, highest, greatest,

top of accord

st, sh!

tē, acc. and abl. of tū sūmō, -ere, sūmpsī, sūmptus, take, tēctum, -ī, n., roof, house take up, assume sūmptuosus, -a, -um, costly, lavish superbus, -a, -um, proud supero, -āre, surpass, cross supplicatio, -onis, f., thanksgiving supplicium, -ī, n., punishment suprā, w. acc., above suprēmus, -a, -um, highest suscipio, -ere, -cepi, -ceptus, undertake, undergo remember suspectus, -a, -um, suspected suspicio, -ere, -spexi, -spectus, suspect suspicio, -onis, f., suspicion suspicor, -ārī, suspect, be suspicious sustento, -āre, support sustineo, -ēre, -uī, -tentus, sustain, bear, endure suus, -a, -um, his, her, its, their (refl.) Sychaeus, -ī, m., Sychaeus (husband of Dido) taceo, -ere, -ui, -itus, be still, be silent taedet, -ēre, impers., disgust, weary tālis, -e, such tam, so, such; tam . . . quam, so ... as, as ... as tamen, however, yet, still, but tandem, at last, pray, I'd like to tantum, only, merely; so much, so tantus, -a, -um, so great, such, this tardus, -a, -um, slow, behind time great; tantum . . . quantum, as much . . . as; est tantī, it is know much only worth while

tempestās, -ātis, f., storm templum, -ī, n., temple tempora, -um, n., temples (of the forehead) tempus, -oris, n., time tenāx, -ācis, clinging tenebrosus, -a, -um, dark teneo, -ēre, -uī, -tus, hold, restrain, keep, have; memoriā tenēre, to tener, -era, -erum, tender, young terra, -ae, f., land terreo, -ere, -ui, -itus, frighten, terrify territo, -are, frighten, dismay terror, -oris, m., terror, fright tertius, -a, -um, third testor, -ārī, swear by, call to witness testūdo, -inis, f., tortoise, turtle Teucrī, -orum, m., Trojans tibi, dat. of tū timeo, -ēre, -uī, fear, be afraid timor, -oris, m., fear, alarm tinguō, -ere, -nxī, -nctus, dip tīrō, -onis, m., recruit toga, -ae, f., toga; toga virīlis, man's toga tolero, -are, endure, sustain, bear tollo, -ere, sustuli, sublatus, do away with, remove torqueo, -ere, torsi, tortus, torture tot, so many totus, -a, -um, whole, all, from head to foot trāctō, -āre, handle trado, -ere, -didi, -ditus, hand over, intrust; trādere in cūstodiam, put in prison

trāns, w. acc., across unda, -ae, f., wave trānseō, -īre, -iī, -itus, cross trānsfuga, -ae, m., deserter trānsigō, -ere, -ēgī, -āctus, finish, settle trēs, tria, three Triones, -um, the Dipper (a constellation) trīstis, -e, sad trīstitia, -ae, f., sadness Troia, -ae, f., Troy Troianus, -a, -um, Trojan; Troianus, -i, m., a Trojan Troius, -a, -um, Trojan Tros, Trois, m., a Trojan tū, you (sing.) tuba, -ae, f., trumpet tueor, -ērī, tūtus, watch, protect tuī, gen. of tū Tulliola, -ae, f., little Tullia tum, then: tum . . . tum, now . . . now, both . . . and tumultus, -ūs, m., disturbance, uproar tunc, then turba, -ae, f., crowd, mob tūtus, -a, -um, safe tuus, -a, -um, your tyrannus, -ī, m., despot, tyrant Tyrius, -ī, m., Tyrian, Cartha-uber, -eris, n., fertility ubi, where ubique, everywhere ūllus, -a, -um, any, anyone ultimus, -a, -um, last umbra, -ae, f., shadow umquam, ever

ginian

unde, whence, where ūnus, -a, -um, one, one only; ūnā cum, along with Urania, -ae, f., Urania (one of the Muses) urbanus, -a, -um, polished, of the city: urbānī hominēs, city people urbs, urbis, f., city usquam, anywhere ūsus, -ūs, m., use; usuī esse, be of use ut, that, so that, as, how uter, utra, utrum, which of the two uterque, utraque, utrumque, each of the two, both ūtilis, -e, useful, good utinam, would that ūtor, -ī, ūsus, use (w. abl.) utrum . . . an, whether . . . or uxor, -oris, f., wife vacca, -ae, f., core vacuus, -a, -um, empty (w. abl.) vadum, -ī, n., shoal, shallow water valde, very valeo, -ere, -ui, be strong, be well; valē, valēte, good-by, farewell valētūdō, -inis, f., health validus, -a, -um, strong, sturdy vallum, -i, n., rampart, fortification vāstō, -āre, lay waste vātēs, -is, m., seer, soothsayer vectus, -a, -um, carried, having traversed vehementer, very much, awfully vel, or, if you please; vel . . . vel, either . . . or (as you like) velim, pres. subj. of volo, I should like vēlox, -ocis, swift vēndō, -ere, -didī, -ditus, sell veneror, -ārī, worship, reverence venia, -ae, f., forgiveness venio, -ire, vēnī, ventus, come vēnor, -ārī, hunt; vēnātum īre, go hunting ventus, -i, m., wind Venus, -eris, f., Ienus (goddess of love, mother of Aeneas) venustās, -ātis, f., charm venustus, -a, -um, charming vēr, vēris, n., spring verbero, -āre, beat verbum, -i, n., word vērē, truly, really; vērē dicere, vērē loqui, to tell the truth vereor, -ērī, veritus, fear vēro, certainly, indeed, of course vertō, -ere, -rtī, -rsus, turn vērum, but vērus, -a, -um, true, real; vērum, -ī, n., truth; rē vērā, really; vērī simile, likely vēscor, -ī, consume, breathe (w. abl.) vesper, -erī or -eris, m., evening vester, -tra, -trum, your vestīgium, -ī, n., footprint, track vestimentum, -ī, n., garment, clothing; plur., clothes genitives of vos vestrum [vetulus, -i, m., little old man via, -ae, f., road, way, street vīcīna, -ae, f., neighbor woman vicinia, -ae, f., neighborhood vicinus, -i, m., neighbor victor, -oris, m., victor; as an adj., victorious video, -ēre, vidī, vīsus, see; videor, seem vigilo, -are, watch, be vigilant, be awake vīgintī, twenty villa, -ae, f., country house, farm vincio, -īre, vinxī, vinctus, bind vinco, -ere, vīcī, victus, defeat, conquer vinculum, -ī, n., chain vīnum, -ī, n., wine vir, -i, m., man, husband vīrēs, -ium, f., plur. of vīs, strength virgo, -inis, f., maiden, girl, young lady, young woman virilis, -e, of a man virtūs, -ūtis, f., courage, bravery, heroism, virtue vis, vis, f., force, strength, violence, vīs, second pers. of volō vīta, -ae, f., life, darling vīvō, -ere, vīxī, vīctus, live vīvus, -a, -um, alive vix, hardly, scarcely vobis, dat. and abl. of vos vocō, -āre, call volēns, -ntis, willing volo, velle, volui, will, wish, want voluntās, -ātis, f., will, wish, determination voluptās, -ātis, f., pleasure, enjoyvorto = verto; di bene vortant, the gods forbid vos, you (plur.) vox, vocis, f., voice, word, remark vulnero, -are, wound; vulneratus,

wounded

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, LOS ANGELES THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

This book is DUE on the last date stamped below

NOV 9 FEB 2 1956 SEP 1 3 1957 JAN 2 1969 MECO MID LURL FEB 1 3 1988 RECEB 2.4.1968 ORION OCT 21'89 1 2 1gs. Form L-9 21 m 2, 43 (5205)

UNIVERSITY of CALIFORNIA

UC SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY

AA 000 407 636 0

